Obituary.

EDWARD J. RAWLINS.

With profound regret we chronicle the death of a well known and highly respected citizen, in the person of Mr. Edward J. Rawlins, which occurred at his late residence, Queen's Road, at 8.15 last evening. The deceased had been ill of blood-poisoning for about two months past, which set in after having received treatment for a growth on the neck. Up to a few days ago he showed some slight signs of improvement, though his ultimate recovery was doubtful. Yesterday evening, half an hour before the end came, his condition became grave, and Rt. Rev. Mons. Roche was summoned, arriving in time to administer the last rites of the Catholic Church, to one who was an exemplary member thereof. Mr. Rawlins was in his fifty-seventh year, and was highly esteemed. He was a life-long member of the B.I.S., and was for many years Chairman of Schools in that body, and was also Chairman of the Belvedere Cemetery Committee since its inception about 18 years ago. He leaves a widow, two daughters and four sons. Rev. Father John Rawlins, Charles in Newbury, U.S.A., Edward in Rome, studying for the priesthood, and Joseph of the Royal Bank of Canada, this city; to all of whom the Telegram unites with the community in extending sincerest sympathy.

MR. JAMES NASH.

The many friends of Mr. James Nash, farmer, will learn with regret of his sudden death which occurred at his home on Saturday afternoon last. Mr. Nash was in town Saturday shopping, and on his return home early in the afternoon, complained of a severe pain in the region of the heart. His friends became alarmed and immediately summoned Rev. Fr. Pippy and Dr. Campbell, but before they arrived he had passed away. The deceased was in his 57th year, and was well known in the city. An aged uncle, two sisters and two brothers are left to mourn, to whom the Telegram extends sympathy. The funeral takes place this afternoon.

Rounders Transfigured.

"Baseball is hard to describe, but its points are easy to pick up as it is being played," says the Star. "To an English crowd it does not look like a foreign game, for it is clearly the old English game of rounders transfigured, transformed, specialised, and polished to the highest possible pitch of peril and perfection. It is the extreme perfection of the game as played by such cranks as the New York 'Giants' and the Chicago 'White Sox' which makes it difficult to transplant from American to British soil. Another obstacle is our moist climate. Baseball appears to be a game that demands fast dry turf and plenty of sun. In an English summer these conditions are often absent. It is probable, therefore, that baseball at its best could seldom be seen here. The work of training the players is evidently long and arduous, and here there is no demand for professionals which would stimulate the supply."

"There can be no doubt about the amazing skill of our visitors. Their throwing beats anything ever seen in cricket. It often deceives the eye, as bewildering are the passes from base to base when two men are run out of one ball. It is in throwing that our cricketers ought to sit at the feet of the 'Giants' and the 'White Sox.' The pitcher also is an education for our bowlers. It is true that he throws the ball, but he delivers it with one foot on a plate and without a preliminary run. We should like to see a pitcher pitching a cricket ball at one of our crack batsmen."

"There is one lesson which these splendid athletes have taught us. It is this. They waste no time in getting to work. Though an innings may be over in two minutes, the outs are off and the ins are on the field in a flash. The swiftness of cricket would be sensibly abated if our cricketers were to imitate the American briskness between over and between the outgoing and incoming batsmen. The defect of baseball is the fewness of the runs, due apparently to the mastery of the pitcher and the fielders over the batsman. In cricket the balance is more evenly held. A run in baseball is as rare as a goal in football. But baseball is American and cricket is English. Baseball suits the nervous, highly strung, enthusiastic American temperament, just as cricket suits the phlegmatic, stolid, and rather reticent English temperament."

HEALTHY AND UNHEALTHY LIGHTING

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not vitiate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:—

Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this amongst other reasons that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson B. Hurry.

He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Duffield, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.

I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which, with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity, the latter being applied with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Vivian B. Lewis, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—Nov. 8, 11.

Shmarock Baseballers Meet.

The annual meeting of the Shmarock Baseball Club was held on Saturday night in their club rooms, Water Street West, when the reports of the past year were submitted and approved, after which the election of officers for the coming year was conducted. The President, who announced his retirement, occupied the chair, and the following were chosen:—

President Mr. J. Murphy.
Vice-Pres. Mr. E. J. Goodland.
Sec.-Treas. Mr. C. J. Cantwell.
Manager Mr. W. J. O'Neill.
The Vice-President and Manager were appointed delegates to the League for 1914.

The Shmarocks during the past year made an excellent showing, their team having won several honours. Much enthusiasm prevailed during the meeting and several new applicants for membership were admitted. The first practice will take place shortly when the season's work commences.

Fatal Accident at Bell Isld.

Mr. A. Proudfoot, of Bell Island, who is a guest at the Crosbie, received a message on Saturday night informing him of a tragedy that occurred on the Island during the day. The message stated that Ambrose Clarke, of Harbour Grace, an underground worker, was killed by a falling roof in the submarine mine, and that Wm. Tye, another labourer, was badly injured.

One of Tye's legs had to be amputated immediately after the accident, but there is every hope of his recovery.

Billiard Tournament

On Saturday night four billiard matches were played at the B. I. S. rooms. The results were:—

A word to those who wear "Twenty-five cent Glasses." Do you realize that by so doing, you virtually admit that twenty-five cents is the value you place upon God's greatest gift to you? There is no law to prevent you from injuring your eyes by using such glasses excepting, perhaps, the law of common sense. Of course you don't know why cheap glasses play such havoc with your eyes, and health generally, nor does the man who sells them to you know. An eyesight specialist can tell you, and if you would interest yourself to the extent of asking him to explain, you would never look through a pair of them. Anything more perfect or beautiful than the human eye would be impossible for man to conceive. Then, why, when physical aid is needed to enable it to perform its functions with greater ease, do you use cheap glasses or submit yourself to persons of questionable ability to suit you? When your eyes cry out for assistance, go to R. H. Trappell, the Eyesight Specialist who will faithfully examine them and give you none but the best quality glasses if glasses are needed at all. Thousands are ready to testify to the great benefit received at his hands.—mar18,ed,tf
