AN AWFUL NUISANCE.

A friend of ours who lives out in the country has had a new electric pump installed to pump the water from his well into a tank in his cellar, from which the house is supplied with running water.

This electric pump is a wonderful contrivance. It is automatic—when the water in the tank falls below a certain point the pump starts it by itself and begins to pump of its own accord. When it is pumped enough, it also knows by instinct and at once stops.

It is Uncanny.

It is almost uncanny to hear it suddenly begin pumping. It reminds me somehow of an innovation that used to play chess in the Mechanics' Club to which Grandfather used to take me when I was a youngster.

Don'tless you have met just such a pump, and so the tale of its wonders is not new to you. But here is the hub of my tale:

This pump did not take the place of a hand pump, but of another electric pump. And the trouble with the other electric pump was that it was not automatic.

"You had to push a button," explained our country friend, "and start going when the water ran low and stop it when you had enough. Any finger of its overflowing? No, there was a safety valve that would stop it if you forgot, but you always had to start it yourself. An awful nuisance."

Please think of that a minute.

The Price of Running Water.

An awful nuisance to push a button and get running water in your house? I don't bring this up as a criticism of the individual friend. Far from it. Nor as a criticism of anyone, but just to make vivid how quickly we take every kind of a convenience for granted and want more.

In our favorite room in the little house where we used to go summers, there was an electric light controlled by a switch at the door. One year we had a different room in which there was no switch. We had to go to the middle of the room before we could light the light. And we said, just as my friend said, "An awful nuisance." Just think of it! Light to be had for the touch of a finger—brilliant, all illuminating light, without the smell of kerosene, without the inconvenience of flaring in summer draughts; and just because we had to cross the room to get that light, we called it "an awful nuisance."

Truly we are pampered human beings.

We Think We Are Abused.

Give us a few weeks to get used to a labor-saving device and we come to take it as a matter of course and complain bitterly if we are deprived of its use even for a few minutes. Witness the walls of anguish that go up when a storm puts the electric light or the telephone out of commission for a little while.

If my friend with the new pump had lived in the country 50 years ago he would have been pumping his water by hand; 75 years ago he would probably have been lugging it from a well. To-day he finds it "an awful nuisance" to push a button to have it pumped for him.

Such, I suppose, is life.

Jewel Thieves Located.

The latest haul of jewel robbers, whose ransacking of New York hotels, apartment houses and private homes have puzzled the police for several months, became known yesterday. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. John McKay, wealthy Montreal residents, who are stopping at the Hotel Wolcott. While they were dining Monday night, their room was entered and $10,000 in jewels taken, they reported to the police. Tuesday night it became known that robbers had taken $75,000 worth of jewels from the Fifth Avenue residence of Mrs. Hamilton Fish.

Had American Whiskey.

The Chief Constable of Greenock, Great Britain, in his annual report, comments on the ill-effects of some American whiskey now being imported into Great Britain. Whatever its composition, he says, its effects are terrible. It not only poisons, after the intoxicating effects have passed away, nervous and depressed. It is spoken of colloquially as "snake bite."

Not a Bad Idea.

An Ohio county has adopted the policy of putting her convicted bootleggers to work at building county roads. The majority of convicts now committed to the jail in this particular county are offenders against the Prohibition law. Many prisoners are committed to this jail from an adjoining county, which county contains a large city, and this perhaps explains why there is a large number of inmates than found in most jails in these days of Prohibition. It is planned to work the prisoners in squads of from eight to ten in various parts of the county, the government furnishing trucks to convey the prisoners to and from their work.

Here is a splendid tip to other counties. There is a shortage of labor, much work is needed on road improvements. Why not put the convicted bootleggers to work? A few months' toil of this kind will be a more convincing argument to most of them than a mere fine that the Prohibition law is to be respected and obeyed, and at the same time the county will be benefited by their labor. In addition to serving this twofold purpose the taxpayers will not be burdened with the expense of feeding these criminals. They will more than pay their way.—Ex.

Another Prodigy.

A youthful chess prodigy recently made his debut in Berlin. A boy by the name of R. Rzeschewski, eight years of age, dared to play in the Berlin Chess Society 20 or more games simultaneously against more or less classy chess players, winning 18 games, losing one and drawing the rest. Furthermore, the little fellow undertook to play blind-folded against the famous master player, Kurt Von Bardeleben, an expert of over 20 years standing, and many times a prize winner in national and international tournaments. Marvellous to relate, the boy had the satisfaction of drawing this game after 20 moves.

Trumped-Up Evidence.

More than 50 per cent. of the divorces granted in the United States are based on "trumped up charges," resulting from the fascination of the husband or wife for some one else. Francis Moody, of Chicago, executive secretary of the International Committee on Marriage and Divorce, declared before the Senate Judiciary Committee. Appearing in support of a joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment providing for uniform Federal marriage and divorce laws, Mr. Moody declared that the divorce evil was a "worse plague than the saloon ever was," and that the remedy was in Federal legislation.

Six Cents Damage.

The jury trying the breach of promise suit of Miss Lillian Phipps, of Teaneck, New Jersey, against William Smith, of Tenafly, brought in a verdict of six cents for the plaintiff, at Hackensack, New Jersey, on Friday. She had asked $50,000. In Smith's counter suit of conspiracy against J. H. Van Loan and his wife, uncle and aunt of Miss Phipps, the jury decided there was no cause of action and dismissed the suit.

THE SPRING COLD.

I have a cold; it should be hard to be a cheerful sunshine bard. I'd like to croak a bout despair hind limbs and and rear on my hind limbs and swear; but habit is a wondrous thing, and so I dance around and sing. My head is clogged, my eyes are sore, and every breath sounds like a snore; I'm full of fever, and my brow feels like an old Dutch oven now, and men would say I had excuse, if I should rant and raise the deuce. But habit has me in its grip, and so I sound my cheerful yip. For years I've pilled this sunshine stunt, and kept a smiling face in front, and now, when I would make lament, I cannot do it worth a cent. I'm feeling punk and tough as sin, but every groan ends in a grin. And this, my friends, methinks should teach that wholesome habit is a peach. I'm glad I learned when I was young to leave the doleful dirge unsung, and chant glad ditties, span and spick, till some one hit me with a brick, to push gay ballads through my beard, until the peelers interfered.

REWARD.

Let laughter pay me for my toil
And I'll not ask for gold,
I'll gladly till my patch of soil
And rest when I am old.
If they who know me best shall smile
I'll count my drudgery worth while.
I'll hold the plow or breast the gate,
Or humble post I'll keep,
Nor will I say I've lived to fail
Though little I may reap,
If those who love me are content,
I'll count my time and strength well spent.

Let them be glad to kiss my cheek
And proud to walk with me,
I will not greater glory seek
Nor ask a larger fee.

No Blood Drawn.

General Sir Robert Baden-Powell assisted an exhibition of swordsmanship at the Command Gymnasium, at Aldershot, by submitting to have an apple cut in halves upon his neck by a blow from a sword. He smiled as the swordmaster raised his weapon. In an instant the blow had fallen, and the severed apple rolled to the floor. As Sir Robert Baden-Powell resumed his seat he cautiously felt his neck and then glanced at his hand, but no blood had been drawn.
