Storm Did No Damage

The snow storm of Sunday was general in most points in the province, but will not do any damage to the grain, except delay harvesting operations for a few days," said W. Carson, grain dealer and a member of the Calgary Grain Exchange, to The Albertan yesterday. "The only danger is that farmers might thresh before the grain has fully dried out, which would make a tough grade of wheat. Most of the farmers, however, are fully aware of this danger, and will consequently guard themselves against it. Farmers look for such a storm as yesterday about this time of the year, and now that it has come they will feel better satisfied to know that it is over. For the past five years, similar conditions have been the rule about this time, and no loss has resulted in past years."
