Finds Relics of Early Explorer Verandrye, the discoverer of the Sas Verandrye, the discoverer of the Sas-katchewan river in 1743, called it the "Riviere du Pas," in honor of his mother, Marie Doneau d'Isle du Pas. The coureurs des bols" and voyageurs familiarly called this place Le Pas de La Riviere on acount of the natural aspect at Mission island, where the Hudson bay railway crosses the river heing the narrowest ressesse or the being the narrowest passage on the river fo rsome considerable distance east and west. The word "Pas" is used exclusively in French in the same sense in such expressions as "Pas de Calais" and "Pas de Roland;" and this historical fact bears out the claim of the leading citizens of this town for

Cure it was a beliadonna plaster. He was given one, or rather, one was plastered on the back of his neck. The next day the entire section of the jail reserved for "hop-heads" was in the throes of various stages of aches. All wanted beliadonna plasters. An investigation disclosed the fact that the prisoners, by removing the beliadonna plasters and nutting them into water plasters and putting them into water made a cocktail, the plasters contain-ing a quantity of alkaloid atropine in large enough quantities, to give the "hypos" an excellent substitute for a
