THERTO UNDEFEATED HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMP EMPTY SHELL OF GREAT FIGHTER OF YEARS AGO

Apparent That He Had No Chance After the Fifth Session.

FLOORED THRICE BEFORE FINISH

Counted Out on Second Fall, But Negro Went In to Put Him Away.

By C. E. Van Loan. Reno, July 4.-The vital spark was not there.

Jim Jeffries, only the empty shell of the great fighter of seven years ago, was whipped by Jack Johnson this afternoon before the most remarkable assemblage of sporting men ever gathered in the history of the game. Johnson not only outclassed Jeffries, but actually played with the history of the game, as he played with little the big white man as he played with little Tommy Burns and Stanley Ketchel. The end, while it came with the suddenness of a thunderclap, was not a surprise —it had been in plain sight from the fifth round.

There could have been but one ending, and even the most rabid Jeffries men could not deceive themselves into thinking that the white man had a chance af-ing that the white man had a chance after the fifth round.

It was not that he was taking much punishment, for the blows that Johnson anded were not enough to have beaten a strong man of ordinary vitality.

Jeffries did not display a semblance of his old-time form. There were none of his short, determined rushes; none of his trip-hammer blows to the body, and when after the fifth round the negro began after the fifth round the negro began nan-handling Jeffries in the clinches, and easily blocking any attempt at retaliation, there was nothing to do but to wait for

INSTEAD, A MAN WHO DUCKED AND CLINCHED AND FUMBLED. Instead of the old Jeffries, we had a man who ducked and clinched, and fum-bled away with both hands in the clinches, while the negro systematically clinches, while the negro systematically and methodically whipped up either hand to the face, bringing the blood in

When Jeffries lurched out of his corner to begin the fifteenth round, it was only accessary to take one look at Jim Corbett's face. Jim was kneeling just outside the ring, his face showing over the lower rope.

Corbett Stops Smiling.

Up to the tenth round Jeffries' chief adviser had been laughing and making fun of Johnson. Something happened white mustache marking him. Behind Sullivan was Fitzsimmons, his round red face sober and anxious. No need to tell these defeated champions what was coming. They had all been there in their time.

JEFFRIES SHUFFLES INTO THE

Jeffries shuffled into a clinch. There was nothing about his leg action to indiwas nothing about his leg action to indi-care that he was growing groggy, but he seemed tired, and his face, over John-son's shoulder, was a picture of defeat. The right eye was closed to a blue slit in the puffed flesh; the left eye was swollen, the puffed flesh; the left eye was swollen, the nose was split, and the blood was trickling from the lips.

Many a time Jeffries has taken more ounishment and won his fights, but never before did such an expression show on his face—an expression which made it plain that he was at the end of his string.

Johnson Comes Swiftly.

Johnson came up swiftly, his lips parted and his eyes shifting from side to side. There was no smile on his face, and he forgot to nod to his friends at the single-side.

Once he led with his left, and the two men came together, locking arms in a clinch. Jeffries hung on for a few seconds, and then disentangled himself, backing slowly away toward the west side of the ring and toward his own Johnson following with left ex-

Again the two men clinched and this time Jeffries came to a halt with the upper rope across his back. It was Johnson who broke from the clinch, and as he did so he drove the right hand to the body, following it immediately with a left to the point of the chin.

teft to the point of the chin.

First Knock Down Surprise to Crowd.

Jeffries' hands dropped at his sides and he bent double, slowly collapsing to a sitting position. He tried to rise, but fell over backward half in and half out of the ring, his legs over the lower rope.

The thing came so swiftly that it took the crowd by surprise, and there was no noise save that caused by the thousands of people rising in their seats. A thin, scattering cheer from the bleachers was not sufficient to drown the voice of Time-keeper George Harding.

not sufficient to drown the voice of Time-teeper George Harding.

Jack Jeffries moved over and placing his arms under his brother's shoulder, helped him back into the ring. Jeffries was helpless and staggering, and just as his knee cleared the floor Johnson step-ped forward to deliver a right to the law, but Rickard pushed the negro aside.

law, but Rickard pushed the negro aside.

Sways to Corner.

Jeffries swayed over toward his corner, and Johnson stepped in with a deliberate jaw punch which sent the white I an down for the second count. This time Jeffries lay on his side for four seconds and then slowly crawled to his hands and traces.

From the west side of the arena came the yell:

the yell:

"Stop it, Tex; stop it!"

Jeffries lurched to his feet just at the count of ten, and as he raised himself if 1 the floor he spat out a great mouthfun of blood. The last blind instinct of he fighting animal warned Jeffries to slinch, and he hung on with what little strength he had left, while Johnson mauled him clear across the ring.

Sam Berger jumped through the ropes, but Rickard's back was turned and he did not see the acknowledgment of defeat until Jeffries had been floored for the third and last time.

Hears Blasting Count as Crowd Files

lears Blasting Count as Crowd Files Jeffries so close to the timekeeper that he might have touched him, heard the count this time, and was trying to rise to his feet when Rickard pushed Johnson toward his own corner and raised the negro's glove as a signal that the fight t was a solemn crowd which filed out to the dusty street. Less than an hour om the sounding of the first gong the gest procession that Nevada has ever en was passing down the long street ward the centre of the town, and nine to ften of the men had the took of ose who return from a funeral. He wasn't even a ghost of his old if," was a common remark. Once more it has been shown that a may train well without having left thin him the spark which makes a ampion.

How the Tiger Finished the Crippled Bear

Round 15—When the men faced each other, it was plain to all that Jeffries was in distress. His face was puffed and bleeding, from the punishing lefts and rights he had received, and his movements were languid. He shambled after the elusive negro, sometimes crouching low with his left hand stuck out in front, and sometimes standing erect. Stooping or erect, he was a mark for the negro's accurately driven blows. Johnson simply waited for the big white man to come in and chopped his face to pieces. They came into a clinch after a feeble attempt by Jeffries to land a left hand-blow on the body, and as they broke away, Johnson shot his left and right to the jaw in a flash. Jeffries staggered back against the ropes. His defensive power seemed to desert him in an instant. Johnson went at him like a tiger. A rain of lefts and rights delivered at close quarters sent Jeffries reeling blindly. Another series of short, snappy punches, and the big giant went down for the first time in his ring career. He fell under the top rope, over the lower one, and on to the overhanging of the platform. Resting on his haunches and right elbow, Jeffries looked round in a dazed way, and got up at the count of nine. While he was down, Johnson stood almost over him until Rickard waved him back. He stood ready to strike, and when Jeffries rose from his knees, he dashed in again. Jeffries reeled about and tried to clinch, Johnson eluded him, and as the old champion swung around to the south side of the ring, Johnson jolted him twice on the jaw. Jeffries sank to his knees, weak and tired, but got up again at the count of nine. It was then that Jeffries' friends began to call to Rickard to stop the fight. "Stop it! Stop it!" they shouted from all sides.

"Don't let him be knocked out." Rickard gave no heed to these appeals. Jeffries was helpless now, and as he staggered to a standing position, the negro was waiting for him. A left, a right, another left, short, snappy, powerful blows, found their mark on Jeffries' chin, and he went down again. Again he sprawled over the lower rope, hanging half outside the ring. The timekeeper raised and lowered his arm, tolling off the seconds. He had reached the count of seven, when some of Jeffries' seconds put foot inside the ropes, and Rickard walked between the fallen man and the negro champion. Placing his hand on Johnson's shoulder, he declared him the winner. While Jeffries was not counted out, this was a merely technical evasion. It was evident that he could never have got up inside of ten seconds.
