Car Hit Lorry. — A keg of beer rolled off a railway lorry, which turned suddenly in front of a Ridout car at Richmond and York street, and fell through the front vestibule window, beside Motorman G. Lindsay, Tuesday afternoon. Beyond the broken window there were no damages to the car or injuries to the passengers resulting from the collision.

Quick Work Saves. — Dropping his car fender and plugging the motor instantaneously, Motorman A. Cox, of the London street railway, probably saved the lives of his 3 and 5 year old daughters of Mr. Edward Harding, 381 Adelaide street, Tuesday afternoon. The tots stepped suddenly in the way of a Normal car from behind a car running in the opposite direction, on Dundas street, between Adelaide and Elizabeth streets. There was not time to stop the car, but Motorman Cox, with remarkable skill and presence of mind, handled his car so that the children were picked up on the fender, with only a few bruises.

SAYS FAREWELL TO SACRED HEART LADIES

Catholic Record Prints an Eloquent Tribute to Departing Sisters.

The Catholic Record of this week pays the following farewell tribute to the ladies of the Sacred Heart, who are leaving London after many years:

"Words are often inexpressive of what we feel. They are cold and lifeless and poor messengers to convey to others what is in our hearts. They may sparkle and be woven into fiction that is as glow with gratitude, but to us they seem pitifully inadequate on some occasions. We should wish to tell the Religious of the Sacred Heart how deeply we deplore their departure from London. To say that we have always appreciated their labors is but a commonplace. To note how well they have striven to develop and fashion character, that has been the glory and strength of many of our homes, is but to repeat an oft-told tale. To portray the lives of these gifted women who for Christ's sake have parted with the world, more than content with time and talents spent ungrudgingly for others, is to re-echo what is in the hearts of many of our readers. But poor as our words may be we wish them to be our messengers of regret. We have known these Religious for years, and always as ladies of winsome courtesy, exquisite culture and of whole-hearted devotion to the cause of education. Their methods have stood the test of time. Fads may come and go, but the daughters of the saintly Mother Barat move on unperturbed, unafraid of the future, and intent always not on the transient and showy in education, but upon what is permanent and durable. They have turned out of their school-rooms women who are the very salt of the earth. They have guided and sent into the world women who measure things by the standard of eternity, and whose lives flow on in peace and purity to the benefit of the community, and the intimate happiness of many. They have molded women who dignify all that they touch and whose lives far above the commonplace, untouched by what is sordid, are object lessons of the worth and beauty of Catholic education. The ladies who have been graduated from their schools can substantiate our statements.

"We are grateful to them for their splendid record in London. They have been so long and worthily associated with much that we hold in reverence that we are loth to say farewell. We should wish to have them with us, but we know that the call of duty to Religious must not be disregarded. Only their pupils, but all those who have been privileged to witness their work shall ever hold their memory in benediction. They have sown and they have reaped the seed. Transmuted their years into achievement of which we are proud.

"The Catholics of Vancouver need not be told to open their hearts to the Ladies of the Sacred Heart. They know that in their coming, we know, and are anxious to accord a gracious welcome to educators who have always been the dispensers of treasures that ennoble and equip our girls for the world."

Mission Band Say Farewell

The Hodge Mission Band of the Presbyterian Church held their thank offering meeting on Monday evening in the church. The meeting took the form of a farewell to Miss Hodge, of London, who is leaving for foreign mission work in China next week. Miss Hodge addressed the meeting very impressively, assuring the audience that the love of Christ more than compensates for the sacrifice of leaving home and kindred.

Mrs. Stevens, of London, formerly of the China Inland Mission, addressed the meeting in an intensely earnest and interesting manner, as did also Rev. Mr. Hosking, of the Methodist Church, and Rev. Mr. Durnford, of the Anglican Church. Rev. Mr. Durnford occupied the chair very ably. Mrs. (Dr.) Kennedy sang an appropriate solo, "Take My Life and Let It Be." Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Wade sang a duet, "I Surrender All." The choir of the church sang "To the Rescue." Altogether, the meeting was one of the most impressive ever held in Hyde Park. The closing

Annual Picnic of the Dairymen

Two Hundred Attend Outing of the Forest City Milkmen.

London dairymen held their annual picnic to Springbank on Tuesday afternoon, at which nearly two hundred were present. A long program of sports was started early, and everyone had a chance for the prizes that had been donated by several business-men of the city. Every race was well contested, and the judges had to make some close decisions. The feature of the day was the tug-of-war for the silver cup given by the London Dairymen's Association to the team winning it for three years in succession. This is the first year that the cup has been up for competition, and it was won by the team from north of the river captained by J. Tupholme. The northside team won the first two pulls out of three, and the contest was declared theirs. A ball game between the single and married men brought out some unexpected talent, the single men winning by a score of 3 to 1.

SNEEZING SEASON ARRIVES ON TIME CHOO! KER-CHOO!

Annual Exodus of the Sufferers From Hay Fever Has Commenced.

Strange, Uncanny Way of the Pest That Is No Respector of Persons.

Choo! Choo! Choo!!!
Altogether—in chorus, duets, solos, trios, quartets, sextets and a few other varieties and species, the hay fever "victims" are sending forth their appeals—their sneezes and their coughs. Already the season has opened and already the annual exodus of cure-seekers is commencing. They are both leaving and coming to London.

A Weird Thing.

Hay fever is a strange thing. It is a weird thing. It is an uncanny thing. It is all these things and more. Ask any sufferer from hay fever, and hear what he says. There are those who regard London as an ideal spot in which to throw off the thralldom of hay fever, and there are those who live here who are unanimous in their opinion that there was never such a spot in the whole universe to catch the disease, if it could be termed that, so readily.

Be that as it may, the hay feverites are coming, and the hay feverites are going. Muskoka is one Mecca for the tear-streaming, sneezing brotherhood of the hay fever legion. The Pacific coast is another, likewise the Adirondacks and the eastern coast. The lake shore has its quota, and even Parkhill is not forgotten. Out to Godrich, to Stratford and to Woodstock are going some of the sneezers, and there they are also coming to the fair city of London.

No Respector of Persons.

Hay fever in all its eccentricities is no respecter of persons. It has no regard for sex, age or position. Some of its illustrious victims are important cogs in the city's machinery—without them hydro wouldn't light and the city wouldn't run—maybe, but just the same they get hay fever. They may be impervious to the scorn of unkind newspapers, the general disapproval of the common people and the criticism of the city daddies, fathers, burgomasters, guardian angels and aldermen, but when hay fever sets in—"Good-night!" They are no longer invulnerable. They are Achilles-like. However, Achilles was vulnerable through his heel—with the hay fever artists it is the nose and the eyes that are the vulnerable spots.

Has Science Beaten.

Science has answers for nearly everything under the sun but hay fever. The mystery of the summer fever is one of the sealed books of nature. No one can explain it. Maybe it is one of the dictates of nature to take a vacation, for its inexplicable part is the fact that people from Western Ontario can go to Eastern Ontario and be cured, while people from Eastern Ontario can come to Western Ontario and get the cure likewise.

Rag-weed and golden-rod are supposed to cause hay fever. It is claimed that the human body is so constructed that it naturally throws off the poisons or toxins, as they are called, that accumulate, provided people live as they are supposed to live and take a reasonable amount of exercise.

The Explanation.

City people, the ones who are almost the entire clientele of hay fever cure resorts, do not live according to rules of nature, however, and the effect of irregular eating and improper exercise is something that the body is clogged with the poisons that these acts generate. They weaken the power of resistance, and soon the membranes, particularly those of the nose and throat, this leaves the latter in a receptive state for hay fever, when "pollen" from rag-weed or golden-rod is breathed, congestion follows, and then comes the hunt for a cure.

Starts Aug. 15.

Just why the hay fever should always come at a certain time—Aug. 15—is something that self-hypnotism is sometimes blamed for. It is asserted by the hay fever experts, to which title we cannot as yet qualify, that the victims of the sneezing season persuade themselves that they are going to—and they do. Its a kind of telephatic suggestion that is concentrated in the individual who expects the hay fever, and gets it.

However, it might be remarked that the dust of city streets, the little particles that fly through the air after street cars, autos, wagons, and so on, act as aggravators on the weakened membranes of the nose and throat, and that the "tickling sensation" that this causes is the reason why city folk are the ones to be numbered among the also rans in the race for hay fever cures.

London is just an average city so far as hay fever is concerned. City physicians state that they have the ordinary run of hay fever cases this year—no more, no less, than the usual, and just about the average number that are to be found in cities of this size.

It might be remarked, however, that though hay fever is no respecter of persons, it is rather a strange thing that its visitations are mainly among the ranks of those who are of the "classes," rather than the "masses."

Typhoid Epidemic Threatens the Soo

[Canadian Press.]

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 20. — The city is threatened with an epidemic of typhoid fever and since last night ten more cases have been reported to the medical health officer.

Crown Attorney Martin is taking action against the Tagona Water and Light Company for alleged non-compliance with orders of the provincial board of health. Owing to dredging operations alongside of the regular intake the company reverted to the old at the head of the ship canal, and it is claimed that the water is contaminated from sewage of passing vessels.

No notice was given by the company that a change of intake was being made. There are now 20 cases of typhoid.
