COT AND CRADLE STORIES

a new book from the venerable authoress

Mrs. Catharine Parr Trail

With Portrait and Illustrations by

A. Dickson Patterson, R.C.A.

CLOTH, - $1.00

MISS FAITH FENTON, the well-known journalistic writer, pays this tribute to the book: "'Cot and Cradle Stories' is the best collection of child stories that Canada has yet produced. One is glad to be able to say this in absolute sincerity. The stories have a triple charm. They are entertainingly told, choicely yet simply expressed, and written out of an abundance of naturalist's lore—the very spirit of the woodland is in them. Yet greater than any of these is the charm of the venerable authoress' personality—the fresh, childlike spirit that permeates the pretty tales and makes of each a summer-day idyll."

A Grand Missionary Story.

The Bishop's Conversion

BY

ELLEN BLACKMAR MAXWELL.

With an Introduction by Bishop JAMES M.
THOBURN.

Cloth, illustrated, $1.50.

We commend this book to Mission Circles, Epworth Leagues and Sunday-schools as one of the best Missionary stories ever written. It is the story of an American bishop who went to India prejudiced against missions, and there had his indifference converted into enthusiastic missionary zeal.

The Indians of Canada.

THEIR MANNERS, CUSTOMS AND TRADITIONS.

BY JOHN McLEAN, M.A., Ph.D.

With 23 Illustrations. Cloth, $1.00.

CONTENTS: Indian Customs—Camps and Wigwags—Indian Heroes—Indian Traditions—The Land of the Red Men—Frontier Tales—Indian Languages and Literature—The Indian Problem—Christianity and the Red Race—Do Indian Missions Pay?

The author of this valuable work spent nine years among the Blood Indians of the Canadian Northwest, studying their language, customs, mythology and traditions, and has incorporated into this volume the results of his observations and much of the mythology and folk-lore gathered while among them. Dr. McLean was a correspondent for years of the British Association, the Smithsonian Institution, and other learned societies, to whom he supplied much information of a nature akin to that given in the pages of this interesting volume.
