

THE BEST READING.

CANADIANS will find the best poems, the best stories, the best articles by Canadian writers in THE CANADIAN MAGAZINE. The purpose of that publication is to encourage Canadian writers and help to develop a Canadian national sentiment. For seven years it has been doing its work quietly and thoroughly, and now finds itself the leading vehicle of Canadian national thought.

Some recent opinions from the Press show how the MAGAZINE is regarded:

London "British Empire Review."—The Canadian Magazine publishes an excellent Xmas number. . . . full of attractive illustrations and patriotic sentiment.

Toronto "Globe."—The success of the Canadian Magazine is not the least welcome of the signs of the growing time in Canada.

Toronto "Mail and Empire."—The Christmas issue contains over two hundred pages and is by all odds the best issue of our national magazine.

Moncton "Transcript."—The array of contributors is strong.

Brampton "Banner."—Typographically, artistically, and in the quality of its contents, the Canadian Magazine is entitled to be placed on a par with the usual "Harper's," the best American magazine selling at the same price.

Qu'Appelle "Progress."—This magazine is improving rapidly and is fully equal to "Harper's" or any other American periodical.

Ottawa "Free Press."—It affords fresh proof that we can produce in Canada a native article equalling in artistic and literary composition the best British and foreign publications.

Kingston "Whig."—The Canadian Magazine for December is a fine specimen of Canadian journalism.

St. John's "News."—In the character of its literary contributions and in its typographical appearance it can take its stand among the best of the American monthlies.

London "Review of Reviews."—A credit to Canada.

Buffalo "Express."—The Canadian Magazine begins the year exceedingly well.

St. John's, Nfld., "Herald."—The Christmas number of the Canadian Magazine is a superb one with splendid pictures, able articles and timely reviews of current issues, besides a liberal instalment of fiction.

THE CANADIAN MAGAZINE,

$2.50 Per Annum.

TORONTO, ONT.