

NOTES OF IRISH NEWS.

His Eminence Cardinal Logue has issued a very important pastoral letter, which has been read in all the churches of Armagh, and which is equally addressed to the Irish-Catholic people scattered over the whole world. The object of the appeal made is to secure funds to complete and equip the magnificent cathedral of St. Patrick's Primatial See. The Cardinal thus speaks of the inheritance and at the same time the obligations that have been transmitted to him by his predecessors:

"To the zeal of the former Primates and the magnificent generosity of our people, at home and abroad we owe a splendid inheritance which brings its obligations as well as its advantages. Those who have gone before us have spared no toil, shrunk from no sacrifice in their endeavor to raise the noble cathedral which crowns a site said to have been prophetically marked out for it by St. Patrick himself. In the grandeur of its proportions and the beauty of its architecture it still stands unrivalled among the many imposing structures which have sprung up over the land since the blight of persecution has ceased to dwarf the taste and mar the zeal of Catholics. With this grand inheritance has been bequeathed to us the duty of filling in the outlines and giving the part assigned to us in light compared to what has been already done, so that it requires a very serious effort. It appears to me that the time has come when the effort should be made. It is being deferred in order to leave the field clear for works of more pressing need; but to defer it longer would argue indifference to the dignity of our holy religion and the glory of our national Apostle."

So far over one hundred and twenty thousand pounds has been expended in the construction of this temple, which, when completed, will certainly rank amongst the great monuments of Catholic architecture in the world. About twenty thousand pounds, or one hundred thousand dollars will be needed to decorate and equip the cathedral, in order that it may be equally perfect in all its parts. Most of the sums already expended have been made up out of the penny offerings of the poor. The Cardinal has kept pointing out the gigantic undertaking of the completion in consideration of the many calls upon the people of his diocese, but eventually the work had to be done, and he consequently felt that the time has come to make an appeal to the religious fervor, the patriotism, and the generosity of Irishmen the world over. We will take another extract from the eloquent pastoral, and leave to our readers the duty of reflecting upon it, and corresponding to its promptings, if such be within the power of any of them. His Eminence says:

"Could we find the means of soothing the hearts and awakening the sympathies of our Catholic lower-countrymen, we might rest assured that our noble Cathedral would soon become, in every respect, worthy of the hallowed names and glorious traditions which cluster around the old Primatial City. There is not a soul of her green fields or a spot of her venerable streets which has not, at some time, been passed by the footsteps of saints. She has not only been the home, but the fruitful mother of saints and nobles, sending forth in full tide, into the darkness of early ages the mingled light of faith and science. Her children have multiplied, even as the promised seed of Abraham. All these, looking back with loving affection to the land of their birth or their origin, gratefully acknowledge the debt which they owe for the precious jewel of faith. I have often witnessed the strength of these feelings, when I have had the pleasure of conducting some returned exile through our Cathedral, and learned from him the joy and consolation which his pilgrimage to Armagh inspired. I have often, too, wished that he could have borne away with him to the home of his adoption, a more glowing picture of the church which embodied, for him, the memories, associations and traditions of the place. That a like thought was often uppermost in the minds of my visitors I could easily infer from the many promises of assistance spontaneously given to the time should come, for giving to the building those last touches which should bring the details into more complete harmony with the imposing outlines."

ECHOES FROM SCOTLAND.

HOUSING THE POOR.—A pamphlet just published by Mr. S. Connell, of Glasgow, furnishes some interesting particulars as to what is being done in that city for the housing of the poorer classes by the City Council, which rightly recognizes its duty in the matter. The overcrowding of the poorer districts there was long a disgrace to civilization. Large areas existed in the city which were covered with unsanitary tenements in which the poor were huddled together like cattle, with the result that disease was rampant, especially amongst the young children.

A strange difficulty at first beset the social reformers who had the courage to grapple with the problem. It was found that "slum" property was more valuable to the proprietors than ordinary well-built houses and dwellings, and exorbitant prices had to be paid for areas that were afterwards cleared and built upon.

"Thus," as Mr. Connell says, "the whole amount paid was practically paid for the land and this was so great that in many cases it was more than equal to the subsequent value when that same land was covered with modern buildings of a sanitary and satisfactory type."

A law was passed enabling the city to acquire the "slum" property at fair prices, and now tenements with large airy rooms, and every modern sanitary equipment, exist in the place of the old unsightly, and unhealthy dwellings. The results are a much lower death-rate, increased comfort for the working classes, and a higher standard of living. Another gratifying result is that the scheme is a financial success.

MARQUIS OF BUTE ILL.—Latest advices state that the distinguished convert, the Marquis of Bute, is seriously ill from a stroke of paralysis. Hopes are entertained that he may recover.

JOINED THE CHURCH.—Talking about Scottish converts, the latest notable recruit to the true Faith is Mr. Coates, the millionaire thread manufacturer, of Paisley. The news of his conversion was not believed at first; but all doubts were set aside a few days ago when, having been conditionally baptized, he received the Sacrament of Confirmation at Ayr. This conversion has produced a profound sensation throughout Scotland, and cannot fail to be productive of good results in directing the attention of the logical Scottish mind to the untenableness of Knox's creed.

TRANSLATION OF RELICS.—A ceremony the like of which has not since that country became heretical been ever seen before in Scotland took place recently in Glasgow. It was the translation of the relics of St. Valentine, which now repose in the Church of St. Francis in that city. There was a large attendance present. The Rev. Father Sargeant, S. J., preached the sermon. He said in part: They were assembled that day to do honor to one whom God, the King of Kings, desired to honor. For 1900 years the bodies of martyrs had lain in the catacombs, valued only by the veneration which Catholics manifested for those who had died for adherence to the faith. There were thousands there of whom they scarcely knew their names. Out of that number God had chosen for Himself, at various times various saints, and that day He had chosen one as a complement of that work which he had begun some time ago. St. Valentine was one out of a thousand-year ten thousand. They were called upon to honor one whom God Himself desired to honor. Not only did they rejoice at the glory of the saint, but there was a higher motive for this honor. His relics had been translated to Scotland, where the blood of so many martyrs had been so frequently shed, in order perhaps that the spirit of their forefathers might again be kindled within them—in order that they the children of St. Patrick, St. Columba, and St. Augustine might be the first to cultivate the worship of this saint, and perhaps propagate throughout the empire that faith which was their inheritance.

The mother who would be horrified at the thought of letting her daughter wander away to a strange country without guide or counsel, yet permits her to enter that unknown land of womanhood without counsel or caution. Then, in utter ignorance, the maiden must meet physical problems whose solution will affect her whole future life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been well named a "God-send to women." It corrects irregularities and imparts such vigorous vitality to the delicate womanly organs, as fits them for their important functions. Many a nervous, hysterical, peevish girl has been changed to a happy young woman after the use of "Favorite Prescription," has established the sound health of the organs peculiarly feminine.

MARKET REPORT.

GRAIN.—Speculation about the new crop has made things rather quiet in the grain market. Oats and peas are in good demand and prices are firm at 29½c for new oats afloat, and 66c for new peas in store. The demand for feed continues large with little supply to be had. Ontario bran is held at fancy prices; as high as $15 is asked, but no transactions are reported at over $14.25 to $14.50 in bulk on track. Manitoba bran is nominal at $14; shorts are scarce at $16 to $17; and middling at $20 per ton.

EGGS.—With cooler weather the demand for eggs is increasing, and supplies are coming forward in better condition. Prices here are well held, but the English quotations continue rather low for profitable exporting. Strictly fresh laid at 16c to 17c; candled stock at 14c to 14½c; straight receipts at 13½c to 14c; seconds, slow sale at 11c to 12c.

PROVISIONS.—The local provision market is steady and firm on account of rather short supplies of live hogs, but at Western points there is a decided weakness owing to recent decline in the English markets. Exporting is now said to be carried on at a loss, and large packing houses are advising farmers to hold hogs until there is a recovery; $4.75 for select hogs is said to be the top price paid by packers in the West this week, but $5 and even more is freely paid here by local dealers. X

BUTTER.—The butter market is weak under similar conditions as cheese, with the added unfavorable feature of there being no space on steamers to carry forward the quantity offering, and with the prospect of Australian butter getting on the market before Canadians can get theirs all sold. The butter going forward now is almost all held butter, and as much as 16c cheaper than the price which has prevailed recently

Every-day Health.

Success in this world is only for the healthful. The disease-worried worker is a failure.

You can have health—every-day, all-the-year-round health—if you take daily that excellent preventive and cure of disease,

Abbey's Effervescent Salt.

Its constant use will fortify your system, and keep it in condition to withstand disease. Abbey's Effervescent Salt is endorsed and prescribed by some of the most prominent physicians of Continental Europe and Canada.

Here is what the Canada Lancet, one of the leading Medical Journals of Canada, says of it:

"This preparation deserves every good word which is being said of it. A sample is offered to each physician, and most favorably it is commented upon. There is no doubt but that the daily use of Abbey's Effervescent Salt will be a great preventive and aid in warding off attacks of disease."

Sold by all druggists, 60c a bottle, trial size 25c.

for fine fresh stock. On spot there is almost an utter lack of business doing, and it is difficult to give quotations, but 21½c may be given as an outside figure to-day for finest Canadian in boxes.

CHEESE.—An offer of 11½c for Western, and 11½c to 11½c for eastern, would be likely to secure any quantity of cheese to-day. One buyer took 1,000 boxes of easterns off the boat yesterday morning at 11½c, but found that by evening he could not sell his cheese for 11½c. Although the general impression is that Quebec cheese will ultimately move at that figure, dealers do not care to take any more risks at present. Country markets are quiet; offerings are very limited and receipts are small, and it is well that it is so for any forced selling would be liable to cause a panic. The strength of the situation lies solely in the power Canadians possess, of withholding supplies until English buyers meet their views. At Ingersoll 1,050 boxes were offered and 11½c bid, but no sales were made. Campbellford sold some at 10½ to 11 13-16c, but the majority of the offerings were not taken.

WHITEWASH TRUST.—The colored whitewashers of Baltimore have formed a "trust" to uphold the price of labor in their profession. And yet remarks an exchange, there are persons in the South who assert that the blacks never become thoroughly civilized.

Grand September Sale of

575 Ladies' and Misses' Jackets,

AT ABOUT THE COST OF THE CLOTH!

Monday morning, at 8 o'clock, the management will inaugurate a sale of Ladies' and Misses' Jackets that will astonish the citizens of Montreal. For the Misses who are getting ready for school this sale comes in the nick of time. For the Ladies who consider comfort, serviceableness and economy before fashion, it appeals strongly, not that these jackets are un-fashionable, although not in the very latest style, still with some very slight alterations they can be transformed into thorough up-to-date garments. They come in Cloth, Serge and Fancy Tweeds, some are silk lined, others unlined, some handsomely trimmed braid and self applique. The prices these garments are marked are such as to command the interest of every lady who has an eye to money saving. This splendid lot of jackets have been divided into two lots for easy selling, at the following prices:

LOT No. 1, Ladies' and Misses' Jackets—This lot consists of about 300 Ladies' and Misses' Jackets made of Amazone Cloth and Fancy Tweed, in black and colors; many of them are lined silk, others unlined, some trimmed braid and self applique. These garments were formerly sold at $5.00 to $9.50 each.

Make your choice early Monday, at $1.75.

LOT No. 2, Ladies' and Misses' Jackets.—This lot consists of about 275 Ladies' and Misses' Jackets in plain cloth, fancy tweed and serge cloth; most of this lot of jackets are trimmed and silk-lined and come in such colors as fawn, drab, brown, blue and black; any one of these garments means ample satisfaction to the buyer; the original prices ranged from $9.75 to $18.00.

Your choice on Monday for $2.75.

TEACH THE YOUNG

"Off to School."

Idea how to economize; give them newspapers in the school. It's a great scheme. The people now on earth are making history every day. Let the youngsters learn the history of to-day. To-morrow hasn't been touched. Give them good newspapers, however, and show them how to study news. Some people don't like the idea, say there are things that children shouldn't read in newspapers. So there are—so there are. There are things going on that children should not hear and see in spite of you. If you'll always be careful of what you say around home, you'll teach your children right, and if you give them a good newspaper and get them reading GOOD news, you'll probably get them so interested that they will quit reading "Sunday Sun," "Police Gazette," and such things. Teach them to discriminate, show them the ads, get them to dress well and take a pride in their clothes; show them the stores; tell them about the different business methods, stores that sell goods at cost, others below cost, and tell them that ALLAN'S store is the place where they sell goods at close prices, making a large turn over, giving good value to customers and treating all alike to one price. Teach them that truth and fair dealing PAY IN BUSINESS, and if you want to illustrate it, bring them to either of ALLAN'S stores and show them where the crowd is buying Boys' Suits now for Fall wear.

A DISASTROUS STORM.—According to the latest reports the storm which lately swept over Porto Rico killed 2,312 persons and rendered 250,000 destitute. It is estimated that it will require 25,000,000 lbs. of rice and beans and 4,250,000 lbs. of codfish to allow a ration of a pound a day being issued until the crops can be gathered seventeen weeks hence. The cost of these supplies would be $125,000.
