War Means Waste

Just as the European War is causing destruction and waste, so war with public utilities means waste which the public has to pay for in the end.

Not competition but monopoly under regulation brings the best service to the public.

To allow the street railway's resources to be impaired by competition by the jitney is poor policy—the people cannot do without the street railway and will suffer if it cannot operate.

All the B. C. Electric wants is fair play and permission to follow its policy of giving the best service at its disposal to the people.
