

Eggs--	Per dozen
Wholesale prices—Toronto. . . . .	30c.
Wholesale prices—Montreal. . . . .	29c.
Wholesale prices—Chicago . . . . .	19½c. to 20½c.
Wholesale prices—New York. . . . .	24½c.
Prices to country shippers— Winnipeg. . . . .	27c. to 28c.
Prices to country shippers— Kansas City. . . . .	17½c.

That is the reciprocity the hon. gentleman says he wants.

Mr. VALLANCE: There is no reciprocity in that.

Mr. BENNETT: I asked him distinctly if he wanted reciprocity in those items; I named them and he said he did. He wants an opportunity for the American farmer to sell his agricultural products at Canadian prices which are higher than he can get at home. That is the reciprocity they say they want. Let them tell the agriculturists of Quebec and Ontario that that is the form of agricultural reciprocity that is wanted. Go and tell them that you want the American to come into this market to sell his products under such a reciprocity treaty. The only form of treaty that can be arrived at between countries is one that is just and fair to both and one that affords an opportunity for the products of the one country in the markets of the other under the most fair conditions.

Mr. VALLANCE: That is all we want.

Mr. SPEAKER: Order.

Mr. VALLANCE: That is all right but he has suggested it to us.

Mr. SPEAKER: Order.

Mr. BENNETT: If any other agreement is in the minds of those who have been speaking in this house, I can only say that there will be no agreement possible that imposes unfair conditions upon Canadians or that would subject Canadian dairy farmers, butter producers and hog and cattle raisers to the competition of prices received in the United States for comparable products.

Mr. DUFF: Mr. Speaker, with your permission, will the Prime Minister be good enough to give—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. DUFF: Mr. Speaker, with your permission might I ask the Prime Minister to give the comparative prices received for fish in Boston, New York and Halifax or any other part of Canada.

Mr. BENNETT: I have not the figures beside me but I will endeavour to secure them for the hon. gentleman. If he will repair to [Mr. Bennett.]

the library I fancy he will have no difficulty in finding them in a Boston paper.

Mr. DUFF: I do not have to go to the library.

Mr. BENNETT: Perhaps the encyclopaedic mind of the hon. gentleman will provide an answer to his question without reference to the library.

Mr. DUFF: There is no comparison.

Mr. BENNETT: I shall now proceed to deal with another matter, the wheat agreement. The right hon. gentleman devoted considerable time yesterday to dealing with the wheat agreement and stated that this arrangement was eminently unsatisfactory to himself and his party. I think it well that we should start at the beginning of things and I should like to ask hon. gentlemen opposite whether they represent Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta any better than their local governments? I should like to ask them whether they are any closer to the people of Manitoba than the Hon. John Bracken? I should like to ask them whether they are any closer to the people of Alberta than the Hon. J. E. Brownlee? I should like to ask them whether they are any closer to the people of Saskatchewan than the Hon. J. T. M. Anderson?

Mr. VALLANCE: Mr. Speaker—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Sit down.

Mr. SPEAKER: Order.

Mr. VALLANCE: The Prime Minister is asking a question.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. SPEAKER: The hon. member is out of order.

Mr. VALLANCE: The Prime Minister has asked a question.

Mr. SPEAKER: The hon. member has no right to interrupt a speaker when he is addressing the house.

Mr. VALLANCE: With all deference to Your Honour may I suggest—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. SPEAKER: The hon. gentleman should take his seat.

Mr. VALLANCE: With all deference to Your Honour may I ask—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Sit down.

Mr. VALLANCE: The Prime Minister has asked a question.