The Economist, London, England,
January 6, 1912. Supplement.

"It is one of the most important books of the year on economic theory. . . ."

Westminster Gazette, London, England,
November 25, 1911.

"To the economist, to the general reader, most of all, perhaps, to the lecturer and the student we can recommend the book very warmly."

Canadian Finance, Vol. III, No. 3, Feb. 7, 1912.

"To investors, and business men generally, its chapters will be found to contain matter of very direct and practical bearing."

Moody's Magazine, October, 1911,
New York City.

"His suggestion of a new and more stable standard of value is so important, though he says that years of education of the public must precede any attempt to put it into practice, that we have obtained permission of the Macmillan Company, publishers of the book, to present here an abstract of the professor's proposal.

"Probably no modern writer has studied this question more deeply than Professor Fisher, and his suggestion of a new standard of value deserves the careful thought of every banker, investor, and business man.
