Canada's Greatest Store.

Extreme Novelties

We're revelling this Spring in the triumph of extreme style. So many and so lovely goods were never before marshalled under one banner, and 1896 stands pre-eminent with the crowning glories of dress novelty. Each year we've been lifting the standard a bit higher, until now we've reached the plane of rare and exclusive things. The store is for the rich as well as the poor, and it serves both better by reason of way, we take it, will not concede Se serving each so well.

Some of the daintiest of new goods and some of the handsomest of late novelties are confined to us exclusively. We've our own buyers in London and Paris all the time-not merely once or twice a year. And if goods are worthy of being here we have them in all their possibilities.

That applies more particularly to Millinery, Wraps and Dress Goods. Its emphasis is strongest just now with Easter only a step away and everybody wanting something out of the Ladies' Costumes!

A magnificent stock, exactly suited to the wants and wishes of well-dressed ladies. Ample variety, with the costumes displayed so that every point of originality and elegance and every feature of interest can be seen. It's worth something to save the fuss and bother of dress-making. It's worth still more to get precisely what you want just when you want it. If you want to know the prevailing style in Wrap or Costume take elevator to first floor. An equal collection of cloaks does not exist in Canada and prices are moderate enough to win your interest. Only come as soon as you can! The choicest styles are going first as a matter of course.

Not merely a few sample garments, but a proper range of sizes and styles from the men who make each style best. The markets of the world are open to us. We pick with your interest in mind as well as our own, and these costumes show how thoroughly we've anticipated your wishes:

Boots and Shoes!

We've been on a foraging expedition-took along all the money we wanted and turned it into shoes. Surprising what ready cash will do when it comes to making a bargain. In addition to the regular stock we have certain special lines—the only trouble is we haven't enough of them. But there is nothing to hinder you getting first choice of these:

Ladies' Extra Choice French. Kid Ladies' Tan Goat Kid Congress,

We sell only those sorts of boots and shoes the people ought to have. We do not keep cheap kinds because of their cheapness. We sell the best for as little as we dare and as small a

Money-Saving Chances

There's nothing we like better than to save you money. Fact. It's as good as a gold mine to us, this being able to mark prices below the average. People find it out and come and keep coming. There's absolutely no limit to the trade we can get with values leaning your way as they do in these:

THE PEOPLE WILL SETTLE IT. We anticipate that any settlemen reached in the conference this week at Winnipeg between the representatives of the two governments will be un-satisfactory to the minority claimarate schools. He may be willing, lowever, to remove any actual or apsectarian features that now naracterize the Public schools of Manitoba, and provide for religious epresentatives of the various denom-nations. This, we believe, is as far as clergy. If the negotiations fail, the issue then comes to be what The World stated yesterday namely, not a constidoing justice to a minority, nor an ssue involving obedience to a decision of Her Majesty's Privy Council, but solely a political issue, to be settled by the people in the ordinary course of a general election. Under these circumstances, the minority ought to arefully weigh the possibilities of the eople deciding adversely to their conpledged to a policy of non-interven-tion. Looking at the matter in this conclusion that it is in their interests to accept what Mr. Greenway will give in good grace rather than leave the question to the people and run the risk of receiving no consideration whatever. A half loaf is better than nothing. Even a piece of bread is better than no bread at all.

MORTGAGE COVENANTS.

Chief Justice Armour is reported to have said during the pro-gress of a case before him on Monday en by the purchaser in lieu of the covenant to pay. This is the practice that prevalls in several of the United States, and we think it is preferable to our own system. When a bond is demanded, the purchaser is given explicit notice of the obligation he assumes. In the case of the covenant, the purchaser oftentimes fails to read it, and does not comprehend the effect of the document he is signing. But, apart from this, the balance of convenince is greatly in favor of a nocevenant mortgage. As we have learned by experience in Toronto, the covenant clause has given no end of apart from this, the balance of convenience is greatly in favor of a noceiver and mortgage. As we have learned by experience in Toronto, the coverant clause has given no end of trouble to innocent purchasers of real estate. Ten years after disposing of a property the seller may find himself in trouble over a covenant which he assumed, it may be, years previous to his disposal of it. In the meantime the second purchaser may have let the property go to wreck, or the property may have been humand a coverage of the coverage of the property may have been humand a coverage of the coverage the second purchaser may have let the property go to wreck, or the property may have been burned down without insurance, or other things over which the original mortgagor has no control may happen to depreciate the property below the value of the mortgage. These complications not only embarrass real estate transactions, but they involve a positive injustice to many of those who are involved in them. All these difficulties would be obviated if real estate was sold solel yon its own merits, as it would be if the covenant clause were eliminated from our morty gazes.

What fun the public would have in poking these would-be critics with sticks and in throwing peanuts in to them! This would really prove the most interesting part of the entertainment. IMPORTANT DECISION.

Surely Weld Liable in a Life Assurance Company's Suit.

An important judgment has just been given by Judge McDougall in the suit of the Standard Life Assurance Co. against Angus McCrimmon, McCrimmon became surety in a bond for $500 for Elijah Moore, who afterwards defaulted in paying $100. The company had taken Moore's note for $100 without the knowledge or consent of McCrimmon. The company sued Moore and got a judgment for $102 and costs. The company then sued McCrimmon on the bond, which contained a clause stating that the liability of sureties was coextensive with that of the principal except as to the amount. The defendant claimed that the giving of time in accepting Moore's note without McCrimmon's knowledge or consent and the subsequent suit in the Division Court relieved the defendant from all liability. Decision was given in favor of the plaintiff.

to have said during the progress of a case before him on Monday last, that a man should not get out of his liability on a mortgage covenant by buying the property in his wife's name. We think the learned Chief Justice's dictum is neither morally nor legally defensible. When the owner of a piece of property is requested to sell it to a married woman, there is no law compelling him to make the sale. If he is not satisfied with the security of the land itself, in addition to the covenant of the purchaser, whoever he or she may be, he can refuse to part with his property. That is all there is in the deal. There is nothing morally or legally wrong about it. We not only believe that a man is justified in purchasing property through a man of straw, but we go further and say that the covenant clause should be abolished altogether from mortgages. If necessary, a personal bond can be given by the purchaser in lieu of the covenant to pay. This is the practice that prevalls in several of the United

THE PRIZE POSTER EXPLANATION.

The secretary of the Horse Show has favored the public with an official explanation of the awarding of the prize in the poster competition. The chief characteristic of the explanation, outside of its length, is the fact that it doesn't seem to explain anything. It religiously withholds the names of the critics who made the decision. This looks bad, to say the least. The presumption of the committee's failure to a disclose its identity is that it is ashamed of itself and of its decision. This, at least, is a fair inference, and it is the one that the public will draw. It appears from the secretary's explanation that the prize poster has the merit of being able to be seen across the street.

This would, indeed, be a unique feature if it were not for the fact that any and all of the designs submitted can be seen across the street.

This would, indeed, be a unique feature if it were not for the fact that any and all of the designs submitted can be seen across the street, and the figures distinctly recognized. All you have to do to effect this is to make the lithograph large enough. The official explanation to the public is just about as satisfactory as the decision of the committee of critics. The Horse Show people have got a lot of free advertising over this poster controversy. There was a large attended to the occasion proved a most enjoyable one.

President Henry O'Hara began the speech-making with a loyal address in proposing "The Queen." Col. G. T. Denison, speaking in response to "Army Navy and Volunteers," referred to England's isolated position among the nations, and said that, in view of the great preparations now under way, the world could not possibly be far from war, and with England at war, he asked, how long would the United States keep out of it? "God knows," said the Colonel, "we don't want war with that country, but there is great danger before us, for the United States is watching with great jealousy the growth and development of Canada, which is destined to control transcontinental trade, and which is possessed of such great agricultural and mineral resources. They want Canada, and we must be ready."

MIDNIGHT MECHANICS.

There is no joy in this world equal to the happiness of motherhood. A woman finds ample compensation for her trials and worries and bothers in the soft, clinging little body nestling close to her own—in the trustful clinging of the little hands, and the love light in the little eyes.

A woman's health is her dearest possession. Good looks, good times, happiness, love and its continuance, depend on her health. Almost all of the sickness of women is traceable directly or indirectly to some derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. Troubles of this kind are often neglected because a very natural and proper modesty keeps women away from physicians, whose insistence upon examination and local treatment is generally as useless as it is common. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will do more for them than 99 doctors in 100. It will do more than the hundredth doctor can unless he prescribes it. It is a prescription of Doctor Pierce, who for 30 years has been chief consulting physician of the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, at Buffalo.

"I lost six bables by untimely births. In the eighth month of my seventh preguancy, as usual, I was taken ill. The family doctor was called. He said there was no help for me. The baby must be born. I grieved excessively. I persuaded my husband against the physician's advice, to get me Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Four doses quieted my pains. That child was born at full time. It is three years old, and I am the happiest mother in the world."
