The Exploit the Yukon.

The question has no doubt occurred to many, how are Canadians to reap some of the wealth of the Yukon and its tributary, the Klondike River region? This new famous territory belongs to Canada and now that the wealth of 'ts placer mines has been ascertained beyond a doubt. Canadian enterprise and energy will be directed there. The country is so hard to reach that only well-equipped parties can get there, and all this requires capital. Companies at Seattle and the American coast cities are already beginning to reap dividends and a new Canadian company, officered by representative Canadians, has been formed, the British American Prospecting and Development Company, to exploit this region. That this is the lest way to carry on operations the history of other similar corporations shows. The Hudson Pay Company, the East India Company and many others could be mentioned in this connection, and the British American Company to equip an expedition of the company to equip an expedition of the company to equip an expedition of the company and work them in a thorough, business-like manner.
