City Dealers First to Break Contract-Big Plowing Match at New Scotland.

"The day has gone by when the Toronto Milk Producers' Association can hold the city up," said R. W. Dockeray, manager Acme Dairy Co., to The World last night, "Milk can be bought from a comparatively long distance." continued Mr. Dockeray, and as a matter of fact the further you go from the city the better milk you get. I never start to buy my milk, which comes largely over the Metropolitan, until north of Thornhill. The tendency around the city is to take off too much of the cream, and the substitution of cheaper foods. The supply of milk was never so abundant as during this summer and fall, and unless an exceptional season occurs. I do not see how there can be any scarcity in this city there can be any scarcity in this city in the future."

This statement practically voices the opinion of Mr. Dockeray, and represents also fairly well that of a number of other city dealers with respect to the present trouble, precipitated in a measure by the action of the Don School House and Wexford meetings of Monday night.
