The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

TERROR is human; to admit one's errors to one's self, not divine, but at least one rung up the ladder between man and divinity.

Which is by way of introducing a few words on the weakness of self justification.

Suppose you have done an unkind or thoughtless or selfish thing, and you are taxed with it, you defend yourself of your accusers, of course. That's as much a natural instinct as it is to put up your arm to ward off a blow.

There ARE men who have the courage and control and high-mindedness to temper this instinct, and to review an accusation of themselves as calmly and pass upon it as fairly, as they would upon another man's sin or mistake.

But these are rare men.

We can't all do that.

But there is one thing we can all do, and that is not to be the kind of coward who will never admit their own faults and mistakes even to themselves.

The other day you lost your temper and said a lot of harsh and undesired things to your very good friend. He stood it for a while and then he lost his, and told you what an ill tempered brute you were, and you asserted that you were nothing of the sort, and told him all the reasons you had for losing your temper, and what a wonder it was you were able to keep it at all, with anyone as exasperating as he was, around.

And now you are alone and are thinking over that explosion of yours, you can do one of two things.

You can wallow in the mire of self-justification and say, "He shouldn't have said what he did about my work." "He is too quick to go off the handle." "He has said much worse things to me and I have just told him to go as far as he liked." "He hasn't been treating me square lately, anyway."

Or you can face your fault fairly and squarely and say: "I don't wonder he called me an ill-tempered brute. I was. I've got the worst temper this side of the Mississippi."

Tell me which of these two you do and I will tell you whether you are the kind of man who grows in character with the years or not.

The basis of all development is the admission of faults and mistakes. The man who continually wears a screen of cowardly self-justification between himself and his faults can't develop any more than a plant can develop screened from the sun.

Next time you have committed a fault or made a mistake and you are reviewing it in your mind, why don't you try, instead of following your natural instinct to justify yourself, to take a new tack and try to judge yourself as justly as if you were thinking of the case of a third person.

CHEERY NOTE
IN FAREWELL OF EARL GREY

Replying to Address, Governor
General Declares Canada the
"Rudder of the Empire"

Sees Wonderful Future for Us

Ottawa, May 6.—Replying to the address of parliament to Lord and Lady Grey, the retiring governor-general said:—

"It is with feelings of no ordinary emotion that I acknowledge the great honor conferred upon me today by the parliament of the dominion. That address, the kind and friendly speeches of its members and the house of commons, have caused me to realize afresh how great has been the interest and enjoyment of my life in Canada and how sincere and heartfelt is the regret with which I and all the members of my family view the approaching termination of my term."

"Thanks to increased transportation facilities, thanks more to the great kindness which I have received in every part of the dominion, I have had abundant opportunity, probably more abundant than has ever been vouchsafed to man, to make myself closely acquainted with the high hopes and confident beliefs of the Canadian people, to watch with unintermitted and ever increasing delight the rapid and unobstructed unfolding of your amazing development and to form a more or less adequate estimate of your tremendous potentialities."

"Gentlemen, when I reflect on the vastness of your area, on the fertility of your soil, on the unlimited wealth of your natural resources, which I rejoice you are determined scientifically to conserve, as well as vigorously to develop, when I reflect upon the invigorating nature of your climate and on the strenuous character of your people, when I reflect on all these great advantages which you possess in such abundant and exceptional degree, then, gentlemen, I feel as convinced, as I am tomorrow's sun will rise, that if you keep true to the highest ideals of duty and disinterested service, nothing can prevent you from becoming, and perhaps before the close of the present century, not only the granary but the heart and soul and rudder of the empire."

"I shall be my happy privilege on my return to England to submit to the king an expression of your devotion to his throne and person, also to impress upon his majesty, and on the people of the British Isles, that you, the people of Canada, are united in your high resolve to accomplish your part in the maintenance and building of the empire of which, if you are not afraid of the greatness of your destiny, you will one day become the controlling part."

"Gentlemen, Lady Grey and my daughters are greatly touched by your friendly expressions toward them. There is no one who is more conscious than I am that the success which has attended my government is due in a large measure to the whole-hearted co-operation I have received from them, and to their individual spontaneous effort to help in good and disinterested movements having for their

THE REASON WHY

You don't taste sauce? Perhaps not.

K.—The Reason Why—No 5

but if you look for the reason why, you will find it in the fact that the word "sauce" suggests to your mind a thin, dark, hot-tasting fluid, which, if taken at dinner, runs all over the table, saturates the vegetables, and eventually leaves a disagreeable burning sensation in the mouth.

The wonder that there should be such circumstances, you do not taste sauce—but, change the circumstances and the taste will probably change.

A new sauce has been introduced by the Midland Sugar Company of England, which is H. P. Sauce, and is quite different from the old-fashioned sauce referred to.

H. P. Sauce has proved an immediate success and is now sold regularly by those who never previously took sauce. It is prepared by blending together the choicest Oriental fruits and spices with pure malt vinegar.

The manufacturers' secret process produces a thick, fruity sauce, which, if poured on the top of the plate, can be eaten with the meat, like mustard.

H. P. Sauce is also used very extensively in the kitchen, for housekeepers have discovered that old family dishes, in which everyone has grown tired, become tempting and delicious when enriched and cultured with H. P.

All family grocers are selling H. P. Sauce. Of course its success has brought many imitations, but if you ask for H. P. and see that those letters appear on each label, you will preclude the possibility of disappointment.

At a meeting of the hospital commissioners yesterday afternoon the staff of the institution was reappointed. Three new men were elected to the consulting staff. Their names are: Dr. W. F. Roberts, of the North End; Dr. J. M. Curran, of Fairview, and Dr. S. H. McDonald, Waterloo street. The actual accounts were passed and other routine business transacted.

JARVIS WILSON HONORED ON HIS 94TH BIRTHDAY

Yesterday was the ninety-fourth birthday of Jarvis Wilson, of west St. John, one of the most prominent men in the city. He is still enjoying good health. Last night at his residence, 28 Charlotte street, his birthday was fittingly commemorated. A delegation of fellow Masons visited his home and Worshipful Master John Emerson, of the Masonic order, presented Mr. Wilson with a magnificent bouquet containing ninety-four carnations.

Mr. Wilson spoke feelingly in accepting the token. He was also the recipient of congratulations from a large number of citizens. Mr. Wilson has two sons, Samuel K. Wilson and George Wilson, both lawyers, the former with his father, under the firm name of Jarvis Wilson.

The children of Samuel are Jarvis, of John R. Moore & Co., Ltd.; William C., druggist, of West End; Mrs. W. J. Watson, of West End, and Miss Margaret Wilson, of the city. George Wilson's children are Jarvis, of the Western Union; George, of Montreal, and Miss B. Wilson, of the high school teaching staff. Miss Una Wilson is a daughter of W. C. Wilson.

Mr. Wilson was born in Ireland and came to St. John in 1833, originally settling in the North End, but later removed to the west side, where he has resided for about 61 years. For the past half century he has been engaged in the lumber business. Last year he was made an honorary deacon of the Grand Masonic Lodge of the province and since 1882 he has been attached to the Carleton Union Lodge of the Masonic order. He served on the aldermanic board of the city for many years and for the past forty years he has been an elder in the Carleton Presbyterian church.
