Mother Charged With Murder of Babies

Long Investigation Followed Husband's Complaint of Disappearance—Conflicting Statements Made by Woman—Now Says All a Hoax.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 16.—A remarkable story was revealed here in the arrest on the charge of double murder, of Mrs. Haasi McNally, twenty-six years old, formerly of Hammond, Ind., now of this city. It is alleged by Frank McNally, aged fifty years, and husband of the woman, that she murdered her twins, born on December 8, 1921. The children disappeared, according to McNally, between January 25 and February 1, 1922.

The arrest of Mrs. McNally followed an investigation which occupied several months by the Hammond authorities, according to Prosecutor Jellison. Twice the woman escaped the clutches of the law, the state's attorney says, because of her feasible explanation of the series of astonishing circumstances surrounding her married life.

In order to detain the woman until the Hammond authorities could complete their investigation, Mrs. McNally was arrested and held on a technical charge of assault and battery, this charge also having been preferred by her husband, who traced her to South Bend.

Mrs. McNally, who is a trained nurse, professed to see physical defects in the twins soon after their birth, the husband says, and she left her home in Hammond on January 25, ostensibly to place the children in a Chicago hospital for treatment. She returned home soon, according to her husband, and explained that the twins would be left in the hospital until February.

Prosecutor Jellison says McNally told him that on February 1 the woman again went to Chicago and on her return had with her the supposed children—in reality two large dolls.

"The twins are still very ill and have weak eyes," it is alleged she told her husband, "and they must be kept in a darkened room and remain undisturbed. It will be some time before you can see them."

McNally said he was content to rely on the experience of his wife, because she had been a nurse. He complied with Mrs. McNally's request for a twin baby carriage.

In May, McNally informed Jellison he discovered by accident that the supposed babies were dolls. At the same time the discovery also was made by neighbors, and the Hamilton police were notified.

Mrs. McNally explained to the authorities that she had the babies still in a hospital, and the presence of the dolls in her house was accepted as one of her eccentricities.

In the meantime the woman made several trips to Chicago, and finally disappeared altogether from Hammond, later being located in South Bend.

After her arrest she was taken before the state's attorney and Chief of Police Lane and questioned. She was confronted with her husband's story, and declared the twins were now in the care of a family at Green Bay, Wis. Later she admitted that she was trying to mislead the authorities. Maintaining her innocence, she declared that she had never given birth to twins, and that the incident of the dolls was merely a hoax which she played on her husband.

Mrs. McNally was taken to Hammond by a detective from that place.

STATE FUNERAL FOR H. H. LAWSON

Australian Poet Penniless While Alive, is Honored in Death.

London, Oct. 17.—(Canadian Press)—They gave Henry Hertzberg Lawson, Australian poet and novelist, a state funeral in Sydney, New South Wales, described it as an "imposing affair, fitting the occasion of the laying away of the nation's sweet singer, and there was due applause from the world at large to this splendid recognition of a poet's worth—when he was dead.

While he was alive, however, Poet Lawson did not fare so well. "Australia's greatest minstrel," as he was called at the time of the funeral, died penniless. Indeed, if it had not been for the public funeral under government auspices he would have been buried in a pauper's grave. He had been the recipient of a small pension from the government for some time before his death, and this should be ascribed to the State of New South Wales with proper appreciation, for was it not virtually a pioneer in the gracious act of pensioning a poet?

Still, Lawson lived in poverty. The people did not realize that they had a poet in their country until he was laid away with "funeral trappings" being fitting government recognition. Then they began to buy his books.

Poor as he was, Poet Lawson left a will. All his worldly belongings were mentioned in bequests. These were: two suits of clothes, an overcoat, a necktie, a collar stud, a pen, a pipe, a tin matchbox, a pair of spectacles, a walking stick, and two packages of tobacco.

"I find this announcement is a story of a pretty girl who refused to let her head be turned by admiration and attention at Atlantic City. Her friends say her most persistent suitor was a young millionaire of the States." She did not forget her Canadian sweetheart, however, nor did she wish to desert her Canadian home for New York or Hollywood, and the simple wedding is the result.

RUSE MELTS BEAUTY'S ICE

Oxford Students Don Stewards' Togs to Make Acquaintance.

The Cunarder Berengaria sailed from New York on Friday for Southampton and Cherbourg with a good number of passengers in her first cabin, including Edward Majoribanks, an Oxford undergraduate and a relative of Lord Tweedmouth, who came here to debate at Harvard. He arrived two weeks ago on the Curaminis of the same line and appeared to have been very much impressed with the beauty of American women.

With him was M. C. Hollis, another Oxford undergraduate who vouched for the truth of this story. There was a charming American girl in the first cabin traveling alone, who held aloof from the other passengers. Mr. Majoribanks sat nearby and explained the ruse. She laughed and they all three became friends.

SUGGESTIONS FOR USING SUBSTITUTES FOR AMERICAN ANTHRACITE IN ORDINARY HOUSE FURNACES

1. No change is necessary in furnace. Build the fire in the usual way.
2. Open all the drafts and leave them open for about ten minutes. This is to allow the smoke and gases to pass out of the chimney.
3. To get the best results in applying coal to the fire use a little less than in the case of Anthracite and apply coal often.
4. After the coal has been burning for about ten minutes or long enough for the smoke and gases to have been expelled, close up all the drafts except the chimney drafts, which should be left partially open.
5. When refiring, first take a bar or poker and break up the crust of coal that forms on the top of a Bituminous coal fire, then apply fresh coal, following the rule already given for leaving drafts open. A handful or two of coarse salt scattered evenly over top of Bituminous coal freshly applied to fire will prevent formation of tar and other substances adhering to sides of furnace, it will form a gas thereby intensifying the heat and eliminating smoke.
6. Bituminous coal will probably be in varying sizes and contain some slack. The lumps should be burned in the day time and the fire banked with smaller coal and slack at night, leaving a small opening at the top to let the air through.
7. When making the last fire at night shake out the fine ash that will be clogging the openings in the grate. Your grates will last far longer if kept clean.
8. By throwing a moderate amount of water upon the Bituminous pile at the point from which the coal is taken out the dust and dirt objection is largely overcome, as well as reducing the amount of smoke when the coal is first thrown on the fire.
9. In the morning, before opening the furnace door, the chimney and bottom drafts should be first opened.
10. With Bituminous Coal more soot is formed in stovepipes, flues and chimneys than in case of Anthracite; and furnace, furnace pipes and chimneys should be cleaned frequently. Hot water furnaces should be cleaned every day or so, and the furnace pipes every two or three weeks. Soot will not accumulate so quickly if a small quantity of zinc shavings are occasionally thrown into the fire.
11. Welsh Anthracite and Welsh Dry Coal and "Briquettes" should be fired in practically the same manner as Pennsylvania Anthracite. The small screenings should be fired on top of the larger coal when the fire is well kindled.
12. If Coke is used care must be taken to keep the ash pan free of ashes. If allowed to accumulate the grates may be burnt out. It is also good to keep a little water in the ash pan if tight enough to hold it.
