

DOUBLE-CROSSED FEMALE RAFFLES MAKES CONFESSION

Posed as Governess and Stole $50,000 Worth of Jewellery for Her Lover — Married Another Woman and Fled to Canada.

New York, July 13.—Finding that she had been scorned and tricked by the man for whom she stole jewelry worth more than $50,000 while she posed as a governess in the homes of wealthy New York families, Jean Cunningham, twenty-two years old, confessed to the police that she systematically robbed her employers and turned the loot over to her lover.

She told the police that for all the jewelry stolen by her in New York, Philadelphia and Astoria, Ore., she had received only $100, which had been doled out to her by the man for whom she stole.

When asked what she had done with the diamonds and other valuables stolen by her, she said she had sold them to a jeweler in New York, who had given her $100 for them. She said she had then fled to Canada.

The girl seemed frozen with horror. She grabbed the clipping and greedily devoured its laconic message. Then she broke down and confessed that she had been induced to pose as governess and work in the homes of the wealthy until she got her chance to make a rich haul.

"I gave him ever bit, stole," sobbed the girl. "He was glad to save it. He would buy a home and then we would have enough to live the rest of our lives. All I ever got out of about $50,000 was a stinky little $100. This he handed me in small amounts and I managed to get along. All the time he kept telling me he was looking forward to the time when I wouldn't have to steal more and when we would be married. And while I was knocking on the penitentiary door for his sake he was chasing around with that black-haired cat he married."

"I loved him enough to ruin my life for him, to make myself a thief, to rob the man she loved and who had tricked her. Then she wrote: 'You double-crossed me. You married Carmen. You lived a lie. I will never forgive you. I have told the police everything.'"

The city is being combed for the forger of the self-confessed female raffles, but so far not a trace has been found of either the man or the other woman in the case. It is believed they have fled to Canada.
