LADIES' BOLEERO COSTUME.

The home dressmaker should, by all means, attempt one of the smart little boleo jackets now so fashionable. The one shown here accompanies a skirt of per-top design, and the entire costume is carried out in light summer serge, trimmed with a collar and vest of white pique. Three and one-half yards of 34-inch material are required to make the dress, with 1 yard of 34-inch linen for the vest and collar.

All of the various parts of the pattern may be cut from a fold of the goods, the lily collar and back being placed on a lengthwise fold, the others on a lengthwise thread. If the Japanese collar is to be used instead, the back should be cut out at the front and back on double "oo" perforations.

In making, the under-seam and shoulder seams are closed, after the darts in front have been taken up. The jacket is now fitted.

Close seam of lily collar as notched; bone along seam. Turn under edge on slip perforations. Adjust to position as illustrated, center-backs even; tack back edge underneath front of boleo and close, meeting front edge (indicated by double "oo" perforations), or roll back from lower edge as illustrated.

For the two seam sleeves close seams as notched, easing fullness between notches at elbow. Gather upper edge between double "oo" perforations. Close out seam as notched, sew to sleeve as notched. Sew sleeve in armhole, inside seams at notch in front.

Finish with a belt of taffeta or wear one of the little ready-made veste belts with pockets at each side.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES

Live topics of general interest in the city were discussed in several of the city churches yesterday. Rev. Ralph J. Houghton of the Congregational church gave some striking instances of social ills in the city and quoted several instances where the living wage was too small. He also condemned the taxation system which, he said, favored the wealthy man and real estate owners. He said that political life was too often considered as a chance to oppress the poor and make money easily.

Rev. J. J. McCaskill in St. Matthew's church last evening condemned the modern easy attitude of the church toward evil.

Rev. W. H. Barnaclough warned his congregation in Centenary church last evening against the Mormon missionaries at work in St. John. He said that the Mormon church was trying to gain control in the United States and Canada. He said that among them young women who do not consent to "celestial marriage" are little better than white slaves. In the Fairville Baptist church, Rev. P. R. Hayward in discussing the problem of work among the boys of St. John, said that living conditions must be changed, a social sense developed, the church work widened and the home life strengthened.

Rev. M. E. Conroy, the newly appointed pastor of the Portland Methodist church preached his first sermon to a large congregation in the morning and made a fine impression on his hearers. He again addressed a large audience in the evening.
