From some twenty years close study of the habits of bees, I have been able to throw some light on the subject. I have also been that we could hardly hold on to them, aided by the experience of many apiarians while Gen. Rene, who had just come up, in various sections of the country.

I have found that hives should contain questioned them. They said the men we about 2. 00 cubic inches clear to do best. The best shape is either square or slight ly oblong. No chambers but caps to remove at leasure. The communication from the lower to the upper section to be through inch and a quarter holes, and the more of them the bet ter. Any patent hive that professes any other qualities than right dimensions, shape and the simplification of managing bees, is a humbug. There is no value in any hive having its series of drawers professing to be valuable for receiving the combs, or changing bees from old to new combs by their own natural labors, Hives that divide in two parts vertically to form swarms ar-tificially, had better be used for kindling wood. Believe no man who comes forward with a tissue of representations that he has invented a hive, "moth proof." It will not be done in our day. The only proof against the moth lies in the strength of the family, and in our watchfulness in destroy ing this enemy to bees in any way possible Bees cannot be kept with profit and success without care and attention. When they lack honey they must be fed. Feeding may be easily effected at this season by turning the hives over, and laying combs of honey upon the combs in the hive, or a piece of empty comb may be filled with liquid honey, and laid thereon. In April when the bees come out freely, you may feed syrup of sugar made by heating sugar and water. honey will set them to robbing. Be careful to keep the entrances contracted so that but few bees can pass at a time, least a general robbery take place whether fed or not. You need never fear rabbing if you attend to this point in the spring and fall.
