A Broken Wedding Ring

By Bertha M. Clay

in the sunlight; the flowers were of every imaginable hue. The whole formed a picture so brilliant that even the duchess could not refrain from a cry of delight.

"It is the most beautiful place I have ever seen," she said. "You would not think it was darkened by a tragedy," observed Sir Basil.

"Nor is it," said the duchess, quickly. "Life and death are everywhere side by side. You must try to forget; think of the bright side. Etiquette compelled Sir Basil to give the duchess his arm as he led the way up the broad marble steps. She looked at the statues with admiration.

"This reminds me of Italy," said Leah—"fountains, flowers and marble statues."

He turned to her eagerly. "You like it, then?" he asked, anxiously. "I think it is beautiful, and I am pleased that you agree with me."

They passed into the entrance hall, with its deep groined roof, its old-fashioned stained-glass windows and armor, its stained oak flooring and exotics.

With graceful courtesy Sir Basil bade them welcome and Leah, looking at his face, saw that it was deadly pale.

"Was this the place," she asked, "where the accident?"

"Yes," he replied; "it was here that my poor sister rushed, enveloped in flames; and just here where these white lilies stand, she fell down to die. By my mother's orders they are kept there. Whenever I pass, I seem to see the flying figure again, and hear my sister's cry."

Leah stepped forward and stood by the white lilies.

"Look at me," she said, flushing slightly, "as I stand here; it will fill your mind with fresh thoughts."

"It may well do so," thought the duchess, as she noticed the unconscious grace and beauty of the girl's attitude. Would he ever, as he passed through the hall where his fair young sister had met so sad a fate, forget the girl now standing there with her pleading passionate face, trying to make sweet what had been so bitter to him?

"Thank you," he replied, simply. "You have been kind to me, Miss Hatton, from the first happy meeting. I saw you; you add to your goodness by giving me a pleasant memory."

Leah face showed her delight; it was indeed pleasant to her to hear such words of commendation from him. But the duchess said to herself, "Pretty little scene—sentimental enough; but there is no love, Sir Basil, on your side."

Then the other visitors reached the hall. There was a discussion as to the roof and the armor, and as to the date of a fine old window and then they passed on to the library. Sir Basil made a charming and hospitable host. As the day wore on, Leah was pleased to see that his face brightened, and that several times it lost the melancholy expression that had seemed like a cloud over it. He was very attentive to her; he lingered by her side and showed her the chief objects of attraction.

The duchess summed up the whole situation briefly. Leah had loved him at first sight; but, if ever he learned to love her, it would be after months of friendship. That day spent at Glen was one of the happiest in Leah's life, and the memory of it was to her like a strain of sweet music in which there was no discord.

Chapter XX. As the days passed on, the intimacy between Leah and the baronet increased. The general grew warmly attached to Sir Basil. He said—what was a great thing for him to say—that, if Heaven had blessed him with a son, he should have liked him to resemble Sir Basil. All the visitors—and they were many—admired and liked him; he was a general favorite, and he spent far more of his time at Brentwood than at Glen.

With every day that dawned, with every bright moon that waxed and waned, Leah's love deepened. The whole world was as nothing to her, she became absorbed in this one passion—it was her life, her all. There are some to whom this fatal gift of a great love is given. They are the happiest, even as they are the most miserable; they reach the highest bliss that life offers, and they know the most of bitter its pains.

No one warned Leah. The duchess looked on interested, as she would have been in any trial of skill or any struggle for mastery. She did not interfere either by word or look. She knew it was useless. She never ceased wondering now it was that Leah, who had refused some of the best offers in England, had given her heart and soul at first sight to this man.

Leah was hardly the same girl in Sir Basil's presence, her face, her voice, her manner changed completely; her love transfigured her. If he touched her dress in passing, she trembled; if he touched her hand in greeting, she grew pale as the petals of a white lily; when she sang for him, all the pent-up passion of her soul seemed to go out

WHEN OTHERS FAIL

Zam-Buk cures the most stubborn skin diseases and sores. This is because Zam-Buk's method of healing is entirely different and superior to that of ordinary ointments! When Zam-Buk is applied it does not remain on the surface skin, as an ordinary ointment would. Because of its unusual refinement it penetrates to the underlying tissues. This is where all skin troubles have their origin. The germicidal properties of Zam-Buk then destroy all germs and thoroughly cleanse the diseased parts. Having done this, the healing essences contained in Zam-Buk so stimulate the tissues that new, healthy skin is quickly produced. The result is a complete and permanent cure of the sore or injury. Zam-Buk is best for eczema, ringworm, scalp sores, boils, pimples, teething rash, ulcers, abscesses, running sores, "barber's rash," blood-poisoning and piles. As a first-aid, too, Zam-Buk is indispensable. It stops bleeding, ends pain, draws out soreness and inflammation, prevents blood-poisoning and heals quickly. All dealers sell box. ## Tell Dyspeptics What To Eat

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and suffers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bismarck Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bismarck Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestive. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of peptic pills or artificial digestants.

Get a few ounces of Bismarck Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and, in the Bismarck form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

to him. Such a world of love lay in the dark eyes! It would have been a thousand times better for Leah had she never had such a pretty theory as that of souls meeting, or filled her mind with ideal notions. No misgivings came to her, no doubt, or fear. She never asked herself whether her great love would be returned, she never asked herself how it would end; she lived entirely in the present, each day
