"SLIM" DAILY ARRESTED

Detectives Day and Cockburn Take Him to Woodstock.

Later, An Accomplice, Kissella, Was Arrested in Buffalo, and Confessed That They Had Turn Up Securities Worth Thousands of Dollars in an Englishman Which Were in Value Taken From G.T.R. Train.

Buffalo, Jan. 7.—Railway Detectives Day and Cockburn of Toronto, left here yesterday for Woodstock, Ont., taking with them Charles, alias "Slim" Daly, who is wanted by the Canadian authorities on a charge of grand larceny. Soon after the departure of the officers, the Buffalo detectives captured one of Daly's pals, who it is alleged was an accessory to the crime charged against Daly. He is known as Gus Phillips and also by the name of Kissella.

Kissella and Daly, it is alleged, stole a valise from an English tourist, who was on a train from Toronto en route from Detroit to Buffalo. The valise, which is said to have contained papers worth thousands of dollars, was taken from the train at Harrisburg. It was traced back to Woodstock and then to Buffalo. The Buffalo detectives located Daly first and placed him under arrest. They found the valise, which contained clothing and a valuable scarf belonging to the English tourist, but found no trace of the missing papers.

In watching for the return of Kissella, the detectives made another arrest, which is regarded as important. The prisoner gave his name as Harry Brown of New York. In searching Brown, they found letters addressed to him by Kissella and other young men employed as bell boys in various cities. These letters caused the detectives to suspect that many bell boys employed in various cities were banded together for theft.

After the arrest of Brown and Daly, Kissella kept away from their room, but the detectives located him late yesterday afternoon and placed him under arrest. Kissella admitted his association with Daly and Brown. He said that he and Daly, not knowing the value of the papers in the valise taken from the Grand Trunk train, had torn them up while they were in Woodstock. This information was wired to the officers who took Daly away. They at once wired back to the Buffalo officers to look for Kissella as soon as possible.

The Canadian officers displayed great interest in the missing papers. They said the papers consisted of thousands of dollars worth of securities, which the English tourist had to sell in Boston before returning to his home.

CONSTABLE WOUNDED.

Prisoner Shot His Captor At Windsor, But Another Escaped Him.

Windsor, Jan. 7.—Sergeant Alex Nash, of the Windsor police force, lies in a serious condition at his home on Sandwich street with a gaping wound in his neck caused from a revolver shot fired at him yesterday morning. The arrest was made near the waterworks after an Italian fruit store had been robbed. Sgt. Nash had brought his prisoner as far as All Saints' Church, within one hundred yards of the city lockup, when the burglar suddenly turned on the sergeant, drew a revolver and fired two shots, one taking effect in the neck.

The officer fell in the snow, while the attempted murderer ran towards the alley in the rear of Windsor avenue. The arrest was made near the waterworks after an Italian fruit store had been robbed. Sgt. Nash had brought his prisoner as far as All Saints' Church, within one hundred yards of the city lockup, when the burglar suddenly turned on the sergeant, drew a revolver and fired two shots, one taking effect in the neck.

The prisoner at first declined to give his name, but an envelope found on him was addressed to Thos. Murray, Detroit, postmarked from Toronto, Dec. 24, containing a card read on one side, "Best wishes from mother," on the other, "Mrs. J. A. Jarvis, Toronto."

May Be Toronto Criminal.

Toronto, Jan. 7.—The man who shot Police Sergeant Nash at Windsor yesterday, while being taken into custody, is said by the local police to be George, alias Sam Jarvis, alias Henderson, alias George Johnston, a Toronto criminal, who has done considerable time since 1888.

STABBED AT LINDSAY.

Aged Man From Peterboro Meets With a Serious Mishap.

Lindsay, Jan. 7.—At 9 o'clock yesterday morning a man named Henry Syers was found lying in an open shed at the Central House, benumbed with cold and liberally bathed in blood that flowed from a nasty two-inch wound on the inside of his thigh, near the main artery of the leg. Syers says that he came to town from Peterboro on the 9.45 train Thursday night, and that when walking from the station he was accosted by a stranger who persisted in walking with him. He turned into the hotel yard to evade the stranger, who followed him, stabbed him, and robbed him of $30. Syers was taken to the home of his son in town. There is no clue to his assailant's identity.

Cleared River of Ice.

Good Boys

Are the bad boys very often? The boy that's good for anything is generally pugnacious. He's a healthy animal, and his healthy animal will always fight for his rights.

When a boy shuns the rough sports of his companions he is apt to be a weakling, and to be conscious of the fact.

PRINCIPAL GRANT.

Great Educationalist's Memory Honored by Students and Alumni in Fine New Memorial Hall at Kingston.

Well deserved is the post-mortem honor bestowed on the late Principal Grant, in the dedication to his memory of the new Convocation Hall at Queen's University. As Grant Hall will the fine new building take its place among the historic educational structures in Kingston, and thus will the name of a famous Canadian principal be perpetuated for many ages. While outside opinion may differ on the character and capacity of the late Principal Grant, in the university itself it is accepted as an axiom that he was the greatest educationalist ever produced in Canada. Students and alumni regard his memory with peculiar affection, and most heroically have they wrought to rear this hall as a token of their love and esteem for the principal who spent the best years of his life in the service of one of Canada's greatest colleges.

Gift From the Students.

At the opening ceremonies at the recent dedication the part played by the students was emphasized by Rev. James Wallace of Lindsay. In a brief history of the movement, the speaker said that the original intention had been to erect a convocation hall and to name it in honor of the County of Frontenac. The residents of the county were thereupon invited to contribute $20,000, but when the bylaw submitted it was defeated, much to the regret of Principal Grant. Then the students determined to raise the sum themselves, but the principal requested that this course be abandoned, as he did not wish the young men to undergo the hardships this would entail in a great many cases. They persevered, however, and succeeded in raising $84,000. Even then Principal Grant desired the name Frontenac Hall, but the students, probably for the first time, disregarded his wishes, and Grant Hall was chosen instead.

The Message to the Students.

Sir Sandford Fleming, in accepting the gift of the hall, as vice-chancellor of the university, referred to the late principal in these words:

"A few months before he died he addressed you students for the last time in old Convocation Hall. On that occasion he explained to you the secret of his life and impressed upon you one great lesson in these words: 'The road to success which satisfies is through singleness of eye and from a deep-rooted conviction that we owe to the community upon which we live a service commensurate with the question of whether the community is or is not grateful. If I have done any good this is the explanation.' Having given you this secret he prayed God that you would turn it to good. Then he predicted to you a vision of the future which had been given him. 'Our university, strong in your love, an ever-increasing power for good; our country pressing forward; our Empire champion of liberty, civil and religious, intellectual and commercial.'"

There are men now living who can look back 70 years to the time when Queen's University was but a dream in the minds of the devout founders of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. In the year 1828 these men undertook the herculean task of establishing a university which would provide a liberal education for their sons and a theological training for the ministers of the Church in Canada. At the time these facilities were ready for use in Upper Canada, grammar schools being few, while King's College, Toronto, the only institution of its kind in the country, admitted only students who would subscribe to the Thirty-nine Articles.

which, of course, Presbyterians could not do. The aim of the founders of Queen's was to establish a university which would be Presbyterian only in its theological course, its other departments more truly fulfilling the trust function of a university in appealing to all beliefs.

A Principal But Not University.

In 1841 the Royal charter was granted to the gentlemen—11 clergymen and 14 laymen—and the work of raising funds began at once. The members of the Church in Canada responded heartily; and in Scotland and the parent church made a grant to the infant university. The Colonial Committee, evidently under the misapprehension that the scheme was farther advanced, met at Edinburgh, and thereupon appointed the first principal—Rev. Thomas Liddell, who at once in Canada before the foundations of Queen's had been laid. As a number of students were also desirous of presenting themselves at once, it was decided to secure a small house for temporary use, until the proper buildings could be erected. Kingston was chosen as the home of the institution, as it was then the seat of Government of the united provinces, a classical and a mathematical master were secured, and the real work of the university began.

The Coming of Grant.

Rev. John Cook, of Quebec, succeeded Principal Machar, and was succeeded by Rev. Dr. Litch, a Scottish clergyman, who was followed in 1864 by Rev. Dr. Snodgrass of St. Paul's, Montreal. It was the retirement of Dr. Snodgrass in 1877 that Rev. George Munro Grant of Halifax, became principal of Queen's, he being the first native-born Canadian to fill that position. Under Principal Grant the university became one of the greatest seats of learning in Canada, but the life-work of a remarkable man stretches between the little college presided over by Dr. Snodgrass and the magnificent institution at present in the capable hands of Principal Gordon. One building after another was erected, one after another source of income opened up, one faculty after another added, until the dream of the most enthusiastic of the 25 founders of Queen's has been more than realized. Greater work still lies before Queen's. Her real history is yet of the future.
