

Holsteins Make Great Showing

Thirty-three years ago, so the records say, there was not a Holstein in the Province of Ontario. If this statement is not absolutely accurate it is very nearly so. How things have changed. Holsteins are now one of our most popular breeds; black and white fanciers say the most popular breed. Just how popular and numerous they now are may be gathered from the fact that 13 herds from widely distant counties gathered to compete for honors at the Live Stock Show in Toronto last week. In several classes the entries numbered well over a dozen, and Judge Geo. Rice had his hands full in picking the winners. Holsteins had the largest representation of any of the dairy breeds.

The quality was generally conceded to be an advance on the entries at the Canadian National last summer. The higher uniformity of quality was particularly marked in the "ragged ends" so often characteristic of Holstein classes, and particularly noticeable in some of the classes last summer, were not in evidence last week. A few animals were very poorly fitted, but they were quality animals just the same, and with good fitting would have stood much higher. The bull classes in general were a distinct advance on those exhibited last summer.

Of course there were a few that should not have been there.

HERDS REPRESENTED

Many of the old time breeders were along, some of whose herds have not been seen in Toronto for several years. Among the largest exhibitors, known to fair goers, were A. E. Hulet, Norwich, M. H. Haley, Springfield, Sir H. M. Pellatt, Walmer Road Hill, Sunnybrook Farm, Eglington, and Elias Snyder, Burgessville. Among the several new exhibitors the City Dairy Farm, New Lowell, Ont., had the longest string; and it was a good string. In only a few classes were they left out of the money. Hiram Dymont, Dundas, also new to the class, captured the female grand championship, and the grand champion also fell to a new exhibitor, Mr. Wm. Watson, Pine Grove. Leuzler and Bollert, Bright and Wm. Manning and Sons, Woodville both had large and creditable exhibits. Edgar Dennis, Newmarket, had some good cows. It bodes well for the future of the breed to see so many new men coming along.

INDIVIDUAL MENTION

We would like to speak extensively of individuals that attracted particular attention, but space forbids. It is difficult to speak of any as "outstanding." There were too many very high class animals there for any one to have a wide margin in its favor. The aged bull class brought out a first in Lord Cornelius Tensen, a low down, flashy type of bull bred by Hulet, and exhibited by the City Dairy Farm. Mr. Kitchen, who is responsible for City Dairy Holsteins, can certainly pick the good ones.

The two-year-old winner and grand champion male was of a little different type. Like the older bull he had length with depth and constitution, but he was a trifle further off the ground, and very stylish in his get up. He took the breeder right up to the head of his proper position. He is at the head of the herd of Wm. Watson. Yearly bulls presented a problem to the judge. The first three were very uniform. The first decision was given in favor of Sir Belle Fayne, bred and owned by M. H. Haley. This bull had a little advantage in substance, and with more fitting would go to even greater advantage. This is not saying that he was in poor condition; Halsey fed well the year round. Leuzler and Bollert had the junior champion in class company.

First place in females was won by a dry cow, a very deep bodied animal with well sprung rib, constitution and indications of doing big things when she freshens. The illustration appearing elsewhere in this issue describes her more accurately than we can. She was shown by Hiram Dymont, Dundas.

Mature cows in milk brought out a string of nine, as good cows as were ever seen in one section at Toronto. Hulet got first and several might have gone up and no great mistake made. The City Dairy entry looked milkier, but was a trifle thin and inclined to droop at the rump. A feature of the three-year class was that the winner, one of Haley's, was also first in her class in the dairy test.

A little criticism. Evidently Holsteins have no definite and fixed ideal of type. Even the best classes presented great diversity of type. Here is one point, from the show yard standpoint at least, where the breed could stand improvement. Beauty counts when an animal is sold, in some cases almost as much as production and uniform conformation, commercially speaking, is therefore desirable.

New National Live Stock and Dairy Show off to Good Start

At winter fairs in the past male animals have been prohibited. Consequently with flocks centralized at Toronto and all classes represented the sheep exhibit was a very superior one. Long and short woolled breeds were classed very properly. In the Cotswolds herd was represented by E. F. Park, Burford; E. Brien & Sons, Ridgeway, and S. Dolson & Son, Norval Stn. Leicester were exhibited by H. M. Pellatt, Eglington, David Rodger, Drumbo; A. W. Whitelaw, Guelph, and J. Kelly, Shakespear. J. and D. J. Campbell, Woodville, Ont., J. G. Hamner, Burford, John R. Brown, Woodville, and C. W. Gurney, Paris, had Shropshires. P. Arkell & Sons, Teeswater, were the principal exhibitors of Oxfordshire, and in Southdowns the flocks of W. Springstead & Son, Abington, Robert McEwen, Byron and J. J. Lloyd Jones, Burford, were represented. W. E. Wright & Sons, Glanworth, J. Robertson & Sons, Milton and Forsyth, Park Oakwood, were on hand with their Dorsetts. Other breeds represented were Lincoln, Hampshire and Suffolks.

In the swine divisions Joseph Featherston & Sons, Streetsville, and J. E. Brethour & Nephew, Burford, had the largest showing of Yorkshires. In Berkshires, S. Dolson & Sons, W. W. Brownridge, Georgetown and E. Brien & Sons, Ridgeway, were most successful. D. Douglas, Mitchell, had almost a monopoly on Tamworth classes, while in Chester Whites, W. E. Wright & Son, Glanworth, and D. DeGourcy, Burnholme, divided most of the money.

The management of the National Live Stock and Dairy Show are to be congratulated on their success in gathering together such a splendid exhibition of live stock. With the improved accommodations, which it is already reported will be provided before the next Canadian National Exhibition, they should appear strongly to the fair-going public. The fact that the Horticultural Show is held in connection will also add to the attractiveness of Canada's new national fair.
