CITY COUNCIL

Several By-laws Passed—the Bread Question Disposed of—Grants Made.

Ald. Ball and Ald. Wilkinson were the only two absent from the city council meeting Monday night. A by-law dealing with bakers' bread was passed. 'Standard loaves' are to weigh one and a half pounds and three pounds avoidupois. All other bread must be sold at a rate per pound and shall bear labels showing the actual weight. Provision is also made for inspection of bakeshops, ingredients, etc., as well as penalties for the non-fulfillment of the provisions of the by-law.

A by-law to provide for the election of a separate school trustee was passed. Nominations are to be held on the 24th and the election on the 31st of March.

J. J. Harwood was appointed license inspector for the city. A by-law was also given a second reading to appoint the same gentleman as poll and dog tax collector.

By-laws were also passed to close lanes in block 171 and block 370. The finance committee recommended for payment accounts amounting to about $95,000.

Among other things the Works Committee recommended that the city clerk write requesting the C.P.R. to construct subways under the railway at Albert and Broad street. The Finance Committee recommended a grant of $200 to the Saskatchewan Poultry Association, and an additional grant of $200 to the curling club. The city solicitor was granted $200 to buy books of reference for his office.

F. W. Brimacombe has his salary increased to $100 per month while working at the waterworks reservoir. The parks committee recommended the purchasing of lawn grass and trees for boulevards. They also recommended the annexing of certain lands to the city.

COUNCIL NOTES

The city solicitor, treasurer and city engineer filled their places in the council chamber on Monday evening. The page for the council has not yet been appointed. The mayor's chair is very ornamental, but the mayor has his time to keep from getting lost in it.

PARALLEL TO HIAWATHA

Iowa Editor Claims Longfellow's Poem Resembles Closely a Finnish Production.

The editor of the Yeoman Shield, published in Des Moines, Iowa thinks that he has found out that Longfellow stole his poem "Hiawatha" from a Finnish poem called "The Kalevala". According to the story of the editor of the Yeoman Shield, he discovered the epic poem of Finland which is older than Homer's writing and some authors claim it dates back to the time of David. From it he charges he has discovered that Longfellow borrowed or copied his Hiawatha. The measures and the metre are exactly the same. The songs are the same in that both poems deal with Indians, with magic with the northland.

That is exactly the swing and mark of Hiawatha. Both poems tell of Reindeer and both introduce singers who relate their own. This too, is from The Kalevala: "Why should I sing other legends, Chant them in the Glen and forest, Sing them on the hill and heather, Only will the forest listen, Sacred larches, sighing pine trees, Junipers endowed with wisdom, Alder trees that love to hear me, With the aspens and the willows, Like the cuckoo of the forests, Like the thrush upon the heather, Like the lark I learned to twitter, As a lark I learned to wander, Wander as a lonely songbird, Through the forest and the fenlands, Quietly o'er hill and heather, Walked in pain about the 'Arshes, Learned the songs of wind and water, Learned the music of the ocean, And the echoes of the woodland, And nature was mine only teacher, Woods and water my instructor." From Hiawatha "Should you ask where Nawadaha Found these songs so wild and wayward; Found these legends and traditions, In the birds' nests of the forest, In the lodges of the beaver, In the hoof prints of the bison, All the wild flowers sang them to him. In the moorlands and the fenlands, In the melancholy marshes, In the green and silent valley, By the pleasant water courses, Dwelt the singer Nawadaha, Round about the Indian village, Spread the meadows and the corn fields, And beyond them stood the forest, Stood the grove of sighing pine trees,

The Deadly Parallel Wananomien was a good teacher among his people; so was Hiawatha. Wananomien did not die a natural death, but left his people in a boat, so did Hiawatha. Wananomien's departure:—Left his tribe in Kalevala, Sailing o'er the rolling billows, Sailing through the azure vapors, Sailing through the dusk of evening, Sailing to the fiery sunset, To the lower verge of heaven. Hiawatha's departure:—Westward, westward, Hiawatha, Sailed into the fiery sunset, Sailed into the dusk of evening, To the land of the hereafter.

regarding the community bill of fare was made with the view of pulling the wool over the eyes of the general public. It is well known that last year, when the Doukhobors were given an ultimatum with regard to the necessity of becoming British subjects in order to hold their homesteads, the community leaders resorted to similar tactics. The leaders while openly declaring their sincerest desires that the colonists should become nationalized citizens, secretly sent their assistants through the villages with a message of a different sort. The communists were told by these hangers that the government in view of expected war, wanted to entrap the Doukhobors in order to make soldiers of them.

MILITIA TO BE PRESENT About 20,000 of the Best Canadian Militia men will attend at the Tercentenary Celebration. Ottawa, March 14.—The number of military regiments which will be mobilized at Quebec last week in July for the tercentenary celebrations depends upon two things, one, the department of militia, the other the facilities afforded by the transportation companies. The department has decided to assemble an army corps of 20,000 men on the historic plains of Abraham, provided parliament will furnish the funds, and upon this point there can be no question. There is, however, the important consideration to be serious consideration to be given for the gathering of the largest body of troops ever assembled on Canadian soil. It will be a big task for the department of militia, and the officials of the department fully realize the magnitude of the undertaking. Coupled with this is the transportation question. The railway and the steamship companies realize that the success of the fete depends upon the presence of troops, but at the same time they want to catch the crowds of tourists who will come from all parts of the continent, and who will be prepared to pay rates probably double those which the government will pay for the transportation of troops. Much, therefore, depends upon what the railway companies can do. A militia general order will be issued shortly with reference to the annual training of the city and rural corps. The camps will take place as usual and the order will go out for the drill of the city corps at their respective training headquarters. It is understood however, that men of city corps will go to Quebec, and every regiment will be invited, and will be allowed to count their stay in the old city of Champlain as part of their annual training. Not all the members of a city regiment will be permitted to go to Quebec. On an average one-third of the city regiments retires annually. The recruits of this year may possibly be cut out of the Quebec trip, with the result that the troops will be tried and experienced men, who will make a presentable appearance. Some of the regiments will have to receive entirely new uniforms while others, by the wedding out process, will be able to send the very best men. The last of July promises to be a great week for old Quebec.

Stop That Cold

To check early colds or Grippe with "Preventics" means sure relief for Prevention. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure a cold, but they can be taken early—at the first signs—before the cold has taken root. That's why they are called Preventics. Preventics is the only cold cure. No other cure has any effect. Preventics is the only cold cure. No other cure has any effect. Preventics is the only cold cure. No other cure has any effect.
