AERIAL NAVAL WARFARE

TITANIC CONFLICT IN CLOUDS TO TAKE PLACE IN 1913.

German Writes Book Describing How England Will Become Dependency of His Country-Navy Will Be Futile-Weird Dream of Aerial Warfare Drop Bombs From the Sky-Battles In the Air.

Recent progress in aerial navigation has greatly stimulated the imaginations of those authors who delight in waging bloody wars — on paper. When in "Locksley Hall" Tennyson, many years ago, "dipt into the future far as human eye could see" his prophetic vision beheld "the nations" terial navies grappling in the central

But, according to the poet, that awful conflict is to bring about the era of universal peace—"the parliament of man, the federation of the world."
According to Prof. Rudolf Martin of Berlin, it is to make Germany the mistress of the globe. He has just published a book entitled "From Berin to Bagdad; the German World Supremacy in the Coming Era of Aerial Navigation," in which he tells how it is to be done. The perusal of it ought to afford some little solace to the thousands of the Kaiser's poorer subjects who yearn to exchange a diet of horse flesh and dog meat for the roast beef of old England. For, of course, it is England which is to suffer most at the hands of the Gerof course, it is England which is to suffer most at the hands of the Ger-

Make English Navy Futile?

When airships can travel faster than railway trains now move Great Britain, the professor says, will be deprived of the present strategic advantages of her geographical position. The British navy will be reduced to comparative insignificance. The Hima-layas will no longer protect India parative insignificance. The Himalayas will no longer protect India from land attack.

The professor admits that England and America may build aerial navies that, ship for ship, may be quite as good as those of Germany, but they will have no armies fit to cope with Germany's highly trained legions with which, conveyed by aerial transports, she will overwhelm hostile countries. The narrative of events which the professor relates takes place between 1913 and 1930. Germany adopts an improved form of the airship invented by Count Zeppelin, who thus far has merely succeeded in spending a large fortune in abortive attempts to conquer the air. The Zeppelin air-ship consists of a bigar-shaped balloon, with an aluminium deck, and loon, with an aluminium deck, and fitted with powerful motors and steer-apparatus. His Airship Dream Weird. In the death dealing, perfected form it takes in Prof. Martin's book form it takes in Prof. Martin's book the balloon has a capacity of from 60,000 to 100,000 cubic meters, is divided into something like 150 airtight compartments, carries 600 men on its aluminium deck, and, smong other weapons of destruction, is provided with 400 or 500 aerial torpedoes. The professor predicts that by 1916 Germany will have 2,000 of these fighting airships in commission. Without armament, he figures it out that they will cost only $75,000 each — about what it now costs to build a torpedo boot.

In addition Germany is to be sup-plied with aerial trains, consisting of four airships linked together, the front airship alone being supplied with motors, and towing the other three after it at a prodigious rate of speed. Each train will suffice to transport 1,000 fully armed and equipped German meddiers.

1913 to Witness World War. 1913 to Witness World War.

The universal shindy starts in 1913 with another war between Japan and Russia, in which the Japs administer a crushing defeat to the colossus of the north by means of their magnificent aerial fleets. It is followed by a revolution in Russia, in which the Romanoff dynasty is overthrown. The Czar, besieged in his palace, appeals to the Kaiser by wireless telegraphy to save him from the mob which clamors for his life. The Kaiser responds to his appeal by carrying him off in one of his matchless airships.

Anarchy ensues in Russia. Out of the chaos emerges a second Napoleon in the chaos emerges a second Napoleon.

Anarchy ensues in Russia. Out of the chaos emerges a second Napoleon in the person of Suvaroff, a young Russian engineer, who is a master of the art of aerial navigation. He is made president of the Russian republic, and goes in for airships by the wholesale. By their means Russia again becomes a mighty power, which threatens to dominate Europe. Suvaroff gets himself proclaimed Czar of Russia under the name of Michael, and sets about preparing to subjugate the rest of the world.

Await Battles In the Air

Awful Battles In the Air. Awful Battles In the Air.

Then the Kaiser takes a hand in the game by declaring war on Russia. The imagination of the most lurid dime novelist never depicted such awful battles as take place between the flying warships of Germany and Russia. From dizzy heights they drop destructive bombs on hostile armies. Russia. From dizzy heights they drop destructive bombs on hostile armies. They riddle one another with shells, they ram each other in midain, and, the wrecks, falling from heights of 10,000 feet, are snashed to smitherens. The combatants are provided with parachutes in lieu of life belts, and thus many of them, after their airships are destroyed, succeed in reaching terra firms safely and remew the struggle there.

One scene describes the raid of a Russian air fleet in Berlin, led by the usurper Michael, who pulverizes the German capital by raining bombs of tremendous explosive power upon it and destroys thousands of German troops.

But, of course, the new Napoleon ultimately meets his Waterloo through the superior courage and skill of the German warriors of the air, and Rusaia has to accept the terms of peace dictated by the Kaiser. Then, having walloped Russia, the Kaiser proceeds to make himself master of the world. England, stripped of her colonies becomes a mere dependency of Germany.

but some of his notable victories have been won as a criminal lawyer.

Mr. Delmas is a striking personality. He has been called the Napoleon of the Bar in the west not only because of his resourcefulness, his tireless aggressiveness and his courage, but because of his remarkable resemblance to the great Corsican.

The San Francisco earthquake was mainly responsible for Mr. Delmas removal to New York. Before that disaster he had no thought of changing his residence.

disaster he had no thought of changing his residence.

The following story in P. T. O., a weekly paper, shows that Mr. Delmas will disappoint English followers of the Thaw trial if he doesn't do something spectacular before the case concludes. Mr. Delmas, according to the anecdote, was once defending a husband who had murdered his wife's betrayer, and concluded his address to the jury in a very melodramatic fashion:

"Now, gentlemen of the jury," he said, "what would you do to the monster who thus wrecked forever the happiness of your hearthstone? Shall I tell you? Shall I show you? TO HELP BRITISH YOUTHS.

Scheme to Foster Imperial Aspira tions and Interests in Colonies

In the course of an address on "Federal Tendencies in Education," given by Mr. E. B. Sargent recently in the Whitehall Rooms, Hotel Metropole, before the Royal Colonial Institute, and in the subsequent discussion, the rough outlines were sketched of a novel and exceedingly interesting scheme by which Imperial aspirations may be fostered, and the ties between Great Britain and her over-sea Empire greatly strengthened.

pire greatly strengthened.

The idea is to form in Great Britain an association on similar lines to that which has been established in Montreal, known as the Public Schools Association, the object, as explained by the Hon. T. A. Brassey, being to give young men from this country who may wish to seek a career in the colories an expectation. es an opportunity ter upon that career without un-tue delay.

Those who are to be selected will Those who are to be selected will have to possess a certificate from the master of the school in which they studied, and this certificate will be an assurance to the colonial authorities that the bearer is in every way worthy of confidence, advice, and assistance in obtaining employment. It will, in short, be a certificate of bona fides, and a proof that the owner of it has not only left school without a stain on his character, but also that he has passed through the probationary period immediately after school, say, of 18 months or two years learning a profession or calling with credit.

tearning a profession or calling with a credit.

The newly formed association in Canada is prepared to give a helping hand to all such young Britons, and it is fully recognized in Canada that the coming of such highly qualified youths to the Dominion is in the highest degree to be desired. The advocates of this plan of federal education pointed out that hardly anything could be devised which would so admirably effect the grand purpose of all true Imperialists — namely, the bringing into close touch of the educated, trained young men of Great Britain with their compeers in Canada, Australia, and the other portions of the Empire.

Treatment of Clothes. A bit of real lace often will con-tribute greatly to the style of a frock, and it is an excellent plan to rip any lace trimming from garments before they are thrown aside.

No matter how badly soiled, every scrap of lace is worth saving. And this applies to the imitation as well as to the real, for if there is only sufficient to trim a stock collar it may be used for that purpose very conveniently and effectively on some future occasion, and as lace does not occupy a great deal of space and is not so popuwith moths as are many other materials it may be easily preserved.

The Wife's Influence

Every married woman, no matter how limited her life may seem, no matter how shut up she may be in the nursery or the kitchen, has a means of contact with the great world in the man who goes out into it—has a means of influence on it through him. Seen or unseen, it is there. The man who is happy in his home carries the atmosphere of it with him. He is him-self more in touch with others because of it. In this day and age, when so many women are seeking scope for their powers in arts and professions and business careers, there are some and business careers, there are some who realize that in their marriage there is the very widest scope-wo who put the enthusiasm, the brain power, the artistic perception, the clear sighted effort into their profession as wives and mothers, mistresse of households. These are the women who use their brains and their souls to love with, as well as their hearts reaching power, all the greater because that power is the last thing they are thinking of or seek to attain. That in-tangible thing that we call the spirit of the home walks abroad with every member of it. The "nice" children in school gravitate instantly toward the children of that household, gravitate toward the house itself, because there is something there that they need.— Mary Stewart Cutting in Harper's Ba-

The Disheleth.

The disheloth in many homes is a breeding place for microbes and contains more disease germs than almost anything else of the same size. Many diseases are in a large measure caused by filthy dish rags, contaminated water and impure air. The cheesecloth bags that sugar is sold in make good dishcloths and towels for wiping dishes. It is a good plan to have two sets for constant use. Those in use should be washed every morning in warm water, with soda, ammonia or washing pow-der, then rinsed and hung in the air to dry while the other set is in use. Besides this, it is well to wash each time after using and to boil them once a week. Keep your dish rags clean, sun-ned and aired if you value the health of your family.

Putting In Sleeves. To sew in sleeves take your tape measure and measure one inch back of shoulder seam, fold the arm scycling gether at this point and place inside sleeve seam at the opposite point of fold. After the sleeves of a waist are sewed in and the seam bound or finished in some way, turn the seam so it rests up against the waist instead down on the sleeve and tack it to the shoulder seam to keep it in this posi-tion. You will be surprised to notice what an improvement this makes in the set of the upper part of you

The Dado Is Economical. Nothing is more economical in wall decoration than a dado, according to Wall Paper News. As the lower part of the walls become soiled more quickly than the upper, a room can often be freshened simply by renewing the dado without touching the upper walls. Another advantage of the dado is that it gives a room a comfortable and furnished appearance without the addition of a lot of furniture. This is particularly true of a hall or stairway where there is a lot of space tha Bags For Clothes. When you are making dust bags to slip over your prettiest dresses, make blue ones for your white things. White will yellow. There's no denying that. Moods.

Can one help having the "blues? Certainly. Moods are as subject to the will as any mental faculty, asserts a woman writer. The difference between the successful, popular woman and the woman who by her disagreeableness drives every one from her is simply the ower of the former to control her noods and her temper.

It is advisable to keep soda in a jar covered with a lid, especially if the atmosphere of the room is dry, as soda exposed to dry air effloresces, yields some of its water to crystallization, leaving a white powder, which is there-fore stronger than washing soda and is injurious to certain kinds of clothes. An Audacious Fool.

The function of the king's fool in mediaeval times was in a measure an important one, and he who filled the post had often very great influence with his sovereign. Perhaps the brightest and most astute of fools was Tri boulet, the favorite jester of Francis I. It was reported that his majesty, who was of a very generous nature, had acceded to a request of Charles V., emperor of Germany, that he might pass through France on his way from Spain to the Netherlands. Putting aside all recollection of what he had suffered at the emperor's hands while a captive in Spain, Francis was pre-paring to receive Charles with much ceremony and splendor. Observing one morning that Triboulet was scribbling industriously upon a bit of paper, Francis inquired what he was doing.

Francis inquired what he was doing.

"I have just added the name of Emperor Charles of Germany to my list of fools," answered the jester, "a sovereign who is committing the incredible folly of intrusting himself to you by passing through your kingdom."

"Folly? How if I should let him pass safely?"

"Then I shall substitute your name for his," was the audacious retort of the fool. WANTED.
