JERSEY FOR SMALL BOY.

How to Knit One Such as Little Crown

The jersey as a garb for the small boy has found great favor with mothers in England since the visit of little Prince Olaf of Norway last year, as the bonny, smiling, wee crown prince was nearly always attired in a simple white knitted jersey. It is also becoming popular in America.

SIGNS OF RAIN.

nimals and Plants Indicate the Approach of Storms.

It is well known that animals and fowls give notice of the approach of rainy weather by their peculiar actions. Dogs and cats are less energetic and show an unusual disposition to sleep. Sheep crowd together in a sheltered place. Horses neigh, cattle low, peascream, guinea fowls squall, and ducks and geese are more noisy than usual. All this is due to the decreased supply of oxygen in the air and to the depressing effect of damp air on their nerves. It gives them some difficulty in breathing and makes them listless and uneasy.

Another sign of rain is seen when a cat rubs her ears and sometimes every part of her coat that she can reach. This is due in part to the dampness of the air, which penetrates the hair and makes the skin itch, but it is chiefly due perhaps to the air being heavily charged with electricity. The hair of the cat becomes heavily charged, too, and she rubs it to make it lie smooth and to brush away the peculiar sensa-tion that electricity causes.

Perhaps you have noticed that the leaves of the dandellon and the clover fold up and go to sleep, so to speak, when rain is near. As these plants never open their leaves without the stimulating influence of sunshine, the cloudy sky puts them to sleep. Anoth-er reason for the change is the expansion of the air vessels of the plants, due to the damp air, which causes the leaves to contract and close, just as paper curls when one side of it is m

Boys and girls should make a study of these things. Not only would they find the study full of interest, but it would cultivate their powers of ob-servation and give them a better knowledge of nature.—Chicago News.

HARDSHIP FOR SCIENCE.

Rough Adventure of a British Surveying Party.

Letters received in this country, says The London Globe, from Major P. H. The frontier reaches Bahia by the streamlet of the some name, and this also, after much trouble, has been mapped, astronomical observations being taken to fix the position of its source, a spot which impressed the tormented explorers as the haunt of every insect in the country. Tiny bees literally swarmed on them, while at other times they have been afflicted with myriads of wasps, most of them about half the size of the specimens found in this country, but some of them larger, and all of them vicious. Some of the rivers rise and fall in a week, and some in a single day, according to the rainfalls.

PATRIOTISM IN THE HOME.

American Husband and Canadian Wife Could Not Agree.

A matter of patriotism to their respective motherlands stood between William J. and Anna W. Roepke, according to the story told on the stand in Judge Donovan's court at Detroit recently. "My wife is a Canadian and I am an American," said the husband. "She said she didn't like this country, wouldn't live here and under no circumstance." "She said she didn't like this country, wouldn't live here, and under no circumstances would have children on American soil. She declared she was too good a Canadian for that. I replied that I was too good an American to have children born under the British flag. We quarrelled and on March I, 1904, she went to Winnipeg, Man., where I later followed and found her. I offered to give her a good home in this country, but she wouldn't come, so I left her there." The husband was given a decree on the spot for three years' desertion. They were married in Cleveland in 1902.

Kisses of History.

The efficacy of a fair woman's kiss was incontestably proved when, in 1794, the famous Gordon Highlanders were raised by the lovely Duchess of Gordon, who was directly instrumentorion, who was directly instrumen-tal in gaining a thousand recruits by the donation of a guinea and a kiss apiece. In a sense, many of these kisses may be said to have been fatal, for in an encounter with the French in sees may be said to have been fatal, for in an encounter with the French shortly afterward more than 250 were either killed or wounded. Alain Chartier, the French poet, is the hero of a romantic legend. One day he sat down in a public place, and being weary and exhausted by the heat of the day, fell into a slumber. As he slept, Margaret of Scotland, the wife of the Dauphin, afterward known in history as Louis XI., chanced to pass with her attendants. She glanced at the unconscious man and recognized in him the poet whose verses she so loved. Then, motioning to her maids to be still, she gently stepped forward, and, stooping, imprinted a kiss on the sleeping poet's lips. At times, however, a kiss has been the prelude to a tragic sequel, as that bestowed in 1718 by Prince Ferdinand of Bavaria upon Princess Thyra, the near relative of a ruler of a neighboring state, where he was on a visit. This affectionate greeting, a heedless whim of the moment, was given under the very eyes of the princess' betrothed, who, naturally taking umbrage, soundly rated the thoughtless prince. Words came to blows, which resulted in a duel being arranged, and diplomatic relations between the two states were broken off. In the war that followed, although hostilities lasted but six weeks, over a thousand lives were sacrificed.
