

Wind-Gall

At night when the wind comes creeping And calling across the sea, What does it whisper, whisper To wanderers, you and me?

In The Footsteps Of His Master

One torrid day during the month named after the illustrious Roman Julius Caesar, in the fifth year of his reign of the tyrant Domitian, a solitary figure trudged along the Appian Way, on the outskirts of the city of Rome.

The artificial grandeur of the scenery that skirted the road was typical of the age in which the wealth of the world poured into the coffers of patrician Rome.

Along its entire length, at intervals of a mile or two, there arose the stately villas of these lords of creation, now silent and seemingly deserted in the broiling noontide.

But the wayfarer had no eyes for the smiling beauties of villas, lawns, and gardens. Though neither sad nor morose in appearance, his mind seemed to be intent upon other matters.

Instantly the chief steward entered the room. 'Marcus, who is in the vineyard? Bring him hither, I warned the slaves to stay out of the vineyard until I should order them to work there.'

Well, what of it? It is not my vineyard? 'Yes, master, but I thought thou didst desire to have him seized and brought to thee.'

Well, I will see him when I have eaten. Bind him to a post in the courtyard. Continue playing Lucretia! 'His daughter touched the strings of her lute and played ever so softly a few introductory chords. Then in a high, tremulous voice she began to sing a pretty lyric from Horace. When she had finished, her father dismissed her and called Marcus.'

On came the defenders of the Empire, splendid specimens of physical manhood, mounted on black chargers and fully equipped for encounter. As they neared the hiding place of the traveler, they dismounted and lay down beneath an olive tree not more than thirty paces from him.

Again the concealed man was in a quandary, not knowing whether he should flee or rest quietly where he lay. A quarter of an hour passed before he could decide. Just as he was about to crawl away, he heard one of the men say: 'Come, Sempronius, we must hasten on or we will not be in time to see the gladiators in the colosseum.'

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely important to neglect, so important if a healthy action of these organs.

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and depression.

'I was taken ill with kidney trouble, and became so weak I could scarcely get around. I took medicine without benefit, and finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the first bottle I felt so much better that I continued its use, and six bottles made me a new man. When my little girl was a day, she could not keep anything on her stomach, and we gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla which cured her.' Mrs. Thomas L. W. Wallisburg, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures kidney and liver troubles, revives the back, and builds up the whole system.

'This is a great humiliation for us not to have captured a Christian today,' remarked the other rousing himself from a doze.

'Do not despair. We may encounter one before we reach our quarters. May the gods help us!'

The stranger in the shrubbery crossed himself and sighed.

Presently the horseman rode off, discussing as they went an incident in the great Roman Amphitheater when three lions, savage from want of food, were let loose on a crowd of Christian men and women.

The narrator laughed as he told of the resigned manner in which these confessors went to meet their death.

When safety had been assured, the traveler rose from the ground and continued his course for some time among the bushes. As the danger of discovery had passed, he again took to the path along the highway.

After he had walked for a quarter of an hour, he left the road and journeyed across the fields. Before long he found himself in a vineyard.

Here he proceeded with great caution, glancing at intervals toward a villa whence the sound of a lute issued.

Lucretius, the owner of the grounds on which he trod, had arisen from his couch at about the hour when the sun had reached its zenith in the heavens.

On the previous evening and late into the morning, his beautiful rustic home had been the scene of one of those orgies which characterized patrician life when Rome was the dissolute mistress of the world.

Lucretius had partaken to excess of the rich viands and choice vintage that had been provided for the occasion, and consequently he was surly. As he reclined at table, eating some fruit, his eyes wandered into the vineyard. There he noticed someone cautiously advancing through the vines.

'Marcus,' he cried in a loud voice. 'Instantly the chief steward entered the room.'

'Marcus, who is in the vineyard? Bring him hither, I warned the slaves to stay out of the vineyard until I should order them to work there.'

Marcus ordered two other servants to seize the intruder. Within a few moments a thin pale man was led into the rustic mansion.

'Master, the servants have apprehended the intruder,' announced the steward.

'What?' growled Lucretius. 'Master, the servants have apprehended the stranger in the vineyard,' Marcus repeated.

'Well, what of it? It is not my vineyard? 'Yes, master, but I thought thou didst desire to have him seized and brought to thee.'

'Did I say that? 'Yes, master.'

'Well, I will see him when I have eaten. Bind him to a post in the courtyard. Continue playing Lucretia!'

His daughter touched the strings of her lute and played ever so softly a few introductory chords. Then in a high, tremulous voice she began to sing a pretty lyric from Horace. When she had finished, her father dismissed her and called Marcus.'

'Is the captive one of the rabble?' he inquired. 'So it appears, master.'

'Appears! Answer, yes or no? 'He is one of the plebs, master.'

'Is he a Christian? 'Yes, master.'

'Well, I will see him when I have eaten. Bind him to a post in the courtyard. Continue playing Lucretia!'

"CHOLERA INFANTUM"

THE SUMMER COMPLAINT OF INFANTS.

The trouble occurs mostly during the hot season, and is confined to infants between the ages of four to twenty months, and generally happens about the time of the cutting of the first teeth.

Mothers should look well after their children at this stage and not experiment with any new and untried remedies, but procure one having stood the test of many years usage in thousands of families.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for 70 years and is acknowledged by all who have used it to be the very best remedy for Cholera Infantum, Diarrhoea, Colic, Dysentery and all Bowel Complaints, whether in children or adults.

Mrs. S. R. Alcorn, 2 Black St., Halifax, N.S., writes:—"My little girl was very bad with summer complaint caused from a cold and was also teething at the same time."

"I tried various remedies, but with no results until I was advised to try Dr. Fowler's. I did so, and by the time one bottle was taken she was well and I can too highly recommend it for both children and adults."

Price, 50c. a bottle, put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"I do not know, master, replied the servant. 'Why dost thou not know? Answer me. Is he or is he not? Dost thou spurn me? 'He is a Christian master.'

'Bring him hither.' 'In a moment, a man dressed in worn clothes was led before Lucretius. He showed no deference to the wealthy man who had summoned him; nor was he abashed. His dark brown eyes gazed fearlessly at Lucretius, who was slightly discomfited by their cool scrutiny.

'Why art thou so brazen as to stare at me? Dost thou not recognize thine inferiority? Dost thou not know that my influence is great and that I may have thee punished for thine insolence? 'But the stranger was silent. This angered Lucretius all the more.

'Art thou a Roman?' he asked. 'I am,' replied the captive. 'Art thou a Christian? 'Yes, the next query, for Lucretius thought that if he were a member of the new society which was gaining so rapidly among the slaves, he might punish him on that score and thus gratify the cancer which dwelt in his breast.

'I am,' answered the stranger. 'Then, by Bacchus, thou wilt never live to see another sunrise. Leave him in the courtyard till dusk, Marcus, and see that he is securely tied. Procure the scourges and order two slaves to be in readiness to do my bidding.'

The captive's face was as impassive as before the cruel decision. A close observer, however would have noticed that his lips were moving, no doubt in prayer.

True unselfishness consists, not in always denying one's self, but rather in simply ignoring self; the former implies duty the latter, love.

PALPITATION OF THE HEART

SINKING SENSATIONS.

Palpitation of the heart is very often accompanied by sinking sensations and weak, faint and dizzy spells, and before you can rid yourself of the trouble it is of considerable importance that the heart should be strengthened and brought back to its regular beat.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS are just the remedy you require to do this.

Mrs. Chadwick, Delhi, Ont., writes:—"I had palpitation of the heart, and the least exercise, such as going up stairs, or up a hill, my heart would beat like a trip hammer, and at times I was dizzy headed and had a sinking sensation as if my time was near. A friend suggested I try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, so I procured three boxes, and by the time the first was used I began to improve. In all I took six boxes, and now, although in my 65th year I feel like a young girl; no dizziness or heart thumping, and can walk miles without fatigue. At time of sickness I weighed 120 lbs., now I weigh 150. Price, 50c. a box at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Now the Prices you've been waiting for are here

The old year took away, for ever we hope, the old burden of war prices. For months conditions have been working toward the great climax that brought the remarkable merchandise that is here assembled for this our greatest January Carnival of Economy.

The results came in two ways: 1st. The drastic lowering of prices on our own stocks, down to the new low basis, and often far below it—to double your interest in January buying in our store.

2nd. We have combed the markets—taking utmost advantage of the opportunities created by far sighted manufacturers who were ready to co-operate with us in presenting to you now the lowest prices that will be possible, for the next six months, at least.

We can just see the delight of our Customers when they see the splendid assortment of goods, in every department of our store, and then realize that prices are way down to the bottom, where it is a pleasure to buy things.

Many Manufacturers have ACCEPTED LARGE LOSSES. We shall forgo a large part of our profits on the new goods and accept large losses on our own mark-downs—to inaugurate this first New Year under the New Management and

THE MOST STIRRING PRICE-UPSET THAT THIS COMMUNITY HAS EVER KNOWN.

No matter what you need or desire, now is the best time for months to come to buy it. Some of the reasons are told on this page; but scores of others are here that can get no mention today, even in this broad space.
