friend—whether in training, or already in the front—needs Zam-Buk. It cannot be equalled for the many small injuries and ailments incidental to a soldier's life.

Sgt. F. Brennan of the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles, writes: "For healing cuts, sores, blisters, etc., Zam-Buk cannot be beaten."

Corp. Franklin of the 10th Field Ambulance, writing from France, says: "We find Zam-Buk splendid for injuries and ailments, but we haven't enough of it."

Every soldier should carry a box of Zam-Buk, as nothing ends pain and stops bleeding so quickly; it also prevents blood-poisoning. 50c. all druggists, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

THE BALKANS.

We think it was the New York Times that wondered recently whose was the master mind in the very evidently directing the whole course of the Entente military operations; for the nature of the co-ordinated offensives, the points of attack and the exact timing of the successive blows must almost certainly be the work of individual genius. Whether that be so or not, the developments that continue to follow one another do not tend to diminish the impression of a unified control of the very highest order. The latest one, the initiation of the great Balkan drive, comes at a time when it will have the maximum effect; when Austria has been thrown off her balance by the side to side buffeting of Russia and Italy and will probably succumb to a central attack of any power and persistence.

But it is not Austria who we think will be first or most seriously concerned. We venture the sweeping prophecy that the moment this new offensive assumes the formidable content of which it is capable, we shall hear of peace overtures of no tentative or indefinite tone from both Turkey and Bulgaria. The only thing that will restrain them and keep them very long in the arena is the consciousness that the terms of their exit must necessarily be costly and humiliating. Turkey in particular is in a most difficult position, being faced with an alternative choice of increasing evils. She had from the beginning nothing to gain by her interference except the doubtful blessing of German domination, but she committed herself to a cause from which it would be disastrous to withdraw until compelled to. That is an event which cannot now be long delayed. Bulgaria may be in a slightly better case, for she is quite capable of riding herself of her unpopular ruler and by completely changing sides buying for herself more favourable terms than a defeat in the field would impose upon her.

Greece is in the throes of an election campaign which will almost certainly result in the return to power of Venizelos and the abdication of King Constantine. Not merely the friendship but the active military assistance of Greece will be the outcome, to be followed, if it has not been preceded, by that of Roumania. All this must be becoming more plainly evident to the two junior partners in the Teutonic firm. It is as yet only the probable course of events still to come, but it is foreshadowed in the military operations that seem to be at last under way.

They began a week ago north of Salonika and have now extended from Monastir, in Serbia, to the Vardar River, a distance of about sixty miles. At the proper time the considerable Italian army in Albania will strike in concert; it has been kept there all this time for the same purpose as the great garrison at Salonika. It is hard to see how the small Bulgarian army can oppose effective resistance to so large a force, capable of attacking from so many points; for it can evidently count on little or no support from Austria or Germany. It would be foolish to build exaggerated and premature hopes on the position, but it cannot be denied that it contains possibilities which, if they materialise, will almost in the twinkling of an eye alter the whole military prospect and shorten by many months the duration of the war. If Turkey and Bulgaria can be isolated, they can be counted out. Their severance would of itself be a terrible blow to Germany and Austria, who draw valuable supplies from the Sultan's empire and the copper mines of Serbia, and which would speedily bring about its downfall. There is no need to look

Boy Falls Over Cliff.

NOW IN HOSPITAL.

A little seven year old boy named Joseph Cosh, belonging to Bay-de-Verde, came in on the train last night and was removed to the Hospital in the ambulance. The lad was suffering severe pain as the result of an accident which nearly cost him his life. It happened that on Wednesday evening the child was playing around the edge of a steep cliff near his home, and while attempting to pick wild flowers near the edge, lost his balance and fell head foremost down a steep incline of close on two hundred feet. After lying for hours in an unconscious condition at the bottom of the cliff, he recovered sufficient strength to crawl to his home. His shoulder blade is broken in two places, and he has severe cuts and bruises on his body and legs. The doctors say it is a wonder the child was not instantly killed.

Prospero Back From North.

The s.s. Prospero, Capt. A. Kean, arrived from the north at 12.30 p.m. today, having reached as far north as Battle HF. The trip was made under favorable weather conditions with the exception of Wednesday and Thursday of last week, when strong winds and heavy sea were encountered. The fishery from Twillingate to LaSalle which up to a week ago was almost a blank, is now slightly improved. In White Bay there is no improvement, on the French Shore fairly good catches were secured since last trip and at Battle Harbor hook and liners are doing well. The Prospero brought the following first class passengers, including a number of round trippers and a fair quantity of freight: Mr. Hillier, Mr. Downs, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Waterman, Mr. W. H. Reid and boy, Master Hearn, Mrs. Sackley, Mrs. Crocker, Barbour, Mrs. Crocker, Mr. Seely, Miss Hinds, Mrs. House, Mrs. Lockyer, Ensign Keating, E. and Mrs. Maidment, R. Stone, Miss Miller, J. O'Neill, Mr. Brown, Benson, H. Colbourne, Capt. Robins, S.A. Miss Randall, Miss Walton, J. Hefferton, Mr. Norris, Mr. Miles, Master Hill, Mrs. Joy and boy, Adj. Bowering, Mrs. Long, Mrs. Moulton and boy and 28 steerage.

NOTE OF THANKS.—The Misses Furness, of Topsail Road, desire to thank all those kind friends who generously gave them donations and helped them in every way to make their party a concert such a success. Especially the members of the T.A. Band, Mr. Henry Cowan, Mr. Jerry Brennan, Mr. Isaac Morris, Mr. Edward O'Neill, The Pope Bros, Mr. Neil LeMessurier, Mr. Max Colton, Mr. Robert Cowan Jr., Mr. Jack Lester. The proceeds which amount to about $210.00 will be handed over to the Cat Fund as soon as possible. advt. 11

Shattering a German Claim

Germany's insistent claims of a victory in the sea fight off Jutland is on a par with many more of her claims—willful exaggeration, misrepresentation and outright lying.

It is about the same as to who brought on this European war. "Can anybody doubt it," say both German or pro-German. "Why, who else but England?" German and pro-German see just one side alike—Britain's duplicity and aggressiveness, with unhappy Germany the innocent victim.

And now, to dissipate some of the doubts that may still exist, a telegram from the Kaiser to the King of Bavaria will be in order.

"All hostile assaults," ran this precious telegram, "will break to pieces on the power of a clean conscience, with which Germany and her faithful allies are waging a war for the existence of honour and liberty."

This proves that the war was forced upon the Kaiser and that he couldn't have avoided it if he would.

But here is the answer to the Kaiser's hypocritical whining:

"I was at Fhrasdorf," writes Count Melgar, a confidant of Don Carlos, "when the war broke out. I was pleased with the prospect of German success, on which I counted. I hurried to Vienna, and the first thing I saw was the secret document written by the German Emperor to the Emperor of Austria to inform him of the order given to carry on a war of extermination: 'My soul is bursting with grief,' wrote the Kaiser, his lachrymal glands overflowing, 'but it is absolutely necessary to put everything to the fire and the sword. Men, women and children must be slaughtered; not a single tree must be left upright nor a roof intact. With such a system of terror the only one to be followed it is certain that the war will not last two months, while proceeding with humanitarian consideration it may be prolonged for years. I am having recourse, then, whatever it may cost me' (some more tears) 'to this method, which, in spite of appearances, will greatly diminish bloodshed.'"

From the foregoing it may be easily surmised that the Kaiser is almost as good a prophet as Mme. de Thebes, who had Wilhelm do the "vanishing act" in 1915. But he is still on this globose footstool, as is another subtle humanitarian, Francisco Villa.

After a renewal of the document cited Count Melgar wrote the following: "Such atrocious words made the first breach in my admiration for Germany. A few days later I read in an evening paper a speech delivered by the Kaiser to his soldiers in which he declared that he had learned that two French military doctors had entered Metz and poisoned the garrison wells with cholera microbes. Then I understood that such a man was not merely cruel, but a shameless liar and calumniator. I also had an opportunity of learning of the grief of the Russian Ambassador who told one of his friends how, in an interview with the Emperor Francis Joseph, he declared his government ready to make important concessions to avoid war. To his prayers the Emperor yielded, authorizing him to telegraph to St. Petersburg (now Petrograd) that all danger of war was averted. Next morning the Russian Ambassador was sent for by the Austrian Emperor, who told him he was obliged to take back his word, as Kaiser Wilhelm had telegraphed him as follows: 'If Austria is afraid, Germany fears nobody, and to burn the bridges, I have just declared war on Russia.' This revelation compelled my conversion. I felt sure that Kaiser Wilhelm instead of being an instrument of God, was inspired by the devil."

Well, if the Kaiser is not inspired by the devil, he is at least under the devil's protection, as is that gentleman with many lives, Pancho Villa!

STAR CHILD ACTRESS AT NICKEL THEATRE TO-DAY.

The orchestra of the Red Cross Liner Stephano was present at the Nickel Theatre last night and rendered a charming programme of music. The selections consisted of patriotic airs and other pieces which afforded the greatest satisfaction to the large numbers in attendance. The week-end bill which begins to-day is a most attractive one. Mary Miles Minter, the best paid child actress in the world, is featured in a five-act drama "The Fairy and the Wolf." The story is about the child of an English Army officer who is left alone when her father is called home to fight for King and Country. It is a timely subject and no one should miss it. The big matinee is on to-morrow afternoon.

Reids' Boats.

The Argyle arrived at Placentia at 2.30 a.m. to-day.
The Clyde is leaving Lewisporte to-day.
The Dundee left Port Blandford at 5.45 a.m. to-day.
The Ethie left Bonne Bay at 10.30 a.m. yesterday, going north.
The Glencoe left Placentia at 1.30 a.m. to-day.
The Home is leaving Lewisporte to-day.
