Africa, or where munificent nature does not ask man to work. He dwelt upon the need of combating socialism, the victory of which he said would mean government by the least intelligent. He predicted that socialism would give a deal of trouble yet. He said that a man would yield to the present manifestation was a coward, and that it was sometimes true benevolence to shed the blood of a rictous minority in defense of a law-abiding majority. He continued: "The first requisite in a government is energy—not to be a time-server nor to sacrifice the future to a temporary or present convenience. The firmness, indeed, the fierceness, of the ruling power is a guarantee of peace at home and abroad. A government which is in yielding to the majority and retaining its authority by concessions, thus paving the way for further concessions, is in a sore strait." He declared May Day was not a dangerous enemy. The naming of the day for an assault need not be dreaded. It would be merely a sham-fight like that of the Salvation Army.

On the motion for the third reading of the Franchise Bill, Mr. Brien moved in mendment that the bill be referred back to Committee of the Whole to reduce the income qualification from $300 to $250. Mr. Brien presented $300 to $200. Air. Brien presented the plain facts of the case that many men do not earn $1 a day, and of those who do there are many who do not put in 300 full days in the year. Discussion of the details of the Banking Act was resumed in Committee of the

A clause was added providing that in the event of the failure of a bank any fines and penalties which might have been imposed for over-issue should not be a charge until all other claims were paid. The committee then rose and reported progress.

On going into supply Mr. Charlton pointed out that the McKinley Tariff Bill proposed a reduction of the lumber duties to $1.50 per 1,000 feet, with a proviso that against countries levying an export duty on to $1.50 per 1,000 feet, with a proviso that against countries levying an export duty on logs an equal import duty would be charged on lumber. DOCTOR AND DRUGGIST. A Mistake in a Prescription Dealt with by the Courts.

TORONTO, April 26.—Judge Rose in Queen's Bench Division gave judgment in the case of Stretton vs. Holmes. Judgment in action tried with a jury at Goderich on Oct. 25, 1889. The defendant, Thomas G. Holmes, is a physician, and the defendant, George A. Deadman, a druggist. The defendant Holmes prescribed for the plaintiff, who was ill. One of the ingredients of the prescription was hydrochloric acid. The plaintiff sent the prescription to the defendant Deadman's drug store. On it was written "Chg. to T. G. H.," by which was meant that the druggist should charge the mixture to the doctor, which was done. The doctor charged his fee and was paid by the plaintiff's husband. This fee included the charge for the mixture. In compounding it the druggist's clerk by mistake put in hydrocyanic (prussic) acid instead of hydrochloric acid; and this was administered to the plaintiff, who suffered somewhat severely either from the fright or the effects of the poison. The statement of claim charged that the defendants did not exercise reasonable and proper care, and were guilty of gross negligence and want of the effects of the poison. The statement or claim charged that the defendants did not exercise reasonable and proper care, and were guilty of gross negligence and want of professional care and skill. The jury found that the plaintiff suffered injury, but that the effect was merely temporary, and they assessed the damages at $100. The learned Judge now gives judgment holding that the defendant Holmes was guilty of no negligence, that his prescription was properly prepared and every act of his was done with due care; that he was no more guilty of negligence than if he had gone to the drug store and purchased for the plaintiff a bottle of any prepared mixture which to all appearances was properly prepared, He holds, however, that the defendant Deadman is liable, pointing out that the person for whom the mixture was required was known—for the prescription had written on its face "Mrs. John Stretton." Judgment against the defendant, Deadman, for $100, and dismissing the action against the defendant, Holmes. The learned Judge is further of opinion that the plaintiff should not have full costs; and, acting upon a suggestion made by counsel for the defendants at the trial, he orders that there be no costs to any of the parties. A. M. Taylor and Lewis (Goderich) for the there be no costs to any of the parties. A. M. Taylor and Lewis (Goderich) for the plaintiff; Gar-ow, Q.C., and Proudfoot (Goderich) for the defendant.

The Committee Considers He was Imprudent, but Nothing Worse.

TORONTO, April 26.—After a session of TORONTO, April 26.—After a session of four or five days the Stone-Jennings Committee of the Methodist Church yesterday concluded their investigation into the charges of immoral conduct against the Rev. Mr. Jennings was away from home on havinges was away from home on havings. bers of Dr. Stone's church. All osmings was away from home on business very frequently, and, on one occasion when he returned, his wife told him that the Doctor returned, his wife told him that the Doctor had acted in an unbecoming manner while in her house. Meeting Lr. Stone shortly after this, Mr. Jennings refused to shake hands with him. His pastor inquired the reason of this treatment, and Mr. Jennings told him that it was on account of what he had leaved it was on account of what he had leaved In doing so he made a strong speech. The store resulted in the defeat of the principle by 49 yeas to 82 nays on a straight party vote. The bill was read the third time and passed.

Discussion of the details of the Banking Act was resumed in Committee of the Whole. The clause setting the priority of creditors, giving the note holders first place, the Dominion Government second and Provincial Government third, elicited a long discussion.

Mr. Ellis, of St. John, entered a strong protest against this system, claiming that the Crown should have no priority over the people. The debate called up the history of the late Exchange Bank. In that case the Government loaned large sums to the bank at the solicitation of political friends, bolstering the rotten institution up and giving it a semblance of soundness, which induced persons who otherwise would have avoided it, to put in more money. Then when the inevitable crash came the Government came forward and claimed the priority allowed it under the law to the detriment of dupes whom the Government itself had helped to bring in. In the disturbed to concede the point demanded by Mr. Ellis, and the amendment was thrown out.

A clause was added providing that in the event of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of the failure of a bank any fines and the content of it was on account of what he had learned from his wife regarding Dr. Stone's conduct toward her. Dr, Stone denied that he or another. Dr. Stone denied these accusations. I Dr. Stone denied these accusations. It was true, he admitted, that he had on one occasion kissed Mrs. Jennings' hand as ne was leaving her, but he had meant no harm by it and had done it with no feeling of love or affection for her. The whole trouble, according to Dr. Stone, was this: The Jennings kept boarders. One of them became infatnated with Mrs. Jennings, and allowed his amorous feelings to run away with his better judgment. For some reason or other he very foolishly threatened to shoot Mrs. Jennings, who had him summoned before a justice and bound over to keep the peace toward her. Dr. Stone says ened to shoot Mrs. Jennings, who had him summoned before a justice and bound over to keep the peace toward her. Dr. Stone says this man made trouble between Mrs. Jennings and her husband, and Dr. Stone's efforts to pour oil on the troubled conjugal waters were sadly misconstrued. The reverend gentleman is of a very sympathetic nature, and the fact of his having kissed Mrs. Jennings' hand at parting from her will best be understood by those who know him best. Both Mr. and Mrs. Jennings denied the existence of any trouble between them as alleged by Dr. Stone. The finding of the committee was to this effect.

That the charge of conduct intending immorality against the Rev. Dr. Stone was not sustained, but, in the judgment of the committee, Dr. Stone's conduct in this matter was not characterized by the prudence and wisdom which should mark the deportment of a Christian minister.
