A BIG ATLANTIC LINER'S COAL. Six Hundred Tons a Day the Average Consumption.

Not a little guesswork has been gone through by many as to the probable quantities of coal which are daily shovelled into the furnace mouths of such big Atlantic liners as the Paris, New York, Campania and Lucania. Ten years ago 100 tons were considered a most prodigious consumption, little likely to be exceeded in the years to come.

The wonder comment there was in plenty that so vast a quantity should find a legitimate outlet. Since then, however, the public mind has been educated up to higher figures, and statements of 200, and even 300 tons a day have ceased to attract more than passing notice.

Three hundred and fifty tons, in fact, are said to be burned on the Paris and New York in every 24 hours, but of the Lucania and Campania, no particulars have ever been given, so that an approximation based on what is known of the horse-power equipment of these ships is all that can be offered. Twenty-eight thousand horse-power has been assumed to be the amount that these vessels require to propel them at the great speeds which they maintain.

Added to this power of the main engines must be the appreciable figure represented by the use of auxiliary engines and pumps, which are necessary adjuncts, and with the steam-heating system, and water apparatus, help to a total allowance of 25,000 horse-power may be quite within the mark.

Allowing for the boiler performance of steam cannot be far from consumption of each horse-power equivalent to pretty plain, partly speculative, but quite reliable facts in the Travelers' Ball.

It Was the Social Event of the Season.

And Was Attended by Over Four Hundred Guests.

The Tecumseh House a Scene of Gaiety and Splendor—Most Successful Affair.

The travelers' ball last night was the social event of the London season, and in point of splendor it rivaled the leading balls for several seasons past. Every essential to success that experience or the energetic stewards who had the affair in hand could suggest was brought into play, and as a result the travelers' ball of 1895 will long be remembered by those who were lucky enough to secure the coveted invitation as a thing of dazzling beauty and a joyful event.

The preparations were on a gigantic scale and replete with elegance. The Tecumseh House, where the ball was held, was admirably adapted for the affair, and was transformed by the florist's decorations and upholsterers' arts into the coziest and most comfortable of ball rooms. There was every convenience. Dancing on the ground floor filled the dining room and overflowed into the hallway. The first floor was entirely devoted to the use of the guests, and the stewards who had rooms on the first floor for so kindly moving up to the next floor and allowing the management the full use of the first floor. The north wing was reserved for dressing rooms for the ladies, and the gentlemen were similarly situated on the south wing; while in the central portion of the flat, including the parlors, were situated the dining room, capable of accommodating 160 couples at one sitting. The dancing apartments were screened from the other portion of the house by means of rich and heavy curtains, while the ball room chandeliers were decorated with a deep red color. The floral decorations were in the hands of Gammage, and excellent taste was displayed in the selection and grouping of the various plants. The ball room chandeliers were decorated with smilax; nooks and corners and stair landings assumed the appearance of veritable tropical gardens, and flowers were everywhere. The broad corridors and hallways were prettily draped, and an ample supply of upholstery made them charming retreats for little tete-a-tetes.

The entrance to the hotel was from the York street side, and as the carriages drew up to the carpeted walk a large number of young people gathered in a line on either side to catch a glimpse of the belles of the ball as they passed in under the glare of the electric light. Carriages were scarce last night, so scarce, indeed, that many of the 400 guests were obliged to walk or take a car. Owners who were lucky enough to have four-wheelers stored away found a good demand for them, although they looked queer with the amount of snow on the ground. At the door the guests were received by Mr. E. R. C. Struthers, honorary secretary, indefatigable in looking after their comfort.

Although a couple of "extra extras" were danced about 9 o'clock while the crowd was arriving, the ball was not set in motion until the official set of lancers, in which the following couples participated:

Mr. J. M. Dillon, Mrs. E. B. Smith. Mr. Albert Nieghorn, Mrs. Thos. H. Smallman.

Mr. Wilson Armistage, Mrs. R. C. Struthers. Mr. H. E. Buttery, Mrs. R. C. Macfie. Mr. D. McKenzie, Mrs. S. N. Sterling.

Mr. J. M. Ferguson, Mrs. John I. A. Hunt. Mr. J. H. Brown, Mrs. J. M. Dillon. Mr. T. S. Weld, Mrs. W. J. Reid.

Then the ball, with all its attendant gaiety, was in full swing. The dresses worn by the ladies were very beautiful, and the little violet was noticed to be the predominating flower. Excellent music was furnished by Tony Corree's Italian harpers.
