His Repentance.

"You can tell her about this legacy to me, Sam; it will be the talk of the town before the day is out. And explain to her why I decline it."

The afternoon drew to a close. Dr. Dav-son, engaged with a succession of patients, scarcely noticed his progress. He was waiting to see Mr. Oswald Cray, and had hope he had not come, that note previously mentioned was pencilled, and Neal was disengaged with it.

The man brought the message back in due course; "Mr. Oswald Cray was unable to call upon the doctor, as he was departing for town," Dr. Davson was disappointed; he had been hoping to explain his intentions re- specting the money; he considered it due to Oswald to do so.

How it is that there are times when an idea, apparently without any cause, leads to a reason to justify it, takes sudden possession of the mind? Even as Neal spoke, such an idea took possession of Dr. Davson. He fancied that Oswald Cray was in some way not pleased at the disposi- tion of Lady Oswald's property; was, more or less, resenting its being left to Dr. Davson. He only made the doctor doubly desirous of seeing him. But Oswald Cray having said, there was no chance of doing so at present.

Dr. Davson put on his hat, and went out to take a walk as far as Lady Oswald's. He found the Rev. Mr. Stephenson alone. His brother had gone away. The clergyman received him somewhat awkwardly. He had been brooding over his disappointment; he had been thinking what a crying wrong it was that the money should be left to the flourishing and wealthy physician, who put so many guineas into his pocket daily as would keep him and his family in their humble way for months. He was casting his anxious thoughts to the future, wonder- ing how his children would be educated, how- ever nothing but embarrassment and struggling to the very end of his life; and I am not sure that his heart at that moment toward that one man was full of envy, hatred, malice and all uncharitableness.

Being in this frame of mind, it is little wonder that the reverend gentleman to see the object of his envy standing before him. Dr. Davson drew forward, and said, "What is it, Mr. Stephenson, if the truth were known, you are at this very moment brooding on the plenty of hard names."

It was so exceedingly like what Mr. Stephenson had been doing, that all the reply he could make was a confused stam- mer. Dr. Davson, who for the time ap- peared to have put away his heavy care, resumed in a frank, free tone.

"I have no right to the money, have I? It ought to have gone to you and your brother."

"Well, sir—perhaps you had been led to expect it by Lady Oswald," was the clergy- man's answer. Of a timid and refined nature, he could not, to Dr. Davson's face, express his sense of the wrong. With Dr. Davson before him, cordial and open, he began to think the wrong less. That it was not so much the doctor's fault, as he had been angrily thinking.

"No, she never led me to expect anything of the sort; and you cannot be more sur- prised than I am at its being left to me," said the doctor. When Mr. Stephenson came to me with the news, I could not be- lieve him. However, it appears to be the fact."

"Yes," meekly rejoined the clergyman.

"And I have now come to inform you that I shall not take the money, Mr. Stephenson. Let it stay of it. The will, so far as it concerns me, may be regarded as a dead let- ter for all practical use. I have desired Mr. Wedderburn to transfer the money to you and your brother; and if this may not legally be done, I must, despite my wish, accept the money. I shall take it only to restore it to you. You will not be too proud to accept it from me?"

Was he listening to fact—or was he in a dream? The words to the minister's ear, did not savor of reality. His pale face grew livid with emotion, his trembling hands entwined their thin fingers together. He did not dare to ask, it really felt like the answer should dissolve the illusion.

"I could not expect this great sum to be the property of others who have a right to it," resumed Dr. Davson. "I should fear it is prov- ing something like ill-gotten gains, that bring- ing with them, instead of good. The money shall be yours and your brother's. Mr. Stephenson, just as surely as though it had been left to you by Lady Oswald, I shall be- lieving it shall keep and value, but not a shilling of the money. I thought I would come up and tell you this."

The tears were rolling into that poor gentleman's eyes, as he rose and clasped the hand of Dr. Davson. "If you could see what I have suffered, if you could only imagine the struggle life has been to me, you would know what I feel at this moment. Heaven send its blessing on your generosity!"

The doctor quitted him. He found a heavy heart, and he left a glad one. He quitted him and went into the stillness of the autumn night.

He glanced towards the bright stars as he walked along, thinking of the future. And a prayer went up from his heart to the throne of heaven—that, if it was God's will, his children might not feel hereafter the sacrifice he had made—but that God would bless them and be merciful to them when he should be gone.

CHAPTER XXII

COMPANY FOR MR. OSWALD CRAY.

For some days subsequent to the inter- view with Neal, and that valuable servant's startling communication, Mr. Oswald Cray remained in what may be called a state of confusion. The happy circumstances attendant on Lady Oswald's death never left his mind, the strange suspicions first arising naturally, as they did arise, and there augmented by Neal's disclosure, seemed to be ever warring hot war within him, for they were entirely antagonistic to sober reason, to his life-long experience of Dr. Davson.

It cannot be denied that Oswald Cray, calm, of temperance, sound of judgment though he was, did fall into the snare that the web of events had woven around him; and, in the midnight watches, when things wear to our senses a weird, ghastly hue, the disreputable word matter, sug- gested itself to him often that he would have liked to confess in broad, matter-of-fact daylight. But as the days went on, his senses came to him. Reason reassured her empire, and he flung the dark doubt from him. It was impossible to connect such a crime with Dr. Davson.

But still, though Oswald Cray shook off the worst view, he could not forget the suspicious circumstances. Perhaps it was next to impossible, knowing what he did know of the doctor's intimacies as to chloro- form, hearing as he had heard Neal's account of the words spoken at the mid- night interview, that he could shake them off. They turned and twisted themselves about in his mind, in spite of him, he would have given much to get rid of them, but he could not.

Now taking one phase, now another, now looking dark, now light, there were, like so many phantoms, ever springing up from different corners of his mind, and putting legitimate thoughts out of it. Up or in bed, at work or at rest, these conflicting arguments were ever dancing attendance on him, until from sheer perplexity his brain would seem to lose its subtle powers, and grow dull in very weariness.

What conclusion to which he at length came, and in which he finally settled down, was, that Dr. Davson had been in a partial degree guilty. He could not think that he had given that chloroform to Lady Oswald with the deliberate view of taking her life, as some of our worst criminals have done; but he did believe that there had been some hidden culpability attached to it. Could it have been given in forgetfulness—or by way of experiment?—or carelessly? Os- wald Cray asked himself these questions ten times in a day. No, no, reason answered, Dr. Davson was not a man to forget, or to make experiments, or do things carelessly. And then, with the answer, rose the one wild, awful doubt, again, tormenting him not less with its darkness than with its pre- ponderant absurdity.

What weighed on his mind more than all the rest was, that he could see no solution, or chance of solution to the question, why chloroform was administered, why even it was taken to the house. Had Dr. Davson frankly answered him when questioned, "I thought, in spite of my conversation with you, that chloroform might be ventured with safety, that it would ease her sufferings, and was absolutely necessary to calm her state of excitement," why he could have no more to say. But Dr. Davson had answered nothing of the kind. In the con- trary, he had been mysterious over it, and at length flatly refused to satisfy him at all. So far as Oswald Cray could see, there was still a dark suspicion that could be cleared up, that the chloroform had been adminis- tered willfully and deliberately. If so, then with what view had Dr. Davson—

BROKEN DOWN WOMEN.

How They Regain Life and Strength!

Cheering News!

A Toronto Lady Speaks!

"Three Bottles Have Made Me a Different Woman!"

A few unbelievers, skeptics and doctors may scoff and ridicule even sworn state- ments, but their unbelief and disdain will never convert an intelligent people. No amount of professional medical sophistry will convince a man or woman who has been cured by Paine's Celery Compound, that some other agency wrought the cure. The cured people know that often they have been treated in vain by doctors—yes, in hundreds of cases, given up as incurable—and that there was only one agency on earth that gave them health and life after repeated failures.

MRS. THOMPSON.

Today we are enabled to give all suffer- ers in Canada an instance—a most remark- able one, too—of the failure of doctors; and after their vain efforts, the triumph of Paine's Celery Compound.

Mrs. M. Thompson, of 610 Eastern Avenue, Toronto, was thoroughly broken down, and in a condition that caused anxiety and alarm. She writes as follows, after experiencing and realizing the good that comes from using Paine's Celery Com- pound:

"I feel it my duty to let the public know what Paine's Celery Compound did for me, and trust it will be a benefit to other sufferers."

"I was much reduced in flesh and in a thoroughly broken down condition, result- ing from dyspepsia and nervousness. I was recommended to try the Compound; I did so, and three bottles have made me a different woman."

"Previous to taking your Compound, I had taken medicine from some of the best doctors in the city, but with no good results. Therefore I have every reason to be thankful for Paine's Celery Compound, and take great pleasure in recommending it to others."

"Yours sincerely,"

"M. THOMPSON."

Suffering and disease—people of Canada, let us tell you that such cures as the above are being heard of every day. No failures, no long-continued days of agony and sus- pense when you use Paine's Celery Com- pound; it cures, heals, gives new life. See that you are given this wonderful medi- cine when you ask for it; take no sub- stitute.

The log house built by Mr. Willis was the first man's habitation in a section of country extending over twenty miles in length from the Huron road to the Huron road, and its point of junction with the Huron road, where Clinton now stands. It is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar. It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk.

This wonderful Nerve Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nerve Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the general public.

This medicine has completely solved the problem of the cure of indi- gestion, dyspepsia, and diseases of the general nervous system. It is a marvelous cure for nervousness of females of all ages. Ladies who are approaching the critical period known as change in life, should not fail to use this great Nerve Tonic, almost constantly, for the space of two or three years. It will carry them safely over the danger. ## NERVOUS DISEASES.

As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nerve Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired diges- tion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not con- tain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nerve Tonic has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous de- rangement.

RENECO WILKINSON, of Brownsville, Ind., says: "I had been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness, Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia, and indigestion, until my health was gone. I had been doctoring con- stantly, with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nerve Tonic, which done me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly per- son to use this valuable and lovely remedy; a few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the grandest medicine in the world."

A SWORN CURE FOR ST. VITUS' DANCE OR CHOREA.

CHAMFORDVILLE, IND., June 22, 1887.

My daughter, eleven years old, was severely afflicted with St. Vitus' Dance or Chorea. We gave her three and one-half bottles of South American Nerve Tonic, and she is completely restored. I believe it will cure every case of St. Vitus' Dance. I have kept it in my family for two years, and am sure it is the greatest remedy in the world for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all forms of Nervous Disorders and Failing Health, from whatever cause.

State of Indiana, Montgomery County, ss: Subscribed and sworn to before me this June 22, 1887.

CHAS. W. WRIGHT, Notary Public.

There is no case of unalarming disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nerve Tonic.

MISS ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nerve Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nerve Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. I believe it is the best medicine in the world, I have never seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVE TONIC as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy com- pares with South American Nerve Tonic as a cure for the Stomach.
