Regarding the trip from Batoche with their prisoner they say all along the route observed that settlers were returning to their homes, though every house bore a white flag, and the halfbreeds, men, women and children, ran down the bank to greet them, everyone waving a flag of truce. Eved the men who were working in the fields had white flags waving from their hats, or fastened to the backs of their coats. They only traveled by day and took every precaution at night against a olic church. In answer to a question as to what he should plead when charged I would say, first, that whilst I was a subject of the English government I was loyal to the constitution. If I, with others, were instrugated in a under date, May 13:

The ranks were opened and at noon a royal salute was performed in honor of her majesty's birthday, the men singing the Mational Anthem, the bugles of the 7th Fusiliers accompanying them. Three rousing cheers were given, the ranks closed, and after a few field movements and march past the men were dismissed. The Midlands expect to receive marching orders shortly, but it will all depend on Poundmaker's course.

Riel's Cittzenship. HELENA, Montana, May 25 .- Official

MONTREAL, May 26 .- F. X. Lemieux, M.P.P. for Levis, is at the St. Lawrence Hall. He stated that his partner, Charles Fitzpatrick, will arrive from Quebec this who are to defend Louis Riel, with the Hon. Mr. Mercler as counsel. Mr. Lemieux says he is entirely opposed to a commission trying Riel, as that commission has to be appointed by the government, and the government cannot be considered impartial, as it is ARRIVAL OF HIS ESCORT AT WINNIPEG.

pointed by the government, and the government discountrymen ment cannot be considered impartial, as it is an enemy of Riel. He will insist that his client be tried by a jury of his countrymen in the ordinary way. It is stated on good authority that Dr. Fiset, M. P. for Rimouski, has organized the defence and will arrange for the expenses. Dr. Fiset accompanied Riel when the latter was sworn in as a member of parliament for Manitoba, and has long been his personal friend.

Woodroffe of the Grenadiers. He was in the mounted police before he returned to Toronto, joined the Grenadier band, and Sir John Macdenald Moves an Amend-roats. They only traveled by day and took every precaution at night against a surprise.

Riel did not seem to fear his fate but was entirely resigned, recognizing that his punishment would be severe. He talked in a very religious strain but exhibited no hesitation to speak of the rebellion, nor did he attempt to disguise his own part.

On parting at Regina, Riel shook hands with both Capt. Young and the Rev. Mr. Pitblado, exclaiming to the latter "pray for me," He also wrote on a fly leaf of Mr. Pitblado's testament, and which is as follows: "May 20, 1885.—Louis David Riel thanks you, reverend sir, for the very christian sermon which you have had the kindness to preach in favor of the Indians during the war."

He said the tyranny of the Hudson Bay officials and the police compelled him to fight, that he had five hundred men at Batoche and that he himself commanded them. He produced a note from Gen. Middleton as follows:

"If you will surrender I will promise you protection for yourself and councillors until you are dealt with by the civil authorities.

"FRED, MIDDLETON, May 13, 1885." "General Commanding."
He acknowledged that Col. Otter's attack on the Indians prevented Poundmaker from joining him. He declared that he was not in entire sympathy with the Catholic ohurch. In answer to a question as to word and the whole have killed about ninety-five, and God only knows how many wounded, of the rebels, but I think we must have hurt two or three hundred of them. The rebels cannot fire good once. We have done better han he expected. His stronghold was Batoche, and we took it at the point of the bayonet. Three cheers did it all.

Ram Like Sheep.

John Reid, No. 2 company, Royal Gren.

John Reid, No. 2 company, Royal Gren adiers, writes to Jas. W. Reynolds of the mental in securing the recognized or the rights of the halfbreeds in Manitoba, my conduct was condoned, if not justified, by the treaty which the government recognized me as the ruler of Manitoba for two months, from the 24th of June when Wolseley entered; he proclaimed me a bandit, not a traitor; he never arrested me; when Government recognized my services. I resigned my seat in Provencher to a member of the government. I have shown the government against the government. I have shown the government many favors, while they have never conferred a single favor on me. I have been true to the halfbreeds. I have not rebelled against the government. Besides, I am a citizen of the United States can scarcely be a traitor to the dominion.

The rebel leader said he went te Montana at the earnest request of Archbishop Tache, who gave him $800, and his wife $200, from the government. He returned to Canada at the solicitation of God's people, the halfbreeds. He saved the prisoners from indignities and cried while talking about the killed at Batoche.

morrow morning for Regina to guard Riel, who states that his force at Fish Creek was only 154, three Indians and four half-breeds of whom were killed. He steted that 76 rebels were killed in the four days' fighting at Batoche and 192 wounded.

Riel says the design of a reform movement was two-fold—one to free the people from the church of Rome, and the other to redress political grievances. He says the council had decided on the capture of Crozier and his men at Duck Lake and to make them all prisoners, and then use them as hostages to come to terms with the dominion government. They also determined to capture Irvine, but the latter made a detour and disappointed them. The council then decided on keeping quiet, hoping that the general would move against them with a small force. It was their intention if he did so to make a bold dash, capture a hundred or so, and then play the hostage game with the government. He did not cut the wires because he thought he might have to use them himself in dictating his own terms to the dominion government.

Capt. Young and Mr. Pitblado do not believe Riel to be insane.

At the same time while Riel was in that institution, the correspondent adds, he was frequently invited to spend the evening with several respectable French-Canadian families in and around Quebec, and they did not believe him insane. The correspondent thinks the cowardly poltroon might feign insanity to escape punishment.

"Many Happy Returns of the Day."

"Many Happy Returns of the Day." of the Bon Marche, born in John street, Andrew's ward, May 27, 1830.

His Mother. When the word came; We never flinched from the strife Maid, mother, or dame. We fought the battle over; And over again—
Ours, was the blood that spilled,

Bring back my boy to me: Bring back the boy who prayed, Bring him and give me him

Bring him, and let me kiss Ere the grave's dark abyse

"God's will be done," I say: Ah! hard to pray— Christ, gentle Saviour, lead, Lead thou the way. Warm, Followed by Wet.
