

No.
9.	The present importance of our colonies in America, compared with the value which those we have lost were to Great Britain, at the commencement of the late American war 325
10.	A comparative statement of the imports made into Great Britain from the United States and her own American colonies 326
11.	Comparative statement of our exports to the United States and her own American colonies respectively 328
12.	Value of British imports, and the proportion of which is made up of freight,—how much of such freight is the earnings of British ships, and what proportion of those earnings arises from the trade of our American colonies 330
13.	Value of British exports..... 331
14.	The amount of the tonnage of the American shipping exceeds that of all the British shipping employed in trade 332
15.	Amount of the tonnage of British merchant shipping 333
16.	Shipping annually entered inwards in the trade of Great Britain, shewing the proportionate amount of British tonnage, the amount of foreign tonnage, and the proportion entered inwards in the trade with our American colonies 334
17.	Shipping annually cleared outwards in the trade of Great Britain, shewing the proportionate amount of British tonnage, foreign tonnage, and the proportion cleared outwards in the trade with our North-American colonies 335
18.	The quantity of fish annually exported from the British North-American colonies, and the quantity annually imported into our West-Indian settlements 338

the
she
to situ
bein
the Bri
nist
that in a
men
F
nies,