GETTING READY FOR THE SHRINERS AND FAMILIES

Seattle, Wash., July 2.—Final preparations for the opening of the 41st Imperial Council session of the Mystic Shrine, the largest and probably the most important gathering in the history of the high order, have been completed here, and the city, gay with bunting, flags and Oriental designs, awaits the coming of thousands of nobles and their families.

The vanguard will arrive on Saturday July 10, and from that time on special trains from every part of the country will bring bands, patrols and delegations from the 187 temples until Monday evening preceding the opening of the session.

The Imperial council will convene on Tuesday morning, July 13, and will extend over three days. The shriners will be officially welcomed to the northwest by governor Ernest Lister of Washington, Mayor Hiram C. Gill of Seattle and other prominent westerners. The response will be made by the Imperial potentate, Dr. Frederick H. Smith of Rochester, N. Y.

Many social events have been planned. Four huge balls, three on one evening and one on the closing night of the council—three luncheons at which 2,000 persons will be guests of the Seattle nobles, excursion trips, lawn fests, barbecues and other features will comprise the programme.

After the council the majority of the delegates will tour the southwest and visit the California Exposition before returning to their homes.

A promissory note for ten cents, the instrument being dated Feb. 4, 1888, was found by the owner the other day in an old pocketbook at Polo, Mo. The signer of the note is alive and solvent, but the holder declares he would rather keep it for payment, even though he has figured that principal and interest amount to something like $817.

MUNITION PLANTS OF GERMANY WORK AT FEVERISH PACE

No Labor Troubles Because Men Fear They Will Be Sent to Front—30 Hours at a Stretch

London, June 30.—A "neutral" correspondent, just returned from Germany, in an article in the Chronicle this morning, describes the German organization for the manufacture of munitions as follows:

"It is in towns, particularly industrial towns, where one sees how entirely the German nation is organized for war. Into these towns an enormous number of men have been drafted from the country to work in factories, which are humming day and night with activity to keep up the supply of all things necessary for the fighting line.

"In general, the relations between capital and labor there have experienced no table amelioration. Indeed, the impression one gains in travelling about Germany is one of absolute settled industrial peace, but I know this has only been secured because all parties know that the first signs of dissatisfaction would be treated with the utmost vigor of the law.

"At some of the largest factories men are often at work fifteen, twenty and thirty hours at a stretch. It is said that though there are ample stocks of all kinds of ammunition, there is noted daily and nightly a feverish haste in factories where it is made.

"The men are not officially taken over the factories, but there is a clause in the contracts which fixes rates of wages for every grade of workmen, so that any questions of increases that the men might raise are out of the hands of the employer, and the workmen are in the hands of the state. Strikes are therefore unknown, a further deterrent being the knowledge that any man who does not do his utmost without murmuring will quickly be embodied in some regiment destined for the hottest places at the front.

"In factories, where government work is being done, wages are high, and even in the few cases where wages of certain unskilled workmen have fallen, the men are allowed to work practically until they drop to make up more hours what they have lost by the lower rates.

"There is keen competition to obtain work in the factories working for the state, and the men engaged in these know almost certainly that for some time at least they will not be sent to the front, which seems to be the chief dread underlying all other thoughts and feelings.

"For work on Sunday wages are fifty per cent higher than the usual rate. The men are encouraged to work on Sundays and overtime on week days, and the price of food is so high that they need little encouragement. Where women have taken the places of men, their wages are in most cases lower."

Montreal, July 1.—Two brothers, Villa and Giovanni Patri, aged 25 and 28 respectively, of 3470 Notre Dame street, Montreal, were drowned early this afternoon at Longue Pointe.

Giovanni lost his life trying to save Villa, the latter having gone into the river to get some tomatoes. He had more than he wanted, and put in a row for the Times man, who was also given some turnip plants and other things, along with a bit of garden, to interest the children, and enable their truthful parent, after week-end visits to tell curious groups on the street corners in town how many inches in diameter his turnip had grown in a week, and what heavenly satisfaction there is in raising your own blisters.

Of course the tomato plants had to be visited in the morning, to see if they had developed any blossoms overnight. They had not, and one of them had been broken off. Visions of dogs, cows, and other marauders at once suggested themselves—the need of a fence for the garden plot. The tale was told to Mr. Parker.

"Cut-worm," said that gentleman sentimentally, when he had examined the stalks, and after a moment's digging around the root he produced the destroyer, an insignificant little worm less than an inch long. It may be true, as a man on the Ocoee observed on the voyage up the river, that what a man sows, shall he also reap; but sometimes just to worry the philosopher, a perverse fate comes along with a cut-worm.

Visitors, Cottagers and Crops.

There were many visitors at Public Landing yesterday. A number of families went up on the Ocoee on Wednesday, and after a moment's digging around the root he produced the destroyer, an insignificant little worm less than an inch long. THE KING DEVIL AND CUT-WORM

They Are Both Summering up River—Amateur Gardening—The Holiday at Public Landing—Happy Days for Children

The King Devil is running riot at Public Landing. Being only a weed, however, it has not interfered with the work at Benah Camp, further than to invite a copious flow of language which does not bear the ear-marks of early plenty.

The King Devil grows to a height of one to two feet, has very conspicuous yellow blossoms, and spreads both by seed and runners, and the farmer who catches up with it is going some. It is honored with special mention in a government publication lately issued at Ottawa. When it settles down in a field, the grass and clover have no more chance than one of Charles Parker's little pigs when their mother gets at the trough where they are feeding. But a King Devil is always a hog, and so is the King Devil, and there are others, mostly government contractors. Anyhow, the grass and clover stands no chance with the King Devil, and even our old friend the ox-eye daisy has its troubles. When these two settle down in the same field, the farmer who wants winter fodder for cows and horses may as well sell out.

It is a curious fact that the King Devil first appeared at Public Landing about four years ago. That was when the Borden government came into power; but Charles Parker, being a good conservative, obviously refused to see any necessary relation between the two events, when it was pointed out to him by a farmer, although he must do considerable ploughing this summer to put the King Devil out of business in his fields. Rapid relations of course, in extreme cases summer following, is necessary to destroy this weed.

Also the Cut Worm

Mr. Parker was transplanting some thirty tomato plants. He had more than he wanted, and put in a row for the Times man, who was also given some turnip plants and other things, along with a bit of garden, to interest the children, and enable their truthful parent, after week-end visits to tell curious groups on the street corners in town how many inches in diameter his turnip had grown in a week, and what heavenly satisfaction there is in raising your own blisters.
