Boston Professor Thinks U.S. Will Join Britain and Canada in Bond

United Press Despatch. BOSTON, Oct. 7.—George Washington should be one of Great Britain's national heroes, according to Professor David Vaughan, of Boston University. Speaking here last night, Professor Vaughan declared the rebellion of the American Colonies jarred England out of her lethargic conservatism, set her an example of practical democracy and started her on her way to world dominion.

Letters To The Editor

THE PROTESTANT ORPHANS' HOME

To the Editor of The Times-Star: Sir—For very many years the Protestant of New Brunswick bore the stigma that adequate provision was not made for Protestant orphans. Great numbers of such children were denied a fair chance in life. From pulp and platform and through the Press, year after year, came heart-tirring appeals for the removal of this stigma to a Christian people.

Today we have in the suburbs of Saint John, apart from the British street home with its 52 infants, a splendidly equipped institution with 146 children in residence. It is known as the New Brunswick Protestant Orphans' Home. The inmates range from six weeks to fourteen years of age, and come from all parts of the province. They are cared for with loving regard. They are being educated in an excellent school. They are being prepared under Christian auspices for citizenship. Instead of growing up in want and ignorance to become perhaps a burden, perhaps a menace, to society. They go out to carefully selected homes.

It is this great adventure in human welfare to prove a failure because only a tenth of the Protestant people of New Brunswick give it its support? Despite the hopes entertained and pledges given, the Directors are today faced with a shortage of $27,000.

In the fall of 1923 the Manchester property in Lancaster, through John County was secured and an appeal made to the people of the province for funds to erect fireproof buildings suitable for a permanent home for the institution. This has been done, but in the meantime, with an increasing number of children to care for and with the collection of the building fund, etc., the maintenance fund has fallen behind to the extent of $27,000 on which six per cent. interest charges are being paid. A hard fight has been made from time to time to reduce this amount, but without avail. The new Home has accommodation for ninety-four girls and eighty-eight boys over four years of age. There are at present fifty-eight girls in residence, and eighty-eight boys, with a number constantly on the waiting list. The old British street home is being used to house infants under four years of age, fifty-two inmates at present through full up at times. Foster-homes are found for many of these children, thus keeping the number down to a minimum.

Early in May last the writer was approached re organizing a Fair to assist in wiping out the overdraft of $27,000 on the Maintenance Fund of the New Brunswick Protestant Orphans' Home.

Having held one the previous fall and knowing that business conditions were far from favorable for a repetition so soon thereafter, he was somewhat reluctant to undertake it. He, however, promised to consult the usual workers and members of various fraternalities who he is glad to say were unanimously in favor of taking it up and doing what we could.

Quite early in June we began to discuss plans and take steps to secure an efficient organization, since which time we have worked assiduously. It has meant a hard summer's work and a lot of personal sacrifice on the part of some members of the committee.

The amount of money which can be raised by means of a Fair is remarkable, but like all human effort, it has its limitations. Knowing this from past experience we realized that in order to make good the amount of our objective, we should need to tap many resources other than the means employed in our past efforts. There are many persons who do not approve of financing the Orphanage work by fairs and other similar efforts, whereby games of chance are employed.

In order to give these people as well as others a chance to participate, the committee during the month of August mailed 11,450 circular letters addressed to individuals in all parts of the province outside of the city. Later a circular letter was sent to the Fraternal Societies of the province, also a circular letter and subscription blank to all of the over 800 Protestant church outside the city asking them to try to secure cash subscriptions to the extent of at least $10.00 each, later still 1,200 circulars and solicitation blanks were mailed to the business and professional

NOVA SCOTIA HUNTER SHOT AFTER TRIP

Companion's Gun Accidentally Discharged as Pair Were Saying Goodnight

TRURO, Oct. 7.—Kenneth G. Harding, 18, of Lower Greenville, was fatally shot when his hunting companion's rifle was accidentally discharged as the two stood on the roadside saying good night, after an unsuccessful moose-hunt today. The rifle was wrapped in a raincoat and the owner thought he had removed the load. Just as the two parted for the evening the rifle was discharged and the bullet entered Harding's side near the heart. He died an hour later. The verdict of a coroner's jury was accidental death.

SUPPER MEETING. The Other Y's Men of the Y. M. C. A. held their first supper meeting of the season last night in the association building with Edgar Peters, retiring president, in the chair. The special speaker was Rev. R. G. Fulton, who gave a fine address on the Value of Character. The committees for the year were appointed and plans were made for carrying on the general activities of the society.

ROUTINE BUSINESS. Routine business only was transacted at the meeting of the directors of the Home for Incubables held yesterday with W. R. Turnbull, president, in the chair.

As far as the writer can judge, the committee will need at least eight or ten thousand dollars more than is now in sight. It seems too bad after all this effort to fall short when there are so many who could assist if they would. This overdraft must be met in one way or another. How many will be the opportunity while the matter is before the public.

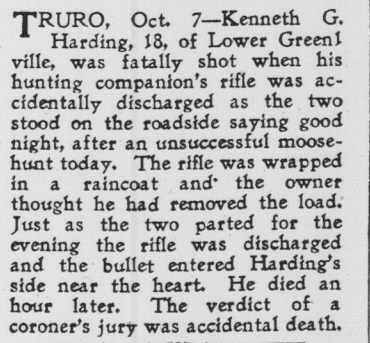

The Fair has about come to a close, but it is not too late to assist. The committee will be glad to accept contributions or pledges for any amount, confidentially or conditionally if desired. If any reader be one of the 197,000 who have not yet contributed and is financially able to pay his own or possibly a little more to allow for the fellow less fortunate, why not contribute to the committee and help them to accomplish the purpose for which they were organized? There are in this province many who could afford to subscribe $1,000 equally as well as the few who can afford to give more. How willing to contribute a like amount if the objective can be reached or who will pledge themselves to give any amount towards this worthy object? Now is the time for action. Support will encourage others.

Yours truly, WM. M. CAMPBELL, Chairman Orphanage Fair Committee, Saint John, Oct. 7, 1926.

Sir Oliver Asks Statesmen to Limit Instruments of Destruction

British United Press. LONDON, Oct. 7.—An "epoch of danger" in which he claims the world is living has caused Sir Oliver Lodge to issue an appeal to world statesmen to curb the intention to produce instruments of destruction. "Aerial locomotion presents possibility of overwhelming entire cities in vast destruction," the veteran scientist and leader in spiritualistic research, said in a speech.

"It threatens to return to the old days when populations, wives and children, even oxen and asses were exterminated."

The speaker expressed wonder as to where the destruction would cease, and mentioned advances in chemistry and the possibility of using disease germs in warfare.

"It is difficult to suppose that any higher being can feel much rapture about the present status of the deeds of mankind," he concluded.

UNDERGOING REPAIRS. The Natural History Society museum building in Union street has been undergoing some alterations during the last few days and has been closed to the public. It is expected that the museum will be opened next week. The rear stairway has been taken out giving more space for exhibits on the first and second floors in the museum and on the ground floor work is still in progress in remodeling to provide a self-contained flat for the curator, Dr. William

WHAT IS MEANT BY "CHIC"?

What are the subtle qualities which give it such importance to the well-dressed woman? My analysis of it as applied to Autumn's offerings. By Lucille La Marre

HOW we are puzzled often with the interpretations of "chic." "Elegance," "style," "distinction." To know their various shades is to know the precious secrets of charm. It is not a matter of mere wealth. A woman of a most limited income may be the personification of "elegance" and "chic," while her rich aunt may dress "elegantly" and be a frump, looking like a circus wagon.

To follow fashion is a dangerous procedure. One must know the difference between the edicts of Paris and the mad fancies of the moment, and those which are mere tendencies.

This Autumn, both in that fountain city of style, Paris, as well as on this side of the water, there are offered a vast array of delectable suggestions, items of interest to Madame and Mademoiselle for adornment from head to foot.

Of necessity, my column permits me to only specialize in one section of the wardrobe. So I choose as my theme those fascinating items of intimacy—underthings, hosiery and gloves.

In these items, sometimes called accessories, but really necessities, there is all the difference in the world between "chic" and mere "style."

A silken "combination" for instance, while destined only for the privacy of one's own eyes, can be a thing of exquisite individuality, releasing one's self-enjoyment of luxury, or it can be a hideously vulgar thing without the least charm.

The French designers know so well the dainty balance between "chic" and "style." To them must go for organizations, but fortunately for us, I am thinking of import prices—we have Canadian manufacturers who give us Frenchy lingerie at domestic prices.

To be "chic" one must also know what's what for different occasions—for street, for tea-time, for evening, for sports. How elegant it is to be unobtrusively groomed.

A man I know, recently took a girl out walking at a country house weekend. She had a very smart sports costume and sports shoes, but the gauzy evening hosiery instead of a more durable material. The hour's jaunt was a series of her exclamatory fears that the hosiery might be wrecked by the woodland weeds, bushes, etc. The man was thoroughly disgusted, and I don't blame him.

To be a "clinging vine" is all right on occasion, but not on hikes. So it is with the other intimacies of woman's costume. They must be beyond question. The right gloves, the right lingerie, the right hosiery.

I am pleased to report to my readers everywhere, that I can recommend one concern which happily knows how to combine both "chic" and economy. To this concern, so well known to you all, Julius Kayser & Co., "the latest thing" is not so all-important as to overshadow the "right thing" and its staff keeps so close to Paris happenings and is so mature in judgment that it never follows the fleeting fads of the moment, but offers always that rare thing of elegance, that height of sophistication—simplicity.

It takes a concern like Julius Kayser & Co. to combine "chic" with an equally important consideration—economy. Being one of the oldest houses in the silk field, being a house of great financial resources, it is paradoxically an interpreter of the mode in one division of endeavor, yet "old-fashioned" in another. It is "old-fashioned" in offering 100% pure silk and 100% pure dyes. It is "old-fashioned" in offering economy. Yet without one division sacrificing to another. A unique combination, I think.

All Kayser stockings are fine gauge (42 gauge). Note their smooth, even elasticity compared with ordinary coarse gauge stockings.

To outfit oneself with Kayser lingerie, gloves and hosiery is to have the satisfaction of always being "chic," never overstepping the bounds of good taste, yet never being a frump—or worse, a "faddist."

I recommend your inspection of the Autumn offerings by Kayser. You will be delighted with the new suggestions.

Recipe for Economical Mayonnaise Take 4 tablespoons olive oil, 4 tablespoons fresh cream, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 teaspoonful Colman's D.S.P. Mustard, sufficient salt and pepper to suit taste. Mix and beat quickly. The mixture will be in a few minutes, having the appearance of fine whipped cream, and the fineness of the best mayonnaise, besides having the advantage of requiring no eggs, never coagulating and being easily and quickly made.

Recipe for Chicken Salad Cut the meat of a cold chicken in dices and put in a salad dish dressed with lettuce leaves, cover with the following mayonnaise:— 1 teaspoonful Colman's D.S.P. Mustard 1 hard boiled egg A little vinegar A pinch of salt and pepper 1 cup cream

Mix the mustard and vinegar together, add yolk of the egg finely mashed, then the salt and pepper. When the whole is perfectly blended, add the cream. If a more piquant mayonnaise is desired, a little more mustard should be added.

To the woman who likes variety in the daily menu, a tin of Colman's Mustard is a golden mine of possibilities for making appetizing dishes.
