A REVOLVING SCENE.

Residents of Indian town passing near the car sheds last evening were very indignant on seeing what they termed "disgraceful scene," three boys, none of them more than fifteen years of age, rolling about the corner of Albert street very much intoxicated. To make matters worse a fight took place among them. People asked where they could have secured the liquor.

PRESENTATION.

About sixty friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Scribner called on them at their home, at 39 Albert street, and gave a surprise party in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary last Thursday evening. Mr. Scribner presented a beautiful watch, and gave a short address to which Mr. and Mrs. Scribner responded. Refreshments were served, and the evening was spent with music and games. The committee in charge was composed of Miss Nellie G. Lytle and Harold Scribner.

MANY IN THIS CASE.

Before Chief Justice Barker in chambers this morning, application was made in the case of Getty vs. Magee, and sixty-two others to sign judgment pro confesso. The case is for the partition and sale of property left by Sarah Jane Getty of Bathurst. sary to bring missionary finances up to more satisfactory standard.

Among the methods of education which he advocated were the men's Bible classes, the instruction of the children in the home and the Sunday school and the formation of classes for the study of definite missionary subjects. He recommended books suitable to different classes of students.

He urged the delegates to do their part in the formation of these classes and the organization of summer schools and winter institutes.

Rev. Mr. Fletcher

Rev. M. E. Fletcher, secretary of the Maritime Baptist Foreign Mission Board, spoke on "The Primary Method of Solving the Missionary Problem."

It was not many years, he said, since the church began to realize that it confronted the problem of the evangelization of the world, a problem of appalling magnitude. The number of those to be reached, a thousand million, was in itself almost beyond comprehension. When they considered that the people to be reached ranged from those near kin to the brutes to those of the finest and most highly cultivated intellect they further realized the greatness of the task.

But the problem was not beyond solution. When they realized that Jesus Christ had the task on twelve men they must realize that the christian church of today could do the work if they but followed the example of their Lord.

As to the methods, they asked God how they were to do the work. The Master gave us the answer in one word: "Prayer." When Christ laid his commission on the Apostles they first spent ten days in prayer. Martin Luther began the reformation in the same way, Carey originated the modern missionary movement in prayer, the mission work on this continent began in prayer and the present laymen's movement was started at a gathering of men in New York who met for prayer.

They needed to realize the terrors of idolatry, the suffering and vice which afflicted the heathen nations before they could pray sympathetically and effectively that workers might be sent into the field. Let all join in prayer until the whole world was bound in golden chains to the feet of God.

W. C. Senior

W. C. Senior, Toronto, addressed the gathering on "How can we reach the local churches in the Rural Districts?" He opened by stating the broad fact that it was worth while to reach the rural churches. He asked the clergymen in the gathering to stand up. Two thirds arose. He then asked all who had not been born and brought up in the country to sit down. Only a dozen took their seats.

"Could there be any more convincing argument as to the importance of the country congregations," the speaker asked, adding: "It is from the country that the next
