The attendance to date is 1,710 in exess of the total attendance at the exhibition of 1897 and 2,571 ahead of the exhibition of 1896.

WHY THIS LARGE PATROXAGE? It is a matter of very recent history that there was strong opposition in this city to the holding of an exhibition this year, and that many business men, who fully believed the undertaking would be a failure, gave it the cold shoulder. The chronic crockers and pessimists were delighted over the outlook.

Nothing daunted, the exhibition asociation went ahead with unabated ceal and spirit, the city council and the provincial government rendering timely, if somewhat niggardly, financial assistance, and got up an exhibition that for the universality of its attractions surpassed all its predeces-sors. While the popular demand at the present day for light amusements and entertainments was judiciously catered to, the industrial and educative enius was recognized. Take, for example, the new illuminant, acetylene gas. Three different machines, one in full operation, demonstrate how isolated residences, factories, mills churches in the country or anywhere away from gas works, can be lighted as brilliantly and more cheaply than This feature of the exhibition alone appeals to thousands all over the provinces. Then the farmer has a practical object lesson before his eyes in the great grain exhibit from Manitobs the great grain exhibit from Manitoba and the Northwest, made by the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., which he can compare with that made by the Central Experimental Farm at Nappan, N. S. The lover of all that is beautiful in horse-flesh can find in Sanborn's 15 French coach horses a collection of spirited and high-type animals never before shown in New Brunswick. The man interested in practical mechanics. man interested in practical mechan on visiting machinery hall, will see seven of the latest and most approved types of steam engines, great and small, in working order, as well as other things worthy of notice. The drill shed contains a comprehensive stock of carriages of all kinds; agricultural hall is stored with the choicest products of the field, the orchard and the dairy; the sattle sheds are the temporary home of magnificent types of beef and dairy animals, with a sprinkling of that fast-disappearing ouadruped, the general-nurposes cow quadruped, the general-purposes of the horse stalls never contained a ter lot of equines; while sheep abo

The greatest advance was made however, when the management constructed a short quarter mile circular track on the parade ground, and thereby furnished a place where the horses and cattle could be shown and paraded in full view of thousands. This track, which passes directly in front of the grand stand, has been used so far with great success, every afternson and great success, every alterneon and evening for a catchy programme of free outdoor sports, including chariot races, hurdle races, flat running races, the speeding of trotters, etc., supplemented on the enclosure within the track, by acrobatic and gymnastic feats, tight-wire walking, and in the afterneous by Mile. Nata's thrilling dive from a high pole into a tank of tracter but aight feet deen. These feats water but eight feet deep. These fea. tures, with a fine variety entertainments twice daily in amusement hall, are drawing cards of no mean

In brief, the exhibition appeals to all classes and all tastes to a degree never before attempted, and as it has been favored by splendid weather, it has been patronized beyond all precedent.

THE TREATMENT OF PATRONS. Unusual pains have been taken this ear to make things agreeable and inviting for all visitors. The police arrangements, under Chief Clark's eye, have ensured perfect order within and around the exhibition grounds. The few drunken men that have appeared have been wight taken area. have been quietly taken away, or sent home, and the crooks have found themselves under such close surveillance that they have either kept low or left for pastures new. Not a single case of pocket-picking has taken place

For the first time in the history of St. John exhibitions, the restaurant and lunch stands have been supplied and managed in first-class shape, and so popular has the catering of the ladies of Sussex become, that hundreds of citizens make a point of taking what they want to eat in the building, instead of going home to meals, as hey were forced to do last year and year before.

CHILDREN'S DAY. Saturday was children's day, and the young folk had full possession of the buildings and grounds. Adults were present by thousands, but they were overshadowed by the juveniles, who invaded every nook and corner, and were not still a moment. children's greatest apparent delight was found in the open-air sports. They encircled the track by thousands and cheered and waved their hats while the charlot and flat races were in progress, but the trick donkey was by long odds their favorite, and his antics were rewarded with a universal ovation. When Nata finished her high dive, which was cheered to the echo. the kids could stand still no longer that of 1898, 16,490 ahead of that of water. Nata's walk to her dressing 1897, and 17,268 ahead of that of 1896.

enraptured boys and girls. The dis-play of fireworks at night rounded out a day that will long be remembered by most of the little folks of St, John. AGRICULTURAL HALL The exhibit in agricultural hall is one of the features of the exhibition. Superintendent S. L. Peters is proud of it, and the association members smile complacently whenever this exhibit is mentioned. There is ample reason for Mr. Peters' pride and the smiles of the year invested with the utmost care and with the greatest possible benefit and with the greatest possible peneut by the genial superintendent. His opinion on the exhibit is the best that can be obtained, and his taste in the arrangement of the display finds reward in the appreciation of numerous risitors. The exhibit in fruits is ex-ceedingly creditable, and this particu-larly so of New Brunswick. One fact ecncerning this display should receive a little more attention from exhibitors, and that is care in handling. While the market value of an apple is not hurt by such a thing as an imperfect or badly broken stem, yet its exhibition value should certainly be less. It is a fact also that the same exhibitors exercise more care in handling their fruit for the Halifax exhibition than they do for the one held here. This is partly accounted for by the fact that the rules governing the competition in St. John are not so rigid as those obtaining in the sister city. However this may be, the evidence of somewhat careless handling remains.

In the fruit class open to all, the display is splendid, while that in the class open to New Brunswick products is superior in quality and much more extensive than ever before. The idea that fruit could not be successfully grown in this province has long ago been exploded. In plums, pears and peaches, the exhibit is at least fifty per ent, better than any ever seen here pefcre. Nova Scotia is almost entirely
