ENGLISHMEN LOOKED FOR CHAPS AND SOMBREROS AND WERE MUCH SURPRISED AT COLONIAL EDITORS

(By John Foster Fraser.)

In England we have what is known as "King's Weather." British people believe that however much it may rain on other occasions the sun shines brightly at functions attended by His Majesty and the Queen Consort. It is a coincidence, but one fondly accepted as a reality in England.

So gloriously shone the sun on the afternoon of Monday, June 21, when the Prince and Princess of Wales gave a garden party at Marlborough House. The aristocracy of the Old Country, men distinguished in letters, in arms, on the sea, famous actors and beautiful actresses, were all invited to the town residence of the heir to the throne. And there they spent a pleasant afternoon in the most charming of grounds.

The distinction about this garden party was the special invitations which were extended to the overseas Britons attending the Imperial Press Conference and their ladies. They came, first by the Prince and Princess, and afterwards being separately introduced to His Majesty and the Queen by Lord Burnham, the general proprietor of the London Daily Telegraph.

It was a scene which will live long in the memory of those who came from fruitful Canada, wide-stretching Australia, picturesque New Zealand, South Africa, with its mighty possibilities and India, gorgeous with its traditions.

There was a time when the colonial visitor had a distinctness of attire which picked him out in the London throng. Indeed, he took a certain pride in letting the world and his wife know he came from a new and energetic land. Things have changed. Perhaps the men had gone to London tailors, and maybe the ladies had patronized fashionable West-End costumers—but the fact was that the ladies were just as exquisitely gowned as the fashionable women who make the London season radiant, and except for a sprightliness of shoulde, and a touch of bronze upon the cheek, there was nothing to mark out our visitors from the English folk assembled.

There had been rain all the previous day. But this only freshened the trees, made the carpet sward more green, and drew the perfume from the banks of flowers. There was a tort set apart for the Royal party. A long marquee, three-sided, was devoted to refreshments for the guests of their Royal Highnesses. Military bands crashed valiant music. Officers in crimson coats marched about the grounds. Dames and damsels were in the softest and yet most brilliant of clinging raiments. Their hats were wonders of millinery.

The Prince and the Princess stood by the path, and by their side was the Princess Mary—dressed in white, children are, in the simplest of white frocks—while little Prince John, in sailor costume of duck material, was close at hand. Men bowed their heads and ladies made their curtsies.

But the great event was the coming of the King and Queen. The Prince and Princess entered Marlborough House to receive them. The throng of visitors made a great semicircle before the main doorway. Then, when the Prince came out, the King, his mother on his arm, and his gracious Queen, followed with the Princess of Wales, all male heads were bared, and all the women folk entered the King's most prettiest sights imaginable. The band played the National Anthem, and the

MR. BUTLER TALKS OF THE INTERCOLIAL

Fredericton, June 21.—Mr. M. J. Butler, C. E., deputy minister of railways and canal and chairman of the intercolonial railway commission, has returned to the city after a three-ernment railway system.

Mr. Butler, interviewed, said that the main object of the trip was that Mr. Brady, a member of the commission, who is a stranger to the intercolonial, might become thoroughly familiar with the road and its general conditions. During the trip the board met the different boards of trade throughout the maritime provinces, all of whom were clamoring for changes and improvements of different kinds.

As to the policy of the new board, Mr. Butler said nothing definite had been decided, but several minor changes, effecting considerable saving and car shops, at Moncton, erected at a cost of nearly two million dollars, will be ready for occupation by the first of July. Those shops are thoroughly equipped with electric cranes, and different mechanical devices, which will do away with the necessity of a large staff of laborers employed at the present time. The general office staff will be reduced in some departments. The abolition of the pay car means a saving of about $20,000 per year.

Another saving will be made in advertising. In future the time cards will appear only in the two leading papers of Toronto, instead of nearly all Ontario papers, and in future when advertising through the Maritime Provinces, the board will choose the best advertising medium, regardless of politics.

When questioned regarding changes in the train service, Mr. Butler stated that in future there would be a morning and evening train from Montreal to Halifax, as well as from Halifax to Montreal. That fine old man, who is known as the C. P. R., followed the Ocean Limited from Moncton to Halifax. There will be several other changes in the provinces, the principal one being a night train to Sydney which will take the place of the Sydney flyer.

AN ELEPHANT FLEET KEPT IN INDIA

Its elephant fleet is one of the strangest and most deadly departments maintained by the British government in India. It is a large fleet of coasting steamers specially built for the transport of elephants, India's population is one-fifth that of the entire globe. All these people use elephants. They use them for draught work and for tiger hunting, and in the pit them against one another and against wild beasts. The elephant transfers the animals from Dacca, the trapping and training headquarters, to the various districts whence comes the demand.

To get an elephant aboard ship is a difficult and dangerous task. The animal must be made to walk the surf to a stout raft, and this undertaking is so white and tumultuous, often terrifying and maddens him. In his fury he is greatly hampered. Once on the raft, his legs are tied to pegs, and the sail to the ship is uneventful. But now the elephant's body and a crane must hoist him up some twenty or thirty feet to the deck. Here again the elephant cannot be set down as intractable if losing his head in the process of aerial journey, he murders some more mahouts. Very prosperous, albeit stained a little with mahout's blood, the elephant fleet for many years has plied up and down the Indian coast embarking and disembarking its heavy unmanageable freight.

GRAND MANAN.

Grand Manan, June 21.—Great turnout of K. P.s and Orange parade at Seal Cove.

At Seal Cove, a pretty village 12 miles from steamer's landing, matters assumed a lively appearance on Sunday last. Orange lodge Arbor Light went in procession to services which were conducted by the Rev. J. Spencer.

The sermon was a brief survey of the history of Orangeism in England, Ireland and Canada with its principles and obligations. At the close of the service the procession returned and proceeded to the cemetery to decorate the graves of the departed brothers.

The K. P.s of Grand Harbor went to Seal Cove to decorate the graves of departed brothers. The pretty village was thronged with visitors from different parts of the island.

The Grand Harbor team played a baseball game with Seal Cove on the 19th, at Grand Harbor. The former won by three counts.

A very pleasing concert was given at North Head on Saturday evening, by the young people under the direction of Miss Jacobus, of Whale Cove Cottage.

Mr. Allen Guphill, of Grand Harbor, one of the old and respected residents is in Boston undergoing special treatment for internal trouble.

Rev. J. Spencer was in the city Monday to meet his daughter who is on vacation from the Victoria Hospital, Fredericton.

Premier Hazen and the Hon. member for Charlottetown, Mr. Clarke, with Mr. Carter, school inspector, paid a flying visit to Grand Manan last week. The object of the visit is not yet revealed.

The Rev. H. Osgood, of the church of the Ascension, Boston, who is on a visit to Grand Manan, has been assisting the rector by preaching at the church of the Ascension, North Head and at the parish church.

The annual school meeting was held on the 19th, throughout the island. Schools are in a prosperous and satisfactory condition. A few changes in teachers will occur.

CORN HILL.

Corn Hill, June 18.—The promised rain has come and vegetation is looking better.

The Hazen road law will soon be in operation. The commissioners, Byard McLeod, Melbourn Wilcox, Guilford Atkinson, Asa Keith are getting to work. They are all good men and when they get through the road will be much improved.

W. J. Clark has sold his home and small farm to John W. Debone for a good price.
