

GRAND PAGEANT

Evolution of Military Arms and Warlike Tactics Brilliantly Portrayed—Historic Battles Fought Over Again.

London, July 5.—The army pageant was a triumph of organization for a patriotic charity. The Soldiers and Sailors' Help Society has done immense work in relieving distress and obtaining employment for members of the fighting services since it was founded during the Boer War.

Gaels, Iverlans, Scots, Brythons and Romans have their excursions and alarms, and a nation is gradually trained in the art of war. The primary lesson of morale in battle is taught in King Arthur's conflict at Mount Badon, and at Ashdown King Alfred introduces a settled plan of attack and retreat by well directed initiative.

The pageant suggests the evolution of a fighting nation from primitive barbarism, the relation of tactics to weapons, the development of military science and the progress of military science and the importance of initiative, aggressive power and morale in battle.

Three regimental bands with a chorus of three hundred voices supply the music which fills the pauses throughout the pageant, and the music is impressive when Handel's Te Deum, composed at the request of George II, is repeated after Dettingen.

Exterior and partial interior view of Count Zeppelin's dirigible airship Deutschland, which was meant to earn $4000 a day in the aerial passenger service in Germany.

Berlin, July 4.—The wreck of the magnificent new Zeppelin air-ship Deutschland, on the treacherous of the Teutoburgwald, near Osnabruck, on Tuesday, has temporarily dealt a death blow to the passenger airship idea in Germany.

These calculations proved on Tuesday to be without any solid foundation. The Deutschland, it is true, conducted a gallant battle with the winds for nearly nine hours before her last motor totally gave way, but the elements eventually proved the victor and showed that even the staunchest of mechanically propelled balloons is helpless when it comes in contact with violent atmospheric conditions.

popular than ever. His relentless bad luck increases the public affection for him, and if he were to consent to appeal for a vote of confidence in the shape of another great national fund there is not the slightest doubt that it would be forthcoming generously and gladly.

also a monoplane. Both constructors, however, will also be represented by biplanes which can carry four passengers. Among French aviators generally the belief prevails that the aeroplane of the future will be the monoplane rather than the biplane.

After the Rheims meeting there is a growing belief that from the point of view of neither public interest nor practical lessons to be derived will aerodrome flying compete long with cross-country flights such as are in prospect in America for the $25,000 prize offered for a New York-Chicago race, in England with The Daily Mail's offer of $50,000 for a race from London to Edinburgh and back by a circular route, and in France with the prize of $20,000 for a circular tour touching a number of the chief cities of France.

MISS DEACON WEDS PRINCE

London, July 5.—Miss Dorothy Deacon, daughter of the late Edward Parker Deacon and Princess Antoinette Albert Radziwill, were married in St. Mary's church, Cadogan Square, today.

Princess Radziwill is 25 years old and will succeed his father, Prince George as head of the great Polish family of Radziwills, which owns immense tracts of lands in Litzon and several castles.

Three regimental bands with a chorus of three hundred voices supply the music which fills the pauses throughout the pageant, and the music is impressive when Handel's Te Deum, composed at the request of George II, is repeated after Dettingen.

All these battle scenes are connected with close approach to realism. There are only a few passages of dialogue. There is a succession of infantry rushes and cavalry charges; men fall from horses and foot soldiers are prostrate on the field, and the open air theatre is full of movement and the clash of arms.

It is a varied and deeply interesting series of spectacles following one another in quick succession, and apart from the shifting of scenes on the concealment of the field, when the

THE JAPANESE IN ENGLAND

Interesting Sights And Experiences At The Oriental Exhibition At Shepherd's Bush—Has Poetic Appeal. London, July 4.—A correspondent writing to the London Truth says: The exhibition of dwarf Japanese trees in the Uxbridge Road annex and elsewhere is pure joy. They compress the romance of all the gloomy forests that never were in the Land of Faerie into the limits of a luncheon basket, and any British father, who, seeing them, does not carry half a dozen home with him to Streatham and use them as illustrations the next time his children clamor for a nursery at all.

With native "villages" of one kind or another, we have long been familiar. Years ago there was, I remember, a very delightful "Japanese Village" in Knightsbridge, just opposite the barracks. It has long since been swept away, and it is a real pleasure to welcome its successor "Poetic Japan," which, in the same way, shows the native artifice of work under conditions as nearly as possible resembling those of his native home.
