Mr. Mooney of Harlow & McLean's office has just left the hospital after undergoing an operation.

It is about up to some one to show up that photo Medicine Hat has of a baseball game last February, when everyone was there without overcoats. For nine days up to Jan. 9th the thermometer never went above zero. But this is so exceptional that old residents are trying to think of some new name for the city, as they connect such beautiful weather with the Medicine Hat they know. We have the consolation of knowing, however, that we are still the warmest place in the west. The banana crop is merely delayed a little.
