

tion with the Inkerman senatorship. He is the author of "The Methodists and Ch. of Eng." a pamphlet (1887), and of "Good Health: or, The Physiology of Dietetics and Massage" (1896). As a public man he is strongly in favour of a protective tariff for Can.; the solid unity of the Brit. Empire; the freedom of creed and class so long as they comply with constitutional requirements and are faithful in their allegiance to the Crown. He favours separate schs. where the people require them, and there is a just distribution of funds belonging to them; and he would favour legislation looking to the restriction of the sale of alcoholic liquors, but not enforced prohibition as now advocated by some people. He is a mem. of, and a lay reader in, the Ch. of Eng.—65 Marlborough St., Montreal.
