Team tennis tournament starts July 3

Mississauga's first Junior team tennis cham-ionships will be held July 3 to 9 at the Ontario Racquet

The Mississauga Times, in co-operation with the Ontario Racquet Club, will sponsor the tournament involving juniors from all of Mississauga's community tennis clubs.

Every club in Mississauga has been invited to send a team of four boys and four girls to the week-long Mississauga Times Junior Team Tennis Tournament. Each club can send a teem comprised to - 3 de de la constante in the under 12, under 14, under 16 and under 18 age

All players must be residents of Mississauga and unranked nationally or provincially within the last four

'The key to this tournament is participation,' says tournament director Ron Thornbury. "That's why it's closed to unranked players. This will give those players who normally don't compete in tournaments an oppor tunity to do so.

It will also generate a good, competitive relationship among Mississauga's tennis clubs. It's something that ties all of Mississauga clubs together."

Thornbury does not think that the tournament will detract from the Mississauga-Gulf Oil Junior championships, held each August.

"There's room for more tournaments in Mississauga," he says. "If anything, this will help the Gulf tournament because it will develop interest in Junior tennis. The tournament starts Sunday, July 3 at the Ontario

Racquet Club with an Olympic-style presentation of Elimination rounds will continue throughout the week, with both championship and consolation events. The finals are slated for Saturday, July 9.

Lyndwood Public School grade eight student has reached a high degree of proficiency in the sports in which she competes. Mississauga has, after all, dozens of athletes who are good at what they do.

What is unusual about Margaret is that she attained success despite being born with only one leg. The Mississauga youngster won a silver medal at the Ontario Games for the Physically Disabled in Brantford Saturday ing volleyball and participating in track and challenge to place second in the 100 metre freestyle swimming event. The high placing earns her a trip to Edmonton in August for the Canada Games for the Physically Disabled.

She will compete in seven events in Edmonton. She will swim in the breaststroke, backstroke, butterfly, freestyle and relay events. She will compete in a track and field running event, high jump and the long jump

"The parks and recreation program at Glenforest Secondary School gets full credit for how well Margaret is doing," says her father, Frank. "They put in a lot of time and effort into their programs.'

Nicholson logged 650 lengths in the Glenforest pool this winter. Today she begins another new venture.

She begins training with the Mississauga Aquatic Club (TOMAC) under head coach George Smith

She has a nine-year-old brother. "He's a soccer player but he thinks his sister is great," says Nicholson.

She will be joined in Edmonton by Mississaugan Mike O'Brien, who set a world record in a wheel-chair race at the Ontario games Saturday. O'Brien is also the statistician for the Mississauga Raiders of the Central Ontario Football League.

By TOM MALONEY

Among other reasons, coach Trevor Reid switched from boys' lacrosse to girls' lacrosse because the pressure to win is not as evalent. But watching him guide his favored Cherokees in the Bantam final against the Apaches in the Mississauga Girls' Lacrosse Association tournament at Huron Park Sunday, one would not get the impression that things have changed much.

Rudi's rocky road to get the Bears to Germany

easier these days, although his respiration rate probably won't return normal until at least July 21

That's the day Loerber and his band of Mississauga Bears board a plane at Toronto International Airport and head for a three-week soceer playing tour of West Germany. With the team's much-awaited date less than a month away. Koerber is just starting to see the light at the end of the

When Koerber announced earlier this year that he was planning on taking his team to Europe, things looked great for his team. In addition to fielding one of the strongest Junior R outfits in the National Soccer League, Loerber was relatively certain therewould be few roadblocks between his team and the trip to Germany.

Then things started to go sour Koerber found that he and his pursuit of a European trip. Koerber couldn't even recruit a manager and is still handling every duty on the team. A program that was to generate a great deal of revenue to pay for the trip attracted few advertisers.

club with $4,000 or so, had a ceiling of $1,500. He also found that Wintario's speed in processing grant applications made the postal service look fast.

To make matters worse, one of his top players was lured to another Recreation and Parks Department for a few mementos to distribute around Germany. He received no cooperation

The crushing blow came last week when the Bears' best defensive player, fullback Andy Schroeter, broke his ankle stumbling over a pothole at Huron Park. But thanks to hard work by Koerber and his players and some generous donations from local businessmen, all 'Things are going slowly, but it seems that every day we come across new funds," says Koerber. "Ad sales up. The boys made $900 delivering pamphlets and last week a few businesses made donations 'Ruscher Realty, for one, gave us $500 which helps immensely. We could use another five months, but things are working out.' There was a time when Koerber considered cancelling the entire trip.

"We had to pay the air fare 72 days before the flight," he says. "That was that. But we'd decided beforehand that the trip would probably cost every boy $300 so I collected that months before we left, rather than the

'Hopefully we'll raise enough to cut that cost down. But even if it does cost every boy $300, it's still a bargain. You don't get three weeks in Germany for $300 at too many travel in Germany, with the rest of the time being spent watching and talking with some of the top soccer teams in the scoring.

"It'll be a great education for everyone," he says. "And we'll be competitive. Don't think that just because we're playing European teams we're going to get clobbered. We'll hold our own.'

Things brightened when the defecting player changed his mind and returned. Thanks to the city's public relations department the Bears will present German teams with various mementos of Mississauga.

"The name of Mississauga will be known in Germany," Koerber says.

"It's been a lot of work and it'll be a lot more work once we're over there. But I'm sure it'll be worth it.

But just to make sure, Koerber and his team are keeping their fingers crossed for the next month.

Apologies to the Mississauga Aquatic Club (TOMAC) and Gymnastics Mississauga for any inference in last week's column that their clubs are not run entirely by volunteers. Both clubs do have professional coaches, but can afford them only because of intensive fund-raising.

"We can't afford a coach," says TOMAC president Ed Bennett. "It's only through hard work by a lot of people that we can pay for one.'

The intention of the comment was to point out that TOMAC and Gymnastics Mississauga are much larger clubs than the Mississauga Boxing Club and the recreational basketball leagues.
