Return to Canada of Service dependents

21. The Secretary read a communication from the U.K. government, suggesting that advantage be taken of temporary availability of shipping, to increase the movement to Canada of dependents of Canadian Servicemen who had married overseas.

Canadian Military Headquarters, Overseas, had agreed that it would be desirable and practical to increase the rate to 10,000 a month for the next two or three months. Unless advantage could be taken of this opportunity, a long delay would ensue, since all available shipping capacity would subsequently be required for repatriation and transfer of Service personnel. Some 30,000 dependents were involved.
