

but not quite suitable for church purposes, although it was confidently believed by many that it would be included in the new hymnal of the Church of England in Canada. It is not in the final draft of that choice collection, which contains such poems as the "Recessional," and "Crossing the Bar."

Two of Canon Scott's hymns, however, find a place in this new hymnal. The following is one of them:

Cast thy care on Jesus,
Make Him now thy friend,
Tell Him all thy troubles,
Trust Him to the end;
He is Man and Brother,
He is Lord and God,
And the way of sorrows
Is the path He trod.

Cast thy care on Jesus,
Nothing is too small
For His vast compassion,
He can feel for all;
In the gloom and darkness
Clasp His living hand,
He will guide and cheer thee
Through the desert land.
