The nature of the shareholder's in vestment and the way is which it has in some cases accumulated may be illustrated by the following examples. One shareholder invested $10 on November 1, 1912. This has accumulated until now he holds $316,35 of earital stock and $28,20 of surplus. He is now drawing $24.80 a year on his original investment of $10. This man buys practically everything he requires in the lines hondled from the company. The following is the standing of a man who has purchased very little from the cooperative company, but who, it was stated, has possibly worn out more show that the company from the amount of his savings. He has purchased practically all his goods outside

Besides livestock the lines nor handled include lumbar, lath, shingles line and cement, building paper, sawhe and doors, several lines of farm machiners, flour and feed, hay and grain automobiles, oils, paints and arrange heavy hardware such as barn doortracks and hay forks, and many other commodities.

Getting New Business
The Vulcan Cooperative has competition in all the lines which it handles in spite of this it has developed rapidly in each department. There is a reasoft for this 's said Mr. Lommatzsche Every shareholder becomes a sales man for the compan. He wants his neighbor to hat he may get a share of the profits on his business, and he buy his own goods from the co-operative in order that he may get a share in the profits on his own and his neighbor is purchases. Otherwise he only get his in the profits on his own and his neighbor is purchases. Otherwise he only get his contact of the line of the late.
