Name of Burns. The good old family trees of the Smiths and the Joneses have been pretty well represented in baseball for a number of years. But neither the Smiths nor the Joneses have ever been able to claim the distinction of having three sprouts from their family tree in the major league spotlight at one time, such as the family Burns claims to-day.

The major league stars who are in the midst of their baseball careers represent the old Scotch family. They are George J. Burns, Giant outfielder; Eddie Burns, Philly catcher, and George Burns, first baseman of the Detroit Tigers. Every one of this trio is a star, and unless the war claims one or all of them, or injuries interfere with their baseball activities have years to come in the big show.

Two George Burns, of the Giants, has often been rated as the greatest all-around outfielder in the National League, and of the three he is perhaps the most valuable player. So far this year his fielding and throwing have been superb, and he is keeping in the race for batting honors. Hughie Jennings recently declared that of all the stars in the Giant constellation Burns stands out as the brightest, and this, coming from the manager, is some tribute.

First Baseman George Burns of the Tigers, is serving his fourth full season as a member of the Detroit club. Although he is seldom ranked as an equal of Hal Chase in the art of cavorting around the initial station, he is a ball player any big league club would be glad to grab and he is only 24 years old. Each year his work with the Detroit club shows marked improvement, for his fielding becomes more polished and he can hammer the ball around a 250' clip season in and season out.

Also Eddie Burns. Eddie Burns, second catcher with the Phillies, is now in his fourth full season as a member of the Quaker-town club, and although an injury early in the season kept him back he is considered one of the most valuable players on Pat Moran's team. Eddie is a glutton for work, and if it wasn't for the fact that Moran has a star in Bill Killifer, Eddie would get all and perhaps more work than he could handle. The Philly backstop isn't as heavy a stick as the other two representatives of the Burns family, but he makes up for it in every other way. You've gotta hand the Burns family a little credit. It has helped to do its bit for the gran' ole game.

DARCY ANXIOUS TO MAKE AMENDS

Australian Pugilist Saw
Mistakes and Repented
Before Death

(By H. C. Hamilton.)

Before he died, Les Darcy, the Australian pugilist, realized with all his heart every mistake he had made, and longed for one more chance to do the proper thing in Australia. The Sydney Argus, representing one of the best sports circulations in the island continent, declared recently that Snowy Baker, the Australian promoter, had received a letter from Darcy, asking that steps be taken to make it comfortable for him if he should return. Darcy wanted to go back and enlist in the Australian army.

This was after things had been going so badly for Darcy in this country. His refusal to meet the best middleweights of the nation, his continual demands for huge purses having held him down a t a time when he might have been blazing a path to new glory, had stopped him short. Feeling grieved over the unexpected turn in the reception given him, Darcy determined to go home. Cast out of the minds of fight-lovers in the United States, he then discovered that Australia had no place for the man who fled just two days before a vote was taken on conscription of all its men. News of his turning up now, in fact, I haven't felt as good in several years. Tanlac has done me more good than all the medicines I ever took, and I have made up my mind to take a full course of six bottles to make sure those miserable feelings I used to have, are snowed under for good."

Tanlac is sold in Brantford by M. H. Robertson and Co.

More and more the efforts of Connie Mack, silent leader of the Athletics, are gaining respect among the big leaguers. The prediction made by himself when he began to whittle off the stars with whom he had won several world's championships, that he would be back in the race by 1917, was not been realized, but he has succeeded in making the name Philadelphia once more one to be feared in the American League.

Discussing Mack and his newly-made team recently, Bill Donovan said that he would rather play all most any club in the league than send his men into a contest against the Athletics. "They don't win any pennants this year," Donovan commented, "but they're going to fight mighty hard for every game they go into. From this time on they're going to improve. I'm a mighty mistaken student of this national pastime if the Athletics are not found kicking considerable dust around before the end of the 1918 campaign gets here."

Donovan figures—and so does every other baseball manager who has had a glimpse of him—that Ray Bates is one of the finest players the minor leagues have yielded in many a day. He also believes Witt the equal of any shortstop in the American league, with the possible exception of Roger Pecknappaugh, his own short-fielder. Second base is a problem, but McInnis is fully the

L. & P. S. Conductor Says
Tanlac Ended Troubles
After Everything Else
Failed

Nearly everybody, especially railroad people, in London, Port Stanley and St. Thomas, know Marshall Thomas, a popular conductor on the London and Port Stanley railroad, residing at 535 Gray Street, London. Mr. Thomas is among many well known people in the section to testify to the benefits they have derived from the use of the new medicine, Tanlac. In an interview at his residence a few days ago Mr. Thomas said:

"I suffered from stomach trouble for more than five years; for nearly four years of this time I never ate any breakfast, and the only thing I could take was a cup of tea. I always had a bad taste in my mouth and what little I managed to eat didn't taste right. I had a painful, burning sensation in the pit of my stomach like I had swallowed a coal of fire. Gas would form and make me miserable. I was so nervous I couldn't sleep much and would get up in the mornings as tired as when I lay down at night and felt tired and dreary all day. I seemed to have no energy or ambition and just felt my health rapidly slipping from me. I tried all kinds of treatment and spent several hundred dollars trying to get well, but nothing seemed to reach my trouble and I continued to grow worse."

"Tanlac proved to be just what I needed and two bottles of the medicine have made me feel like a new man through and through. I can now eat a hearty breakfast every morning, my food tastes good and I don't bother me like it did. The gas has disappeared from my stomach; I'm not constipated like I was and my tired, sluggish feelings have left me. I have more energy and ambition now, in fact, I haven't felt as good in several years. Tanlac has done me more good than all the medicines I ever took, and I have made up my mind to take a full course of six bottles to make sure those miserable feelings I used to have, are snowed under for good."
