$25 in GOLD Given Away

The great "QUEEN LINIMENT COMPETITION" open to every Man, Woman and Child in Newfoundland. On the 1st of March, 1912, will be given away the Four or more successful winners of this competition the sum of $25.00 in Gold.
 We have on exhibition in the window of our Medical Hall, Theatre Hill, a rectangular box having an inside space as follows: length, 8 inches; breadth, 4 inches; height, 3 inches. This box is filled with Antihistolic Pills of about the size of a pea.
 The competition is to guess as near as possible the number of pills contained in the box. The person guessing the exact number, or the nearest number of pills in the box, will receive for the first prize $10.00; second prize, $5.00; third and fourth prizes, $2.50 each.
 In the event of two or more persons guessing the same number, the amount of the prize will be proportionately divided amongst the successful winners. That rule will apply to all prize winners. Every person purchasing a bottle of our "QUEEN OF LINIMENTS," whether in the city or outport towns, and mailing us the outside green wrapper of bottle, with the number of guess, together with their name and address, will have a chance of winning the grand prize.

NEW YORK. New York, which is one of the most prosperous and enterprising cities on the East River, was discovered in 1609 by Hendrick Hudson, who ran into it while he was looking for something else. Soon after landing in g. Hendrick made the acquaintance of the Long Island mosquito, which accompanied him where'er he went and took his mind off other matters, so after shipping a little soft coal and court plaster he removed himself from the premises, never to return. Two years later a gentleman named Block happened along that way and opened a saloon on the Bowery. As Mr. Block's head bore a close resemblance to his name he was not annoyed by the mosquitoes and remained until Wall

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"Why lucky?" queried the lady.
 "Why to get a nice pair of silk stockings for nothing of course."
 "I don't see that I have," rejoined the lady, laying the extra pair by themselves.
 "You don't mean to say you are going to take them back," cried the authorman's wife.
 "Of course," said the lady-who-always-knows-somewhat.
 "How foolish," said the authorman's wife, "Why don't you just keep them and say nothing about it?"
 "I see it this way," said the lady, "if there were only five pairs in the package, I'd tell them their mistake, and ask for the six that belong to me. It seems to me it's logic and justice for me to tell them their mistake when there are seven, and give the shop people what belongs to them."

The lady-who-always-knows-somewhat had bought a half dozen pairs of stockings, and when she opened the package, found seven pairs.
 "Aren't you lucky?" said the authorman's wife who happened to be present.
 "Yes," agreed the authorman's wife, "That's just the way I feel."
 "I used to wonder about that myself," said the lady-who-always-knows-somewhat, "but I think she's no more likely to get into trouble if you do take a thing back, than if you don't. I always go right to the girl and do it as unobtrusively as possible and they always seem grateful. Besides, isn't that an excuse we give ourselves for keeping things? If we only got five pairs of stockings, when we ordered and paid for six, I think most of us would forget about the girl's side of it, and simply go back and ask for the other pair. Don't you?"
 "Yes," agreed Molly reluctantly, "I'm afraid I would. I guess you're right as usual, big sister."
 "Well, I think you are very foolish," said the authorman's wife tartly, "I'd keep them fast enough, if it happened to be me, and I don't believe anyone would care. You aren't really going to take them back?"
 But the lady-who-always-knows-somewhat, instead of answering, merely smiled serenely and changed the subject.

There was a prosecuting attorney whose methods were dramatic and uniformly successful. Upon retirement from office he was at once sought after by those charged with crime. The first two cases which he defended resulted in convictions much to his chagrin. An old negro who had watched his prosecutions in admiring wonder and looked on with equal wonder when he conducted the defence, accosted him just after his defeat, and said: "Marse Earle, you sho' is a wonder. No matter which side you's on, they go to the pen just the same."

Tight Shoe Costs Girl Right Leg

Baltimore, Feb. 3.—Miss Josephine Patton about a month ago bought a pair of shoes which she wore for several days. Tightness caused a slight irritation on the little toe of the right foot. Miss Patton thought it would wear off in a few days, but it developed in several days in ulceration. Next the foot began to swell and then the leg.
 Thoroughly alarmed, Miss Patton applied for treatment at the Merc Hospital, where the case was diagnosed as gangrenous affection. The foot was opened and the wound sterilized, but it became more virulent, and the physicians decided that immediate amputation was imperative.
 The leg was taken off just below the hip, care being taken to cut away all the infected parts to prevent the disease from spreading.

MY DAUGHTER WAS CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md.—"I send you here with the picture of my fifteen year old daughter Alice, who was restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was pale, with dark circles under her eyes, weak and irritable. Two different doctors treated her and called it Green Sickness, but she grew worse all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking three bottles she has regained her health, thanks to your medicine. I can recommend it for all female troubles."—Mrs. L. A. CORRIAN, 1108 Rutland Street, Baltimore, Md.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for their children have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Go to Thunder

McAllister was a boatswain who unexpectedly came into a small fortune. Quitting the service, he bought a snug little cottage miles away from salt water. When he was comfortably settled, he employed a boy to come to his door every morning at half-past five, knock, and say, "Please, sir, the commander wants you." Whereupon every morning the now free boatswain had the joy of singing out in his grandest voice, "Tell the commander to go to thunder!"

A Blaine Story

Mr. Blaine's good humor was imperturbable. A rancorous Western politician met him one day on the steps of the Capitol with: "Mr. Blaine, I am a stranger to you. But I take the liberty to tell you that you are a fool and a scoundrel!" "Really?" said Blaine, lifting his hat. "Now, I wonder what you would have said if you had been my intimate friend?"
 A certain bus driver, who had been pointing out the sights of London to two of his men passengers, discovered, much to his displeasure, that they were trying to make him the laughing stock of the bus. Determined to pay them back, he pointed out a church, and informed them that the vicar would not bury anyone who lived in his parish. "Is that so?" replied the gentleman, "and how is that, pray?" "Because," replied the bus driver, "they ain't dead."

Anthony to Cleopatra.

I am dying Egypt, dying.
 Ebbs the crimson life-time fast,
 And the dark Plutonian shadows
 Gather on the evening blast;
 Let thine arm, O Queen, enfold me!
 Hush thy sobs and bow thine ear:
 Thou, and thou alone, must hear.
 Tho' my scarred and veteran legions
 Bear their eagles high no more,
 And my wrecked and scattered galleys
 Strew dark Aetium's fatal shore;
 Tho' no glittering guards surround me
 Prompt to do thy master's will,
 I must perish like a Roman.
 Die the great Triumvir still.

Let not Caesar's servile minions
 Mock the lion thus laid low;
 'Twas no foeman's arm that felled him,
 His, who pilloved on thy bosom,
 Turned aside from glory's ray—
 His who drunk with thy caresses,
 Madly threw the world away.

Should the base plebeian rabble
 Dare assail my name at Rome,
 Where my noble spouse, Octavia,
 Weeps within her widowed home.
 Seek her: say the gods bear witness—
 Alas, augurs, circling wings—
 That her blood with mine commingled,
 Shall yet mount the throne of kings.

And for thee, star-eyed Egyptian!
 Glorious sorceress of the Nile,
 Light the path to Stygian horrors
 With the splendors of thy smile.
 Give the Caesar crown and arches,
 Let his brow the laurel twine;
 Can scorn the Senate's triumphs,
 Triumphant in love like thine.

am dying, Egypt, dying,
 Hark! the insulting foeman's cry,
 "They are coming! quick my falchion!
 Let me front them ere I die."
 Ah! no more amid the battle,
 Shall my heart exulting swell—
 'tis and Osiris guard thee!
 Cleopatra, Rome, farewell!

Wounds That Didn't Kill

Instances of the Recuperative Power of Deer.
 "If all deer that are wounded in the course of the hunting season and succeeded in getting out of the way of the hunter should wander away and die the woods would contain many more dead deer than are taken away," said an old hunter. "But all of them do not wander off and die a loss to the hunter."
 "Deer have great recuperative powers. It is no sign that a deer is doomed to go off and die because it is badly wounded. I have killed many a deer that gave evidence of having been severely wounded that its having survived to take the range again seemed almost miraculous."
 "I once shot and killed a buck that had a rifle bullet encysted near the skin of the left shoulder, but there was no wound on the outside of the skin to show that it had entered the deer there. Investigation showed a wound, long healed, near the top of the right shoulder, unmistakably made by that rifle bullet, which must have passed clear through the deer to the left shoulder, where its speed was spent and it lodged just under the skin."
 "Besides that severe wound that deer had been pretty well felled some time or other by buckshot, for I took out nine from one side of him, where they had broken several of his ribs. These two ugly wounds had been inflicted at different times, and in spite of them he was in splendid condition, and I had to give him two shots from a .375-ester before I stopped him."
