The Second City.

A message from Halifax conveys the information that Christopher Hanneig, of Christiania, who apparently is financing the Newfoundland Shipbuilding Company, is now in that city. The message makes it appear that Mr. Hanneig will visit St. John's, where the Company is preparing to operate. This looks like business, and we sincerely hope we see bright times ahead for our friends in Conception Bay. If the hope is realized the benefits will extend to the whole island, for the industry of shipbuilding, which has strangely fallen into decay of late years, is one which ought naturally to have a home here and has most things in its favour. On other seaboard, the extraordinary times have necessarily elevated it to a position of prime importance, and it would have been strange if a maritime country such as ours had remained long unaffected in the same way. Now that the industry has come, we trust it has come to stay and to spread. We do not know as much as we would wish about the new company, but Mr. Hanneig's nationality suggests that its operations may not be confined to the business of shipbuilding. Norway and Newfoundland have so many interests, if not in common, at least similar, that the infusion of a little of the fine methods and scientific system of Norwegian business enterprise into our own would be all to the good. For the present the mere employment of much labour and the expenditure of large capital is a sufficiently encouraging prospect.

A Better Outlook.

The tremendous fighting of the past two months in the West has for a time given place to a period of comparative calm. As far as movement is concerned it deserves the name, but it is far from being a period of inactivity as well. Matters are preparing for what may easily prove a decision and this is particularly so on the French front where it threatens Laon. To-day there is just a hint of recrudescence of hostilities on the Russian front in the place where it would be of most moment, near Kovel. It is most welcome news. Kerenky, already styled the Lloyd George of Russia, not merely his present influence but his origin and pre-war career afford a remarkable parallel to the British statesman's, has finished his whirlwind visit along the fighting front and has reported a wonderful improvement, for which he is doubtless himself largely responsible. If only the Russian army can be got sufficiently in hand to deal a hard blow at the Austrians, weakened by Italy as Germany is by France and Britain, it will have almost instantaneous success. More than that, it will do more than anything else to recall the Russian army to a sense of its real duty. It is impossible to exaggerate the effect of a large Russian offensive at the present juncture, for the work the other Allies have done has admirably prepared the ground for it. If it could be made to materialise, we might once more find ourselves reverting to speculation upon an end of the war this year.

It is also good news to hear that Root's party has landed in Russia and will soon be in Petrograd. We have always been sanguine of the good effects of this visit from the old republic to the new, for it is the counsel and experience of just such men that Russia stands most in need of. Their arrival coincides with the taking by America of the greatest step she has yet taken in the war. Ten million men within her borders will to-day register their names, from whom an army of half a million will spring with a speed Germany never dreamed of. They will be fighting on French or Belgian soil while Germany is still postponing the date that is to see Britain on her knees, vanquished by the submarine. As the credit side of Germany's great venture has already failed to reach the expected figures, so the contra account will swell and swell until, to pursue the metaphor to the end, the books will have to be closed. Posterity will mark June 5th, 1917, as one of the blackest days in Germany's history.

Obituary.

MRS. DIANA SOPER.
Very many in the community will regret to learn of the passing of Mrs. Diana Soper, who died at her late residence, Cook Street, on Monday morning. The deceased lady was the mother of seven sons, two of whom have predeceased her, the others, Messrs. Albert, William, George and Thomas were with her at the end; the youngest, Rev. Samuel H., is a missionary of the Methodist Church in West China.

MRS. JESSE HEYFIELD.
We regret to record the death, early yesterday morning, of Selma Heyfield, widow of the late Rev. Jesse Heyfield, for long a prominent Methodist Minister and member of the Newfoundland Conference. Trinity, Topsail, Old Perican and Heart's Content were among the scenes of Mr. Heyfield's last labours. Mrs. Heyfield was a daughter of the late Thomas Knight and sister of Mr. James R. Knight and the late Stephen and Michael Knight. The first part of the burial service will be held this afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Sheppard, 132 Cover Street, and the remains will then be taken to the railway station for passage to Heart's Content, where interment will take place.

MR. W. H. PARSONS.
We chronicle this morning the passing of Mr. Willis H. Parsons, H. M. Customs, which occurred at his residence, Hutchings' Street, Sunday morning after a brief illness. Deceased, who had reached his 73rd year, was a former resident of Harbor Grace. After removing to St. John's Mr. Parsons occupied a position in H. M. Customs, which he held up to the time of his death, covering a period of fifteen years. A wife, four sons—William and Ernest in Vancouver, and Walter and Arthur in the city; and three daughters—Belle and Maud in the city, Mrs. Hedley Tuff of Vancouver, survives, to whom we extend sympathy.

FISH PLENTIFUL AT BAY BULLS.—On Saturday and Monday fishermen at Bay Bulls secured several large catches of codfish. Traps on the south side of the bay captured from 20 to 50 quintals yesterday. At several other points along the Southern Shore some good catches were also secured.

FIRST BOAT FOR LABRADOR.—The Diana is expected to call for the Labrador mail service at noon tomorrow and with favorable weather and ice conditions will go as far as Rigolet. The ship will call at the usual ports in Newfoundland and take on board fishing crews for the various stations along the Labrador coast. The Sagona will also sail on the same route about Wednesday of next week.

The Tonnage Situation.

The Secretary of State has wired as follows to the Board of Trade:—"In view of the tonnage situation it has been decided that import and export prohibition in the United Kingdom should apply to goods brought here for transshipment, and British lines have been instructed not to book cargo on through bills of lading for transshipment to any port outside the United Kingdom. In order to encourage neutral steamers to call at the United Kingdom, goods brought here for transshipment in such vessels will not require import license if prohibited for import and if prohibited for export, special consideration will be given to applications for export licenses. As regards goods brought in British or Allied vessels, applications for licenses in respect of such goods proceeding to or from British overseas or allied countries, will be dealt with as favourably as possible if direct shipping facilities are available. It is desirable that no goods should be despatched for transshipment here except in neutral vessels until it has been ascertained whether transshipment will be allowed. It is hoped that Dominion Governments will not grant licenses for shipments involving transshipment at the United Kingdom, except by prior arrangement with the Imperial Government as to any proposed transshipment. It is desirable that in addition to other particulars, the name of the firm to be responsible for completing transshipment formalities on arrival of goods in the United Kingdom, should be stated."

Veteran Reservist DIES AT GENERAL HOSPITAL.
On Saturday afternoon at the General Hospital, after a brief illness, the death of Royal Naval Reservist Alan Hancock occurred. Deceased entered the institution on the day previous to undergo treatment for a growth in the throat, but despite the best medical attendance passed away at the time mentioned. The late Reservist Hancock was one of the longest service men in the Newfoundland Naval Reserve, having enlisted on the 19th day of December, 1902 and served for 14 years, 5 1/2 months. At the outbreak of hostilities he was also one of the first to respond to the call and sailed for England on the Franconia, Nov. 6th, 1914, and for over two years rendered valuable service to the Empire and the Grand Old Flag which he dearly loved. Most of the time he spent on the trawler Bolina as chief gunner and while on patrol in the North Sea succeeded, after a stiff fight, in sending a German submarine to the bottom. He was on the ill-fated H. M. S. Laurentic when she was torpedoed off the Coast of Ireland, on January 25th, 1917. For his gallant conduct in rescuing his shipmates under such trying conditions he was complimented by the Admiralty and given an extended furlough. Deceased was held in the highest esteem by the officers and men of the Royal Navy on board H. M. S. Briton and the other ships he had served on; they recognized in him a splendid type of British seaman. Left to mourn are a widow and a little son, to whom the Telegram offers deep sympathy.
