Religious Ceremony at Litledale.

On Wednesday morning the beautiful Little Chapel of St. Bride's College, Litledale, was the scene of the interesting and impressive ceremony of Religious Reception and Profession, when six young ladies renounced the world with its pomp and vanity and assumed the sombre garb of the religious of the Order of Mercy, while four novices were professed and exchanged the white for the black veil.

His Grace the Archbishop officiated, and was assisted by Fathers McGrath, Renouf and Dr. Greene. In the Sanctuary were their Lordships Bishop March, who preached an eloquent sermon, and Bishop Power, who at the close of the ceremony imparted benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

At nine o'clock His Grace, their Lordships and the assisting Clergy with the young ladies who were the active participants in the ceremony of the day, accompanied by the Rev. Mother General and several of the senior members of the Order of Mercy, filed up the beautiful Chapel in processional order, and the ceremony began. The Mass over, and His Grace having received the vows of the newly-professed; the novices-elect retired to divest themselves of their worldly attire, and soon re-entered clothed in the religious habit, and the ceremony of Reception proceeded, after which His Lordship Bishop March preached a most impressive sermon, in which he showed how the beautiful and touching ceremony which all had just witnessed, illustrated the emptiness and vanity of all things human and placed the creature in close touch with the Creator. In the Religious Profession, he said, is exemplified the beautiful lesson taught by the Divine Master, who said, "If anyone will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me." Within this world of ease, pleasure and enjoyment he pointed out that there exists another world in which man does violence to himself by penance and mortification—a world in which self is annihilated, where God reigns supreme, and the only law is the will of God. The young religious taking part in the morning's ceremony had renounced the one with all its allurements and so-called pleasures—and embraced the other, promising in a most solemn manner that their whole life should be one continual effort to acquire perfection, and one unceasing conflict with the powers of darkness. All worldly ambition and every idea of human happiness were to be sacrificed daily while life should last, and laid at the feet of their Divine Spouse, a holocaust of love. But more than that—the human will, the queen of the intellectual faculties, to which nature clings so tenaciously, was to form the most important part of the holocaust—for the Divine Spouse demands a complete sacrifice without reservations—and so the good religious, divested of all self-will and of her own judgment becomes like a little child, submissive and passive in the hands of others—ready to suffer without complaint, to be misunderstood without seeking self-justification, and to bear patiently, nay joyfully, all the trials, crosses and sufferings which will never be wanting to the devoted follower of the Divine Master who bore without a murmur the sins of all mankind. The sacrifice required, he said, seemed hard, but let the young religious be comforted in the assurance that God would never be undone in generosity, that however great their generosity, His would exceed theirs as the joys of heaven exceed those of earth—that He would bless their labors and make them fruitful, that He would comfort and console them in all the trials and sufferings of life, and above all would Himself be their reward in the world to come, enrolling them in that glorious band of whom St. John says: "These are virgins and they follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth, singing that glorious canticle which none but they can sing."

Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament, which brought the beautiful ceremony to a close, was then imparted by His Lordship Bishop Power. Never did the little Chapel look prettier than on that beautiful morning—the Altar was a bower of lights and flowers, emblematic of the innocent young lives consecrating their future to their God hidden under the Eucharistic veils. The beautiful music of the ceremonial harmonizing with the sacrifices, hopes and joys of the young aspirants, was rendered with exquisite taste by the choir, and the beautiful sunshine which penetrated the edifice—a figure of the eternal sunshine of God's love which shone so vividly in the ceremony of the day, cast a halo over that vast throng, and left an impression which time will not soon obliterate.

The ceremony over, His Grace the Archbishop, their Lordships Bishop March and Bishop Power and the large number of clergy present were entertained to breakfast by the Sisters.

Besides the distinguished Prelates and Clergy already mentioned, there were present Rev. Fathers Donnelly, Tierney, Maher, McCarthy, Coady, Pippy, Wilson, O'Callaghan, Sheehan, Rawlins, St. John, Dinn and Dr. Carter.

The newly-professed were: Miss B. O'Connor in religion Sr. M. Augustine; Miss I. Kelly, in religion Sr. M. Teresa; Miss M. Stewart, in religion Sr. M. Philomena; Miss M. Fleming, in religion Sr. M. Gabriel.

The following young ladies received the religious habit: Miss L. Power, in religion Sr. M. Ita; Miss C. Bona, in religion Sr. M. Agatha; Miss M. McNamara, in religion Sr. M. Ursula; Miss A. Coady, in religion Sr. M. Rita; Miss M. Mullowney, in religion Sr. M. Benignus; Miss E. Smith, in religion Sr. M. Imelda.

Good Trapping.

The fishermen of Torbay, Outer Cove, Middle Cove, have done very well with fish this past few days. On Tuesday Tapper of Torbay had 130 quintals in his trap, and his cartel boat had to make eight trips to clear the trap. This is great news and augurs well for a record voyage.
