

FAULKNER CAN SLEEP LIKE SCHOOLBOY NOW.

Halifax Man Restored By Tanlac Last Winter Still Feels Fine, He Says—Makes A Point Of Keeping It In House.

"This is the medicine that set me right last winter, and ever since then I have made it a point to keep a bottle in the house," said Harry Faulkner, 6 Cunard Court, Halifax, N.S., as he purchased a bottle of Tanlac at Kinley's Drug Store a few days ago.

"For about six months before I got Tanlac my stomach was in such a bad condition nothing I ate would agree with me. I could hardly finish a meal before I began having distress. Everything soured in my stomach and kept me in misery for hours after each meal. I got to where I couldn't eat any supper without suffering so much I could scarcely get any sleep, and finally I lost my appetite completely.

"Well, I saw where Tanlac had helped so many others I decided to give it a trial myself, and the very first bottle started me well on the road to recovery. My appetite soon came back to me, and my stomach got in fine condition, and I am still feeling fine. My appetite was never better, and I sleep like a school boy, and am still keeping ten pounds in weight I gained by taking Tanlac. I am glad to give this statement for what it may be worth to others."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Paradise by Mrs. Martin P. Byrne, in Upper Gables by Hebe Andrews, in Portland by H. C. Haines, in St. Joseph, Salmonier, by Mrs. J. Gushue in Millerton by Exploits Valley Royal Stores, Ltd., in Flat Island by William Samson, in Jamestown by Christopher Haines, and in Lewisporte by Brian Preke, —adv.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

A SMALL BOW AND THE CATEGORICAL IMPERATIVE.

We were walking through a public park the other day when a small boy who was ahead of us cut across a grassy corner. His mother turned and rebuked him for walking on the grass.

"Won't do any harm," he countered.

"Would you like to see the grass all worn off across there?" she asked.

I Don't Imagine His Esthetic Sense Would Have Suffered.

I don't suppose he would have minded a particle, but he chose to refute her on her own ground. "Ho, I guess you wouldn't see the grass worn off by my walking on it once in a while!"

"But if you walk on it why shouldn't every one that wants to get there quicker?" said his mother. "And if they did you know there wouldn't be much grass left."

I suspect that mother would have been surprised if she had been told that she was expressing Kant's Categorical Imperative to her son.

But she certainly was.

"No one of us," said Kant, "can do that which if done by all will destroy society."

Of course it would not destroy society if the grass was trodden down, but in a lesser way it would injure society, deprive society of its right to the beauty of the grass, and as I take it, Kant's Categorical Imperative covers such injuries too.

The Law of Matrimony, Too.

"When the happiness of the individual runs counter to the well-being of society the individual must yield," is Margaret Doland's way of translating this law in her book "Helena Ritchie." As you may remember, Helena faces the problem of whether it was right for her to have done a thing which—while perhaps justifiable in her own individual case—if done by all, would destroy society.

"When we object to certain conventions and call them silly, I think we should always stop to think whether, even though in our individual case they seem foolish and useless, they may not have Kant's Categorical Imperative behind them.

When a woman trades on her sex and slips in at the head of a waiting line because she is in a hurry, she should remember that she is transgressing Kant's Categorical Imperative.

And He is a Bad Sport, Too.

When a motorist slips by the cars ahead of him on the wrong side, he is violently transgressing the Categorical Imperative, since even the comparative degree of safety with which these thousands of engineers (I often wonder who we would have said it twenty years ago we had been told that hundreds of vehicles driven with the speed of steam engines would pass hourly up and down our city streets) traverse the road would be done away with if everyone did this sort of thing.

A Categorical Imperative sounds like something very far removed from daily life, but when you stop to think of it, it's really the warp and woof of living, isn't it?

Produce and Provisions.

(From Saturday's Trade Review.)

Codfish.—The Regulations were raised this week in respect of all Labrador fish, and on Shore fish destined for Italy. The total of exports this week from all Newfoundland to foreign markets was 44,845 quintals—an excellent record. From the Outports 23,947 quintals were sent out. From St. John's, 20,339 quintals, as follows: From Outports, 5,000 quintals by schooner Frank B. Forsey from Messrs. S. Harris & Co., Grand Bank to Gibraltar for orders; 10,812 quintals by the schooner Arisee from Ashbourne, Twillingate to Malaga; 4,762 quintals by the schooner R. A. G. A. Buffet, Marys-town, to Oporto, and 3,275 quintals by the schooner Curieuse, from Md. Export Co. (J. Lone), Fogo to All-cante. From St. John's there were sent out 4,034 quintals by Earle & Sons to Pernambuco, by the schooner Jean and Mary; 1,768 quintals by the schooner Frances W. Smith, for Barbados from Messrs. Murray, Templeman, Baird, Ltd., A. S. Rendell, and W. Duff & Sons, and 1,324 quintals by s.s. Sacheng to Liverpool from Messrs. Hickman, Harvey, Barr, & Co., Export Co., Job and T. Hollett, 2,554 quintals by barq. Gaspe, from James Baird, Ltd., to Pernambuco, and 4,588 quintals by the schooner R. B. Silver from A. Goodridge & Sons for Bahia.

Cod Liver Oil and Cod Oil.—The demand continues poor for both qualities, but dealers are counting on an improvement in the course of the winter. There are very few transactions in the local market and there has been none shipped out since New Year. The stocks of cod liver oil held are limited and the product, the chief inspector says, is the best rendered in Newfoundland.

Herring.—The herring market is in a little better condition than it was all the fall, and enquiries are beginning to come from New York for good large Scotch pack herring. Judging from the experience of former years, the demand and the price will improve from now on to April. As local packers in Bay of Islands are getting the herring at $3.00 from the net, they should make money at $4. The fishery continues fair.

Flour.—The import to St. John's for the year closed December 30th amounted to 227,536 barrels as compared with 290,109 barrels in 1919; showing a shortage of 62,573 barrels for 1920. The year's requirement for the Outports is not yet to hand. The price of flour is steady at $14.50 to $14.75 wholesale for leading brands and $15.00 by retail. Cheaper flour is not expected till next summer. In fact there may be stiffening up before the spring. This week 2,814 barrels and 4,059 sacks came in.

Pork.—The quotations on Pork are now very nervous when compared with the rates that prevailed the past four years, and it looks as if the best grades will soon be all under the $50.00 mark, to return no more till another great war, which all hope will never occur again. Ham Butt (Choice) is now quoted at $52.00 in St. John's, Short Cut, Fat Back, and Short Mess, $45.00 per barrel wholesale. There is an "Independent" Ham Butt quoted this week at $45.00 also, and "Morris Family," a good pork at $42.00.

Beef.—Prices are unchanged, and dealers say that they can forecast no conditions that would indicate lower prices. It is true that tattle on the hoof has declined about $3.00 per hundredweight since last fall because of the decline of by-product values. Dressed beef and barreled salt beef have, however, not declined in the same ratio, and a firm market at about present levels is expected to prevail all the winter. The local quotations are for "Beef to arrive, $37. for Bos Flank $36, for Morris Family, and $34.50 for "New York Boneless.

Molasses.—A further reduction in the price of Molasses has been made by Messrs. Harvey & Co., and we presume by the other importers. Choice is now quoted at $12.00 and Fancy at $13.90 per gallon wholesale. It is up to the householders who use molasses to see that retailers reduce their price accordingly. The Cuban crop is looking well so far, and it is expected that molasses will be cheaper next April when the new crop comes in, unless something unforeseen occurs.

Sugar.—Raw sugars advanced about one cent per pound from low points recently and is firm at the advance. The situation in the local market is unchanged and will be till February 12th. White Granulated is still selling at 23½ cents per pound in the barrel wholesale, and 24 to 25 cents retail. The consumption was very much improved in December, and at the present rate of absorption the stocks held under the F.C.B. control will all be exhausted by the end of February.

Potatoes.—Imported potatoes are selling at $5.20 but there is a very small quantity in the market. The home-grown is supplying most of the demand, but just now owing to the weather farmers are not moving them from their cellars. It is likely that quite a percentage of the holdings of those who have cattle, will be exchanged for feeds at about the same price. The last sale of local potatoes were made in Christmas week at $4.00 to $4.20.

Apples.—Apples are very scarce in the local market just now and it is not easy to get good barrel apples. There was a great clean out of stock in December, especially the week before Xmas. The price to-day ranges from 40 to 49.09 for winter keeping apples. There are some shipments coming forward from Halifax by next boat.

Hay.—Dealers here have advanced the price of hay to $58.00 a ton and they predict it will be $60.00 before long. Next importations based upon Canadian prices will be $59.00 and by February the local quotation is likely to be $60.00, as importers, irrespective of foreign advance will have to make an additional charge each month for carrying expenses. This is a fair stock in, and enough with the occasional lots that will be coming forward to supply all requirements during the winter.

Oats.—The s.s. Canadian Gapper brought in 3,571 sacks this week from Halifax, so that the market is kept well supplied. The price is still very favorable to buyers, but as the general grain market is showing signs of strength it is believed that oats too will be shortly affected by the upward movement. The quotations today are $4.70 for mixed, $5.30 for Black, $4.80 for White which are scarce. Another large shipment is, we understand due by the next steamer from Halifax.

Feeds.—There is a good supply of all kinds of Feeds in the market and prices are down to the lowest point for several years. Bran is quoted at $2.00, Corn Meal at $3.75, Corn $4.50, and Oat Meal which has now become a popular seller at $4.70 per sack.

STOP THAT COUGH.

PAINTED FACES.

The young girls paint their faces, and look like works of art; they frequent public places, and nearly break my heart. Old girls have ample reason for art work, well designed; they look quite out of season, unless they're kalsomned. But young girls should be tinted by Nature's tender care; paint never should be hinted by any hues they wear. I wonder if they figure on fooling any gent, as they apply with vigor the colors neatly blent? The gent may be a Joker, pretending he is blind, but he knows yellow ochre, red lead of every kind; and when he sees a maiden go flitting through the grad with costly pigments laden, he isn't fooled so bad. A coat of paint and powder applied with lavish hands will make a girl look louder than modesty demands. And all the learned physicians agree that it's a sin; it causes punk conditions which ruin human skin. The old girls face the weather, all painted red and white, because their hide's like leather—unpainted, it's a sight. They wouldn't have to jo it had they, when young, been wise; but then they, tried, bewhored, to dazzle young men's eyes, by painting white and crimson on cheeks already fair; and now we cast our glims on their maps and tear our hair.

Preparing for Winter Fishery.

WEST COAST PEOPLE FITTING OUT BUT ON SMALLER SCALE.

Preparations for the Winter fishery from Burin to Channel are not going on with the same vim as in former years, so we are informed by a traveling business man who arrived from that section of the Coast since Christmas. Fishing supplies are not being issued as freely as usual, but the general opinion is that there will be better conditions by February, should the fish strike in plentiful. There has a good many small schooners fitting out, however, and some of the larger bankers.

Although this fishery is carried on every Winter so near our doors, the East Coast people, except those who have seen the work going on, have no adequate idea of the hardships that the fishermen endure. The fishing is nearly all done with trawls; and from one to three miles from the shore in 25-ton schooners and dories, and sometimes further out by the Bankers.

Some have squid bait kept over from the Fall, and others get herring bait at Hermitage and Fortune Bay for bait and keep them frozen. They also get frozen herring from Bay of Islands by train to Port aux Basques when they are scarce in Fortune Bay.

The principal fishing ground is off Channel and Rose Blanche. The dories and small boats come in every night with their day's catch and split it and stow it away under sail. Off Rames, too, is good fishing ground. The men fish in all weathers, and it is wonderful how they endure the frost and cold winds. They use mittens on their hands and sometimes the feet with frozen spray from head to foot like a knight of old encased in glittering armour. When the sun shines it is an unique sight.

The large schooners and Bankers stay out on the ground for weeks at a time and only come in when they want the supplies, salt, or fresh bait. The fishing begins about the third week of January and goes on till April. When the ice is a few miles off the Coast the conditions for fishing are best, and there is great satisfaction, provided the ice does not close tight in to the land and drive the schooners and boats into the harbors.

This is the fish that is cured in May and June and is ready for the Oporto market about the last of June.—Trade Review.
